Biographical Sketch

In 1972, Dr. Jo-Ann Della Giustina earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in Women's Studies from Clark University. She embraced socialist ideals during her college years in 1969, influenced by notable figures like Malcolm X and the growing women's movement. A scholar-practitioner, Dr. Della Giustina contributed to periodic social justice columns, predominantly for the Militant, showcasing her intellectual engagement in the discourse surrounding societal equity. After college, she relocated to Southern California where she continued her socialist and women's liberation activism, including as the Coordinator of the Los Angeles Coalition for the Equal Rights Amendment and as the Socialist Worker Party candidate for U.S. Congress.

Dr. Della Giustina undertook extensive travels to various nations, notably post-revolution Nicaragua with the intent to gain first-hand knowledge of how a government restructures a socialist society. Dr. Della Giustina's commitment to the socialist cause manifested in her strong advocacy for the Sandinistas during the 1970s and 80s, a period marked by the upheaval following the overthrow of the Somoza dictatorship in Nicaragua. Consequently, a substantial segment of her scholarly collection is devoted to Nicaraguan publications from this transformative period.

Relocating to Chicago in 1977, Dr. Della Giustina further diversified her career by joining General Motors, where she became one of the first female machine repair apprentices. Active in labor movements, she played a pivotal role in organizing a democratic opposition caucus within the Local 558 United Auto Workers union. Motivated by her fervor for feminist labor and socialist causes, Dr. Della Giustina pursued graduate studies at Columbia College and legal studies at the Illinois School of Technology Chicago-Kent College of Law. Her legal career unfolded in roles as a law clerk in the People's Law Office, a prosecutor in the Chicago housing court, a Cook County assistant public defender, and a law clerk in the Illinois Appellate Court, specializing in criminal law. She became licensed to practice law in Illinois, Massachusetts, and New York as well as in Federal Courts.

In 2005, Dr. Della Giustina earned her Ph.D. from the CUNY Graduate Center, focusing her dissertation on Femicide. Commencing her academic career in 2005, she assumed a teaching role in Criminal Justice at Bridgewater State University, with a prolific publication record encompassing works such as "Why Women are Beaten and Killed," a seminal textbook on Gender and Justice, and various chapters and journal articles exploring themes like Sexual Violence and Restorative Justice, Domestic Violence Policies in Nicaragua and Russia, Community Justice and Domestic Violence, Cybercrime Legal Issues, and Police Misconduct. Dr. Della Giustina's legal acumen is further highlighted by her past roles as a Cook County (Chicago) Public Defender and an Illinois Appellate Court Law Clerk. Beyond her academic and legal pursuits, Dr. Della Giustina actively contributes to the Massachusetts state prison system through teaching and volunteering. Her involvement extends to several statewide committees, including the Department of Correction Commissioner Dialogue, the Massachusetts Prison Education Consortium, and the Massachusetts Restorative Justice Coalition Steering Committee, showcasing her commitment to the advancement of justice and education.

During her years at Bridgewater State University Dr. Della Giustina held several leadership positions in the BSU CJ Department, as Chairperson, Continuing Studies Coordinator, Graduate Coordinator, and Prison and Jail Initiation Director as well as serving on several university-wide advisory boards and committees.

Scope and Content Note

The bulk of this collection consists of a wide array of far-left political pamphlets on various topics, mostly communist and socialist political movements within the United States, Central and South America, the Caribbean, Eastern Europe, Vietnam, and China. The topics involve labor unions and strikes, political revolutions, global women's rights, communist and socialist history and dispelling false propaganda, LGBTQ+ rights, and African American rights. In addition to pamphlets, Dr. Della Giustina also collected newspaper runs published by far-left US labor groups that sought to expose big businesses, highlight the struggles and threats to immigrant workers, and bring awareness to the various social justice causes of the day, such as the Equal Rights Amendment, Civil Rights, and the US military conscription during the Vietnam War. The final series is more personal to Dr. Della Giustina. It contains her personal correspondence with the various labor unions that she belonged to during the 1970-80s, as well as union bulletins, newsletters, and informational pamphlets on policy and resources.

Series Descriptions

Series 1: Social Justice Pamphlets, 1943-1992

3 boxes, arranged by subject

This section of pamphlets primarily contains pro-socialist and communist materials published by various, global communist and socialist organizations. The largest component deals with the operations of the Socialist Workers Part, Communist Party of the United States of America, other leftist organizations, and its members. This includes campaign literature for state and local contests in Chicago and California, and material concerning African American communists, communist youth and student groups, labor movements, and women's liberation movement. The pamphlets also serve as a key part to communist/socialist political theory, history, and topics from Trotsky to Malcom X. Other topics in this Irish Republican Army (IRA) and Irish Civil Rights, Vietnam War Opposition, the Israeli Occupation, and women's rights.

Series 2: Social Justice Periodicals, 1921-1986,

12 boxes

This series contains multiple collections of newspaper runs spanning from North to South America. The largest component includes Latin and South American events of their time but also covers several social justice threats that affected the Latin American diaspora within the United States. The newspapers are far-left socialist publications that focused on the Socialist Workers Party, the Fourth International (Trotskyist), labor movements, immigration threats, the Nicaraguan Revolution, Che Guevara, and the spread of socialism within the Americas.

Series 3: Social Justice Ephemera and Manuscripts, 1941-2003,

7 boxes, arranged by subject

This series contains items pertaining to Social Justice causes that Dr. Della Guistina was involved in. Topics include: Chicano Labor Unions, United Auto Workers, Civil Rights Movement, Equal Rights Amendment, Abortion Rights, Socialism in Central America, South America, and the Caribbean. The largest component deals with Dr. Della Giustina's correspondence within unions where she held membership, legal cases that she litigated or researched, and global social justice topics that she collected through articles and printed ephemera.
