Veteran Cast of "Pride and Prejudice", Advance Sales, Predict Sellout House

Bridgewater is awaiting with keen interest this year's dramatic offering, "Pride and Prejudice". It is being directed by Miss Ruth Irma Low, and will be presented on Friday evening, November 15.

The play is a sentimental comedy in three acts adapted for the stage by Helen Jerome and based on Jane Austen's well-known book.

Considering the unusually large number in the cast, twenty-six persons, we feel certain of a smashing success. The stars scheduled to appear as follows:

Mr. Bennett .................................. Arnold Oliver
Mrs. Bennett ............................ Evelyn Allen
Mr. Laskey ................................. Nancy Hatch
Elizabeth ................................. Leona Gregory
Jane ........................................ Mary Connelly
Amelia ...................................... Madeline Baker
Charlotte ................................... Marguerite Hallisey
Lady Lucas .................................. Lillian Russell
Amanda ...................................... Amy Weisworth
Maggie ................................. Winstead Sweany
Mrs. Gardner .............................. Mary Hadfish
Maid .......................................... Mary Riley
Lady de Bough .......................... Norma Hurley
Miss Bingley .............................. Gertrude Tophill
Mrs. Lake .................................. Violet Forta
Agatha ....................................... Elizabeth Lawrence
Darcy ......................................... Lawrence Birch
Bingley ..................................... James Lynch
Betinda ..................................... Mary Connelly
Collins ................................. William Kearns
Wickham ................................. Edward Sawicki
Young Man ................................. Irving Arlender
Second Young Man ........................ John H. Fitzgerald
Capt. Denny ............................... Leonard Zatuchny
Colonel Fitzwilliam .......................... Joseph Horsley
Hill (the butler) ............................. William Costello
Theresa Fallon, the nice looking and winsome sweetheart of the play, has been selected to play the part of Jane. She was born in Brockton, Massachusetts, when three years old she went to Watertown, where she married Mr. Bennett. Mr. Bennett is popular in the community and will lead the cast.

Senior Art Class Views

Senior Art Class Views Ancient Art In Boston

Ancient Art In Boston. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts was the subject of observation last Thursday by the senior history of art class under the direction of Miss Nutter.

Traveling in five private cars twenty-seven students left after eleven and returned before dinner. Examples of sculpture and pottery and a few paintings of the Ancient Egyptian, Assyrian, and Greek civilizations were particularly enjoyed. The tour of the museum included arts of the period which the group has been studying.

Senior Officers Chosen

Senior Officers Chosen

Theresa Fallon, the nice looking and conscientious vice-president of the freshman class, was born in Brockton, Massachusetts. When three years old she moved to Bridgewater, where she has attended grammar and high school. Her favorite sports are hockey, tennis, and ping-pong; her hobbies are playing the piano and painting with water colors. Her favorite subject is chemistry, a subject quite unusual for a girl to like. In high school she belonged to the Glee Club and was on the school paper and the yearbook.

Frosh President Makes Avocation of Puppetry

By this time, most of the freshmen have been introduced to the world of the Hovey Players. Plays which he has produced include "Treasure Island", "Little Red Riding Hood", several history plays, and others.

New Training Supervisor, Miss Davis, Has Wide Background in Education

Takes Up New Duties

Recently appointed supervisor of practice teaching, Ruth E. Davis, principal of the Training School, has had firsthand experience with all grades and much practice in the planning of a teacher's work on many grade levels. Miss Davis fills the position of principal in the Training School, the allocation of students to the various grades is based on the number of students and the number of grades in each school. The office of the principal is in charge of the placement of students in the various schools.

Miss Davis was graduated from Bridgewater in 1909 and for the following three years taught in the primary grades in Whitman and Sharon. In 1911 she returned to Bridgewater as a critic teacher and in 1923 she conducted classes in education and English in the college. Three years ago Miss Davis took over Miss Burrell's duties as principal of the Training School.

In addition to her regular work, Miss Davis has taught several classes in the University Extension course at the State Teachers College at Bridgewater, and is now director of all departments which has its center here. She is a past vice-president of the Massachusetts Teachers College Association and is chairman of the committee on public school relations for that organization.

No arrangements have been made as yet concerning the position of principal of the Training School, so Miss Davis will continue as acting principal.

Campus Comment on behalf of the students wishes success and happiness to Miss Davis in her new work.

Senior History Class Makes Trip to Old Whaling Center

The Jonathan Bourne Whaling Museum and the Saloon's Belfry were the main points of interest visited by the senior history class Tuesday afternoon on their field trip to New Bedford. The committee in charge of the trip was composed of Florence Kammermann, Betty Milne, and Willard Parkinson.

At the museum, the main attraction was a half-sized ship especially built at the cost of a large whaler. Other exhibits at the museum included small rooms representing the industries of the whaling period, relics brought back by the captains and sailors from their distant voyages, ship models of every description, pictures, and parts of whale skeletons.

Seaman's Belfry on Johnny-Cake Hill was the old meeting-house and place of worship for the sailors. Here it was that Herman Melville assembled his services and later wrote of it in his famous book about whaling, "Moby Dick".

EDITORIAL

CAMPUS COMMENT regrets the apparently unsympathetic publication in the last issue of an article on the trials of commuting. We published the article interpreting it to be a plea by a commuter for sympathy regarding some popularly lamented difficulties of traveling methods.

For years we have rejoiced in an eager friendliness between commuters and dormitory students for a common purpose—that of enjoying together the opportunities offered at this college. We notice, that, although our commuters are at a great disadvantage as far as extra-curricular time is concerned, they are more than well-represented as leaders and participants in activities. We are glad of this opportunity to call attention to the commendable work of our commuting students here at Bridgewater.

EDITORIAL

Although a committee has assigned students' cars to specific parking places, this does not seem to have been sufficiently effective. Has our committee achieved order from the chaos of past years? Some of our experienced parkers say no—emphatically.

Although the committee seeks cooperation concerning the regulations of parking, certain complications arise. An amusing case was that of a helpful student who tried to find his parking space on Cedar Street on the opening day of this ambitious improvement campaign. Imagine the individual's amazement when he beheld not a single empty space in which he could deposit his vehicle. Parking where he belonged had been made inconvenient by careless parking at a five degree angle to the curb with a mere two yards of spacing between. His only alternative was to park his car in the first available place, and he did so. During the course of the day he was warned of dire consequences if he didn't stay where he belonged.

Our parking committee is doing its utmost to help us all. Let's cooperate with the rules and help correct troublesome situations.

CLUB NEWS

DRAMATIC CLUB

A dinner party for the participants in the production of "Pride and Prejudice" will be held after the performance. The cast is busy rehearsing for the play which will be produced November 15. Amy Wentworth and Joseph Commerford have in charge of the tickets for the play.

GERMAN CLUB

A speaker on youth hostels has been invited and the next club meeting is to be held on Thursday, November 14. Margaret Hallacey and Mary Larkin are co-chairmen of the meeting.

MENORAH CLUB

The next meeting will be in the form of a musical to be held in Miss Rand's room. Freeda Bendersky will entertain with piano selections. There will be talks on various composers by members of the club. Miss Rand will also play records. Refreshments will be served.

SCIENCE CLUB

Miss Graves recently lectured to club members on her interesting experiences at Cornell this summer. Betty Milne, club president, had general charge of arrangements. She explained the process of making press plants.

OFFICES OF THE DAY

No definite plans have been made for the next meeting which will be under the direction of the acting president, Marion Kelly.

NEWMAN CLUB

Plans were made for a semi-formal dance to be held January 31 at the Newman Club in Brockton. A Boston orchestra will supply the music. Further business in the form of payment of dues was discussed and it was decided that one half of the dues should be paid before December 1.

LIBRARY CLUB

The meeting of Library Club under the capable supervision of Elin Filipson was a thoroughly enjoyable one. At a candle light initiation service, new members repeated the club pledge. The rest of the meeting was devoted to informal remarks from each member on books, plays and movies. Miss Carter and Miss Tringe-us club advisers-gave a little talk and the meeting closed with light refreshments.

PRESS CLUB

President Dick Durnin and his lively staff have things well started in this small club. Business brought before the meeting was the forthcoming Christmas social, purchase of a hectograph and discussion on the make-up of the "Bridgewaterite". Mimeograph sheets were passed out on "The News Loop" and a few more details were added by club adviser Miss Lovett. Two new members, Grace Mosier and Randall Powers, were added to the program committee.

Reports Seep In About Graduate Positions

It's lots of fun to investigate the present positions of Bridgewater graduates. It gives us much needed encouragement, too.

John Glenn, '34, is the acting Supervisor of the Schools of Marion, Massachusetts, and Owen Kiernan of the class of '35 is the principal of Sandwich High School. They climbed the ladder rapidly, didn't they? Leo Alpert, class of '37, is a member of the staff of the National Magazine Committee connected with Babson Institute. For those of you who aspire to travel, just remember Lawrence Haskell is teaching in Puerto Rico.

Duck! Here It Comes! Plug Master's On The Prowl

Cherio and a slight dash of hi-de-ho! For those of us who have been quite frisky during the early hours and your slightly amorous snugglers are beginning to put on the old speed in getting to school mornings. Here we are again with one-half a semester gone and junior and seniors in their final day simply languishing away waiting to be back here. We're not missing the poor juniors and seniors who are on their way out. They look like seven cakes to us.

However, we were discussing the weather, (that universal subject that can make or break a friendship) and in our own subtle little way we are trying to bring out the fact that Snow's has a new line of semi-haired jackets.

Fred Snow does not have to go into his lengthy discourse to describe what he's got, for his snappy line speaks for itself. If as yet you're minus a pork pie—a college "must" for every "Jim" and "Jane"—we suggest a hasty trip to Snow's.

Seeing that Dunstan's is practically next door, we stop in there and find the usual gathering exchanging chatter over cokes, and a student falls peacefully nuzzling over choosing the one she'd like to have, trying out the different ones. After puzzling over which one to choose for the "life-time" of the moment. After guessing a soda served in Dairy of the inimitable style, we leave and as we pass our quizzical friend he is mumbling, "That's an or that one!"

Then leisurely we sneak in EHRIO's main thoroughfare and per usual drop in at Rexaux's to see how they are doing without us. It didn't take more than one glance to see that we haven't been missed. A fine thing! We do, however, notice all the pretty, shiny new articles being featured on the counters and among them, cosmetics, which several dowdy-eyed glamour girls are gazing at in rapture.

So feeling on the slightly mangled side, we hurst into Brady's "dog-cart" and feel better after partaking of a delicious meat with wonderful steaming hot coffee. Imagine anyone feeding out-of-sort's with Tom Brady around. It just isn't possible, so with much jolly bantering to and fro we issue forth in rare high humor.

Just at that moment a mob—and we do mean mob—comes rushing down the street, and if you want to see a Bowlusian Atlanta shrinking with laughter. Since it is our business to know—snoop, we know how to do it. Just a bow of the bowing teams being formed by enthusiastic female members of the school. Are the girls beating the boys again? Tak, tak, tak, shame on you, Boys.

Now physically and mentally spent we leave you—or inversely.

national publication, Dorothy Moyson of '18 is children's librarian at the Taunton Public Library and Doris Lavin of '39 is working in the young people's room at the Boston Public Library.

Just to let you graduate students know what a fine place you've come to, let us inform you that Hugh McLaughlin who came here for his degree in '35 is now head of the English department at a junior college located in Montpelier, Vt.

Leo Alpert, class of '37, is a member of the staff of the National Magazine Committee connected with Babson Institute. For those of you who aspire to travel, just remember Lawrence Haskell is teaching in Puerto Rico. So, (continued on page 4)
Freshman Girl Gathered
Antiques For Recreation

A hobby which may seem out of the reach of most of our poor students is the collecting of antiques. This fascinating pursuit is actually being carried on by a freshman, Mary Vivian. Mary has an ideal set in which to put her collection, for she lives in a house that is 125 years old. In her time she maps out an itinerary of antique shops at which she plans to pick up various pieces to augment her supply.

All types of antiques are included among her collection. Mary has many hundreds of small objects such as old-fashioned locks, belts, old-fashioned spoons and other odds and ends.

A desire which is still to be fulfilled is the furnishing of the twelve rooms of Mary's house with antiques. At the present time there are six rooms which are completely furnished with antiques they were purchased in many different stores. These are an old bookcase, iron bed, a set of china, old glass pieces, an old davenport, an old piano. Mary's dream of having all the rooms filled with antiques is not too far in the future.

For rainy days Ruth Smith has inherited her father's bomb-proof hut. She says that she can't see how the hut can be used in the rain. However, she is planning to have it put up in the back yard.

SPORTS SEANCE

The B. T. C. soccer team ended its season by suffering a defeat at the hands of New Bedford Textile, 1-0. Without the Mrs. the home team played rings around the visitors from the whaling city, but lacked the scoring panache in the closing seconds of play. Bill Edgar missed a goal in the last quarter by inches. Before this game, Bridgewater had twice beaten Springfield A. L. C. 2-1 and 5-1. In the former game Antone and Regini played spectacular ball supported by Savage, Sparks, Cheromka, York, and Oliver. In the latter game, Meggs had a big day scoring three consecutive tallies. The other two scores were contributed by Capt. Jim Savage.

DEAR DIARY—

Thursday, October 31

Today is the last—The W. A. A. Conference began with the literal bang of the gavel given by Miss Irma Pells, the Chairman of Eastern District of the Women’s Section on Athletics of the National Education Association, and the report from Salem Teachers College.

Later those interested were satiated with a panel discussion when they stood back and forth many intricate problems, and others made the rounds of our campus and became acquainted with each other.

Pauline Chalke surely struck a telling blow to all enthusiasts. Racketeers certainly have a brand new set of plays to try out as suggested by Miss George Wightman—Good instruction is sporadic—and this was greatly appreciated.

Unfortunately, owing to transportation difficulties, the Bridgewater girls were unable to attend the rules conference.

Not until B. T. C. scored this surprise upset did many people realize that this outfit is really colorful. The stars are Frances O’Byrne, Amy Wentworth, Grace Hayes, Martha Godsell, Christine Lashley, Pauline DeHills, Mary Kane, Eleanor Blaine, Jean Snow, Ellen Mercer, Madelyn Dugger and Mary Scott. Amy also played fall back for the all-college team against the Boston Club. They lost 4-2—but that wasn’t Amy’s fault. W. A. A. is certainly punching through with its extra-size-daze times.

SPEECH CLASS INTERVIEWERS UNCOVER INTRIGUING STORIES

The disrupting of Europe’s kingdoms and empires has resulted in the scattering of royalty all over the world, even to Brockton, Massachusetts.

If one thinks countsesses are tall, willowy brunettes, dripping with jewelry, you will not recognize Mrs. Kostyма of Brockton as an Austrian countess. She is a gracious woman of medium height, with light blonde hair and deep blue eyes.

Mrs. Kostyма was born in Austria, the only daughter of a count and countess. When the world war broke out she was nine years old, but her father became ill, leaving the young countess and her mother to look after the estate. After several years she came to America, and took her before the Bolshevik government. She was apparently a kind hearted officer because he was not only put on a type of probation, a month later her father died and she and her mother were sent to a camp, where they were often afraid for their lives.

When the war was over the countess’ mother scraped together enough money to send her daughter overseas to America to live here for a time. Within that year the countess’ mother died, and leaving the young countess and her nine years old daughter penniless and nearly friendless in New Hampshire. She learned English and worked as a domestic. The countess for a time stayed in New York City, but so long since so long since she was sent back to New Hampshire, where she married Michael Kostyма.

After she separated from her husband she moved to Brockton with her two children. Mrs. Kostyма is now an American citizen and proud of it. She says, “You should be proud of your American heritage. Treasure it!”

Press Club Journeys To Historic Plymouth Towne

Monday afternoon, November 4, saw the gathering of the Press Club for a historic tour of the town of Plymouth, under the guidance of Mario Regini. Because of his experience as a former guide he was well qualified to act as an expert for the group with the points of interest. Among these was the famous old national monument to our forefathers, furthering the four fundamental ideals of our present government: freedom of liberty, education, law, and morality.

Other points of interest were the old English cannon and powder house at the site of the first fort erected on the shores of our country; Bradford’s Garden; statute of Pilgrim maid; and well-known Burial Hill, the final resting place of Governor Bigot.

It was voted to extend membership to graduates of Salem Teachers College. They will participate in next year’s meeting at Nashua.
