Dear Friends,

Each year, I feel privileged to share my thoughts with you as you pay tribute to your college career throughout the pages of your yearbook. And, each year, as I reflect, I am humbled by the journey we have shared together - your accomplishments and personal transformations and the growth of our college, both academically and physically.

The future is yours. Be proud of your achievements in the classroom and on the sports fields; proud of the hours you have dedicated in service to your community; proud to have triumphed over all the challenges you have faced during your college career.

As the years pass, I am confident you will look back on your time at Bridgewater with fondness. Perhaps you will recall a professor who inspired you, a class that changed your world view, evenings with friends, study groups, lunch in the dramatically reconfigured Bears Den. Maybe you were one of the first residents of Crimson Hall. Certainly you were among the first to enjoy the atmosphere in the newly renovated Maxwell Library.

You have been - and will continue to be - an integral part of this fine institution, an institution which grows in reputation and stature with each passing year. You are in large part responsible for that growth, because as Bridgewater State College alumni, you carry the torch of learning and caring into the community.

The time is yours. Your time calls for leadership, for focus and strength. You have the skills and you have the ability to transform this world. I encourage each of you to lead that transformation. We need you. The world needs you.

I wish each of you well on your journey and thank you for sharing a slice of life with us here at Bridgewater State College.

Sincerely,

Dana Mohler-Faria
President
