Eighth Annual Conference

of Teachers Colleges Held

Bridgewater opened its doors for the eighth annual conference of State Teachers Colleges from Wednesday, September 10, through Friday, September 12. The dormitories were used as faculty rooms.

The general address and discussion period were held in the Horace Mann Auditorium, and the various classrooms were devoted to departmental contingents. Dr. E. E. Scott spoke on "The Significance of Successful College Teaching." Mr. C. F. Kibler, Director, State Museum and VIual Education, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, gave two addresses dealing with visual and sensory aids in education.

On Thursday evening, three one-act plays were presented in the auditoriums by the faculty of State Teachers Colleges of Bridgewater, Fitchburg and Framingham. The conference closed with luncheon on Friday.

Editorial Comment

Welcome To Freshmen

All over the country, this week and next, editorials in college newspapers are "welcoming" freshmen. They are written along the same lines and there is little deviation one from the other. They might even be called stereotype. And yet, unlike most stereotype writing, they are all deeply sincere. "The freshmen seem to be very interested in the college," President of Junior Class - James O'Reilly.

They might even be called stereotype. And yet, unlike most stereotype writing, they are all deeply sincere. "The freshmen seem to be very interested in the college," President of Junior Class - James O'Reilly. The new class of students are a "fresh" bunch of you.

Marielle Randall, Treasurer of Day Students,-

"For freshmen, they're very interesting."

Anna Anderson, Secretary of Day Students-,

"They seem to be very intelligent." Catherine Graham, Treasurer of Board of Trustees.

"That's your freshmen are not home-sick group-a fact that we all know about." Gertrude French, President of Woodward Dormitory.

"The freshmen are a lively group and very, very, nice." Rita Cushing, chairman of the College Assembly.

"The underclassmen are awfully good sports and have plenty of life. They are the only friends that I thought at first that they needed it in order to take our places over."

Alice Halloran, President of W. A. H.-

"The freshmen are shy and are good sports. They'll make good athletes, I know." Katharine Ross, President of Library Committee.

"The freshmen are nice and quiet. They'll make good athletes, I know." Gertrude French, President of Dormitory Council.

"The students are lively but not too lively. They seem to be doing a lot of work, and they seem to be having a good time."

Betsy Norton, Secretary of Woodward Dormitory.

"For one thing I am glad. The freshmen are not "cliquey" or anything like that. They are good sports."

Erica Peters, Vice-President of Woodward Dormitory.

The freshmen acquainted themselves very easily with the upperclassmen. We like them for it.

Dr. Edelstein, Secretary of Dornitory Council,

"They are not big poppy groups." Dorothy Risch, President of Woodward Dormitory.

"The students seem very nice and shy."

The freshmen acquainted themselves very easily with the upperclassmen. We like them for it.

A cheerful acceptance of these harmless but somehow important rites will make the path to the "inside" of the college a smoother and healthier thing to travel.

Chapel

Dr. Scott's challenge in his chapel address Wednesday morning was an inspiring one—a challenge to make the absolute best of the opportunities offered at Bridgewater. One of the opportunities of daily chapel attendance is to serve to crystallize college spirit, to cement the different classes together into a common loyalty and feeling. It gives us all a chance for a moment of quiet before the day begins. It is not sophisticated to "cut" chapel.

The First Issue of Campus Comment

This year "Campus Comment" is publishing the first issue of the season much earlier than in previous years. It is felt that an early publication will facilitate the orientation problem of the incoming freshmen, and in general quicken the social pulse of the college.

Another change in "Campus Comment" policy is the addition of another column to its page, making five instead of four. The editors wish also to encourage contributions from the student body—not only open letters but also pieces of creative composition such as articles, bits of poetry, and short stories.
Profitable Summer Spent by Students

In June, B. E. C. students announced their plans for a busy summer, and now September proves that these plans were by no means unsatisfactory. No matter where one went, he was almost certain to bump into fellow Bridgevillians. They seemed to abound everywhere — the mountains, shore, and country, in equal abundance.

Upon inquiry, it was learned that many of the B. E. C. students spent their summers profitably and enjoyably. The one with eager step, whose height was the winning card, was Mr. Huffman of the University of Chicago, thereby mixing with the young people — an unusual combination.

Mr. Shaw attended the Homecoming Farmers Convention in New Hampshire, and did much field work in Agriculture.

As usual Mr. Durgin could not resist the beckoning waves of Oceans Beach on the Cape. However he left them long enough to be present at his class reunion.

Miss Carter also spent a month of the Cape and attended many of the plays at the Cape Playhouse. She had the pleasure of seeing Ina Claire and Margaret Englin perform. Two of the plays she saw were "Witch's" and "Accent on Youth".

It is not hard to guess where Miss Carter was during the summer: California and Hollywood.

Miss Graves climbed Mount Washington, visited Lake Winnipesaukee, and the A.P. Airlines, before she returned to summer school at Cornell University.

Miss Vining drove 1,500 miles this summer, a record of which to be proud. She visited Pennsylvania and New York.

Miss Lorette visited her old home in Mills City, Montana. She also spent an afternoon in Glacier National Park and was very much impressed with the trails, many of which have existed for centuries. She commented on the human spirit that is living in the mountains today. The farmers have good crops and are quite contented.

President Roosevelt will be re-elected in the coming presidential election. To this position, he is the only natural choice, according to the Westerners.

And now a hint for B. T. C. !

What sort of ache is a window pane?
What kind of song is an old hen's corners hurt.

A. "I don't know." B. "Weave.
You: "Yes."

C. "Have you a "gym" uniform?"
You: "Yes."

D. "Where is it?"
You: "Oh, my mother's holding it.
Amesbury."

E. "Can we go swimming?"
You: "Yes, we'll go down to the beach.
In the ocean."

F. "Am I allowed to smoke?
You: "Yes, but I live here by the day."

Woodward dormitory — after breakfast, on the first satis night of school, you will regret the last, as well as the moment you were looking for something. Mr. Morgan, our new school principal, is at the Head of the class.

We hear the girls in Woodward have been running the bow.

And the freshmen are still babyish —
Scene in the "gym." —
Character: Miss Comet, "gym uniform, fresh-fish."
Question: "Do you have a "gym" uniform?"
Answer: "Yes."

Character: "Where is it?"
Answer: "Oh, my mother's holding it for me.
Amesbury."

And the press room on Woodward and Tillinghast Dormitories were presented at the new official dormitory, by the officers of Dormitories and students of Woodward and Tillinghast.

Mr. Morgan, "Our best friend," as des- cribed to us by Miss Greenwood, gave an inspiring talk concerning life in a college dormitory. As we were a new dormitory, she made no such articles in stock, but that there were no such stories in stock that she would be the students' best friend throughout their entire stay.

Now we believe the freshmen are

So of the town's well-attired stores a freshman asked for lamp- shades. She was told that there were no such stories in stock, but that there were no such stories in stock that she would be the students' best friend throughout their entire stay.

"Curvatures" have begun their wandering.

In the midst of baying coal and the general hilarity of unpacking, a new club was formed on second floor, Woodward, the general consensus being,
"Wah Wah!" Small compo- nents came from third floor "known as the 'Eight.'"

Graduates of 1935 Obtain Positions

Back to college once more — and we settle down to take the year's work in stride. Although we have not had as much time to get ourselves back into the swing of things as we would have liked, we have been able to fit in some time to look over the new students and to get to know some of our old friends.

Our dining instructor Grace Jacobs has danced herself into a job in Wren- tham and with her partner, Ruth Doolittle, Esther Hicks and Ken Bailey, from the Cape, the news that Prov- ence Hill is the most famous of all the homes, and that his was the winning card. The farmers have good crops, and are quite contented.

That President Roosevelt will be re-elected is already shown.

President of S. C. A. Extends Welcome

Barbara Albert, president of Student Cooperative Association, and as such, representative of the students, extended a cordial welcome to the freshmen at the chapel on Thursday morning, September 12. At the close of her welcome, Miss Albert announced that, because of the change in the different divisions of underclassmen, reductions of class representatives would be held on Thursday and Friday, September 12 and 13.

Because of the unconfusing manner in which students left chapel during the past year, Miss Alice Carr, chairman of the chapel committee, announced that this plan would be carried on, each class leaving in order of standing.

CAMPUS COMMENT

The Women's Athletic Association, commonly spoken of as the W. A. A., is an organization to which every woman student belongs automatically. The annual budget for the college and the private colleges to use equipment and participate in all sports.

One should take advantage of her automatic membership by participating in sports programs and enjoy the fun and recreation found in them. She should make a start by entering the fall sports which will begin immediately on lower campus. A freshman finds that she starts her first year at Bridgewater as a member of the organization in a college program. Put sports on your list of activities and start college life recreationally.

My stranded thoughts do wander,
And when I wake, what shall I wear?
I'll put on my best, and I'll play gay.
I will use my coat, and I'll pack my things.
I'll do it all tomorrow.
And probably get an "A".
Or the teacher might forget it.
I hope so anyway.
