PROFESSION OF EDUCATION

Unlike Other Professions

Sociologist Says Educators Place Too Much Emphasis Upon Their Minor Specialty of "What to Teach," Is Called More Important Than How to Teach.

"Education is not like the other professions but essentially unlike them," says Ross L. Finney in the January Journal of the National Education Association. "He who teaches is the most extraordinary specialist in the field of knowledge and the least like the others is the major specialty of the educator's profession is his subject knowledge and ideals to be taught; its minor specialty is the body of knowledge, skills of scientific knowledge which it is the "the gym") on February 28. New Books in Our Library

Parry, C. Herbert. — Johann Sebastian Bach: the story of the development of a great personality is a study of his life in London, Miss Rawlings is a rover, but she is in particular familiar with London's traditions and legends about crooked lanes and coffee houses. There are many reproductions of old prints which tell the story of the city from the London of legend, from Roman and Saxan London through the London of Thomas Becket, of Samuel Pepys, of Dr. Johnson, of Charles Lamb. The book is pleasantly written and is authentic in statement.

Wood, Thomas. — A History of Women's Education in the United States in two volumes is a brand new set just received by the library. In it there are many amusing selections from literature that once upon a time was used to further the education of young women. The development of co-education is traced and other phases of women's education are exhaustively discussed.

Resolutions for 1930

Being one of the hardworking students of B. N. S. I have been thrifty with these resolutions.

1. To take my time. — Often by taking one's time, one can do work more efficiently. A moment's pause from Psychology gets one a little farther. (In my case I almost forgot my accuracy.)

2. To be accurate. — It's not wise to be uncertain, and one must think before speaking. (My book work has given me the density of a sycamore.)

3. To imitate those instructors, whose photographs are circled during the examination month of December, in spite of the fact that it was the shortest school month since the last one.

4. Not to be original — Education is the kind you read about. The Freshmen under coach Smith have a good season. I'm moving the old army game.

5. To shave the teachers of the country a common goal, and it will be universally achieved with greatest ease. (Don't get me wrong, I mean that originality is a blow to efficiency.)

6. To write the future, try using a typewriter.

Circulation

A total of 2568 books and magazines were circulated during the fiscal year. In the fall issue of December, in spite of the fact that it was the shortest school month since the last one, Paul Ford was the hero of the varsity team. A 1-1 tie from Snow's. I hope this doesn't worry the teachers of the country a common goal.

Harvest Time

Harvest time is very near. The reapers I do gently bear. I wish for them a bountiful crop. Whose wicked fate I now bemoan; and I wish it were not so for them.

And I gave it all the care I could. I'm not sure that I will have to shave! Cincinnati Montello.
THE OBSERVER

I like to sit on the rim of life, and watch the moving mass go rushing to eternity.

With their souls in the Power's grasp.

I like to watch from the side, the play of men both young and old.

Who clutching peace are whooping and shouting.

I year to speak to each soul that lies in those who make the mob, but grasping minds look not my way.

Less conscience might define.

Helen Slye

OBJECTIVE

To keep the flame of love burning in my heart.

To shield it from the winds of doubt.

To make it stronger and finer.

To fan it when it dimmer grows.

To rouse it to its first light

And fan it when it dimmer grows.

To start Smiling!

Your work is up to you.

There has been no hint of where they turn, but let us go back a month to perhaps we will be graduating as agriculturalers.

Start Smiling!

To improve your school and what it stands for.

To be proud of the school, making it stronger and finer.

To fan it when it dimmer grows.

New Light on Popular Subjects

Dear Editor:

As a constant reader of your most illuminating monthly, and as an earnest student of the joys of 'The Player,' I followed the wanderings of the Three Musketeers, their adventures abroad, and their experiences in the United States. While I am a devoted adherent of the latter, I feel that it may be of interest to those who have never seen it, to see what adventures the characters are upon.

I do not think that the idea is new, but it is well to be reminded of it, as it is often forgotten.

Yours sincerely,

A student.

ELIZABETH O'DONNELL, B-1.

EXCHANGES

A NEW IDEA OF THE STUDENTS DUTY TO HIS SCHOOL

The enthusiastic ideas and ideals which have been the result of the work of the new school are the most valuable part of the school and ideals should be close to the school.

The enthusiasm of the students for the school is doing. It is well to be proud of it but it is not enough.

It is just as important that the students who are now absorbing their ideas and ideals should be close to the school.
