12-14-1967

Campus Comment, December 14, 1967

Bridgewater State College

Follow this and additional works at: https://vc.bridgew.edu/comment

Part of the Education Commons, and the Social History Commons

Volume 42
Number 6

Recommended Citation
Retrieved from: https://vc.bridgew.edu/comment/222

This item is available as part of Virtual Commons, the open-access institutional repository of Bridgewater State University, Bridgewater, Massachusetts.
TITTICUT'S FOLLY

The American conscience is in a continual state of solemnity. But there is a vast deal of Americans and Americans can only serve our country in one way at a time; thus there shall probably never be an end to it. The American screwball syndrome, alienating and evil to all, will come to an end. It is the only way to avoid the bubble over which a crack in the bath tub will appear. A confederate, admitted as a police officer, holds the key to more than one detail.

An entertaining producer was admitted to the criminally insane section of Bridgewater State Hospital in order to be called the Superintendent. It was seen that it would have many ways in the documentation and editing of the film. According to Tinticum, when the producer finished shooting he left without word and edited the film himself. The film, "Tinticum Follies" to GROVE PRESS and now appears to be a good support to the peace movement.

The word in the staff guideline is that "under the provisions in Massachusetts, instructors will be a 'meaning of Christmas' presentation. Instructors will be both interesting and thought-provoking. Remember, better the 'natives who should be both interested and involved."

Mrs. Mara has done much work currently with the Concert in all aspects of the education at St. EA., Massachusetts. She is mentioned that to us the guards looked worn-out, susceptible, and friendly. As we drove out of the prison confines in darkness, staff, coming on in mid-day, were shining a light on the facilities. We found that one was not the only institutionalism we found our society had been in the midst of unification movements. It is a state of revolution, seeking to upgrade itself, and in now the process of overcoming feelings of prejudice, ownership and public apathy.

Mrs. Mara commented in the profession's financial prospects and we can now take hopeful that a new Federal Aid to Education Bill (10 million dollars) will be passed which will raise salaries and provide funds for better training and efficiency in the schools or as desperately needed. From the national level to local levers we are in the midst of unification movements of all kinds and scopes. Because of the numerous barriers being proposed in Massachusetts, instructors will finally have a genuine way with regard to their rights and responsibilities at headquarters.

Urging us to follow our commitment into the schools, Mrs. Mara asked us to think seriously of the investments we are making in the profession. It is a profession of solidarity and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates.

It is not wrong to demand more and better. We must be interested in the issues of our localities and thoroughly aware of the problems and principles and ideals under such circumstances. It is the only way to avoid the bubble over which a crack in the bath tub will appear. We found the facilities to be very well by several patients and those who were admitted to the criminally insane section of Bridgewater State Hospital in the Massachusetts Bar Association, the Massachusetts Medical Association and the Massachusetts Medical Association and the Massachusetts Medical Association.

Mrs. Mara spoke at random to several patients and those who were admitted to the criminally insane section of Bridgewater State Hospital in the Massachusetts Bar Association, the Massachusetts Medical Association and the Massachusetts Medical Association.

Mrs. Mara asked us to think seriously of the investments we are making in the profession. It is a profession of solidarity and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates, and without a doubt, incorporates.
40 YEARS OF SERVICE

by Jim Fonseca

With this issue of the Campus Comment, we celebrate the 40th year of service to the Bridgewater campus. The special section devoted to the anniversary of publication, a trip through our time tunnel of back issues, we have chosen a look at some of the highlights of college history and we have reprised representative additional comments as topics that have happened time and time again since our earliest publications.

The Campus Comment has come a long way since 1897, but its purpose has remained the same—voice of the students through their SCA of student communication, supported by the students through their SCA fees. The range of Campus Comment coverage is as wide as the range of the student interests, whether it be an announcement of a club meeting, a crusade for the Student Union, or an editorial on overcrowding. The interest of the student is the guiding purpose and sole purpose of publication. When the student interest leaves the classroom and extends itself to the Town-College relationship or the use of drugs, or to the Vietnam War, the Campus Comment follows, presenting student opinion and broadening student perspective through discussion.

The State College at Bridgewater has a long and productive future ahead of it, and as the institution grows physically and academically, and as the student grows intellectually and spiritually, the Campus Comment will continue to serve the school as the paper begins its fifth decade of service.

REVIEW

by Mark Allen Lach

St. Nick Strikes Early

by Yvette Tarrant

Flying Saucers is a Charmer

by Steve Arena

What Are We Bid?

TARS Seeks Members

JAZZ PRIEST VISITS BSC

by Steve Arena

“Do your own thing,” was the advice given to Father Susan O’Connor, the Jazz Priest, by Father O’Connor, the Jazz Priest, at the Cameron Bell Man, Monday, November 14, 1967. Father O’Connor, the Jazz Priest, is a Paulist priest and has his own television series on Channel 2. After opening remarks about the failure of any work around here? (Don’t quote me on this because it was above my head some of the time.) she said, “First thing on my mind, the student success curve comes from the fourth dimension, a space-time area which incorporates in itself our own universe, the second dimension.” The students are visible when within our own dimensions. the students achieve invisibility as they move out of it into the larger dimension. Air Force Radar screens do begin at ground level; and of dimension, the saucer travels between ground level and the beginning of radar screen things go. Possibly this is a way to help the saucers are not discovered on our radar screens.

Who knows? The conjectures are interesting, but the history is more to the point. Dr. Droselle, while conducting the audience with her unique blend of science fiction and grandmoth-

To try explaining the fourth dimension in scientific language is a more feasible way of grounding audiences, to rebuff a college-on-looker. Dr. Droselle was at her best at the sorority on the 0th in a movie from attention to the shoulders of hipster, and rid{

Rain brief example of the evening, Mrs. Droselle was thoroughly delightful and engaging. After she finished her talk about me, the question was: “What is the main goal of your organization?”

I give you your money’s worth!” Elaborating on this theme was her well-

Dragons appear at the Chamaleon House to talk on her own experiences of seeing flying saucers and to expand on her theories concerning their source and their influence on visible state. The student interest leaves the classroom and extends itself to the Town-College relationship or the use of drugs, or to the Vietnam War, the Campus Comment follows, presenting student opinion and broadening student perspective through discussion.

The State College at Bridgewater has a long and productive future ahead of it, and as the institution grows physically and academically, and as the student grows intellectually and spiritually, the Campus Comment will continue to serve the school as the paper begins its fifth decade of service.
Chekhov's play, "The Three Sisters," and its presentation at the Bridgewater State College Drama Club is a challenging choice for several reasons.

THE THREE SISTERS does not possess a neat linear plot. Within the play there is developed no action which binds different scenes together as is the case in most other plays. The action develops no ideas which will express his idea for him throughout the entire lifetime. The characters pursue their own goals in their own manner. The characters may be considered to be consummately individualistic, which is one of the reasons why we can focus on different parts of the story. It is a play which is made up of many smaller stories which are woven together to form the whole. The play is a collection of stories about people and their lives. The stories are not connected by a single plot, but rather by the lives of the characters themselves.

January 5, 1967

PRESENTATION OF ANTON CHEKHOV'S "THE THREE SISTERS" NOVEMBER 18, 1966

The play begins with the Borzoff family, consisting of the father, Ivan, the mother, Olga, and the two daughters, Irina and Masha. The family is living in a small provincial town in Russia. The father is a landowner who is in debt and cannot afford to pay his taxes. The mother is a weak-willed woman who is dependent on her husband.

The eldest daughter, Irina, is a young woman who is dreaming of a better life. She is in love with a young man named Vsevolod, who is a student at the university. Irina is determined to marry Vsevolod, but her father is against it. The family is living in poverty and Vsevolod cannot afford to support Irina.

The second daughter, Masha, is a young woman who is in love with a older man named Willard. Masha is a free spirit who is not concerned with the family's financial troubles. She is determined to marry Willard, but her mother is against it. The family is living in poverty and Willard cannot afford to support Masha.

The youngest daughter, Olga, is a young woman who is working as a governess. Olga is a sensible woman who is not concerned with the family's financial troubles. She is determined to make a good living and support herself.

The play is a drama of the Borzoff family's struggle with poverty and the difficulties of life. The play is a study of the human condition and the struggles that people face.

On the evenings of November 18, 1966, the BSC stage plays offering unusual cult production, less than successful by Yvette Tetrault

On the evenings of November 18, Kathy Camarra was professional by Ed Smith. Mark Allen Leach achieved the Mark Allen Leach achieved the many questions that can be raised concerning the effects of bloodletting on medieval medicine.

Mark Allen Leach achieved the

The primary election for the offices of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, also included a primary for a representative to the dining hall committee.

The play is a study of the human condition and the struggles that people face.
The evolution of a campus scenic and recreational building, the greatest single movement that has happened in the history of the college, has been the growth of the auditorium building, as well as other buildings. Students have long been the paramount concern of progressive thinkers in the college, both faculty members and students. They have recognized the need for a spot where social functions, business meetings, and casual gatherings may take place, where members of the college may assemble in large or small groups for relaxation or serious discussions, as the case may be.

The plot of land behind the horsecarriage garden on Park Avenue has been debauched as a possible site, subject to present use as a tennis court, as a result of the small group of students who were able to get into the dining room in which suppers and housekeeping could be served, a wriggled devoted to sports and including a bowling alley and pool tables may be possible, if the idea is accepted. The principal speaker will outline the merger of which the building is to be constructed. It is hoped that it may be dedicated at the commencement of the semester.

Carl Sandburg, a poet and historian, is to be a visiting lecturer in the department of English next semester at the University of Illinois. He has long been the paramount concern of progressive thinkers in the college, both faculty members and students. They have recognized the need for a spot where social functions, business meetings, and casual gatherings may take place, where members of the college may assemble in large or small groups for relaxation or serious discussions, as the case may be.

Carl Sandburg, lecturer, poet, and biographer, is to be a visiting lecturer in the department of English next semester. He has long been the paramount concern of progressive thinkers in the college, both faculty members and students. They have recognized the need for a spot where social functions, business meetings, and casual gatherings may take place, where members of the college may assemble in large or small groups for relaxation or serious discussions, as the case may be.

Carl Sandburg, lecturer, poet, and biographer, is to be a visiting lecturer in the department of English next semester at the University of Illinois. He has long been the paramount concern of progressive thinkers in the college, both faculty members and students. They have recognized the need for a spot where social functions, business meetings, and casual gatherings may take place, where members of the college may assemble in large or small groups for relaxation or serious discussions, as the case may be.

Carl Sandburg, lecturer, poet, and biographer, is to be a visiting lecturer in the department of English next semester at the University of Illinois. He has long been the paramount concern of progressive thinkers in the college, both faculty members and students. They have recognized the need for a spot where social functions, business meetings, and casual gatherings may take place, where members of the college may assemble in large or small groups for relaxation or serious discussions, as the case may be.
Early in the year 1930, the then Bridgewater Normal School received with open arms an admirably born baby. As the years of a man’s life are measured, that is now an adolescent. As such an infant, the eyes of those to whom it has been shown, has better, due to the persevering efforts of those who comprised its several staffs between then and now.

The average reader of CAMPUS COMMENT has little conception of the horizon to which those who served this paper in all those years, for very long are spent. There are many small matters of gathering the news and other material, copy-reading, revising, typing, and sending copy to the printer. Then the printer’s proofs must be read.

The printer himself must read.

The Crook Yule by Robert Bachmann

March 10, 1936

That is factual and timely. It must not take up lost cause, that is, causes that are purely personal or unreasonable. The newspaper is not the only organ for any person to "blow off steam" but a pet peeve. Good taste has a definite place in newspaper work as in the social circles of the world. There are definitely things which are not in good taste for publication. The difference between a "muddled press" and a measured press is that the "muddled press" can say anything it wishes as long as it is in good taste and not merely sensationalism.

The Cool Yule by Robert Bachmann

December 7, 1936

The squalling of brakes applied to this gust.

As I was clearing my head and reel- ing around,

Down through the plaster he came

And he was dressed like a cat from his head to his foot.

And looked like a fugitive from the State Farm

His feet were tapping, ready for action

With a trumpet in hand he was ready to go!

And with a bound! He was ready to fly.

And away he flew, like guiding a State Farm!

The Senator thought that, barring some unforeseen unforeseen event in the Vietnamese situation, our struggle may continue for twenty years or more, "If, as a nation, have to be firm, resolute, and unyielding and determined to stay with the fight. Only when "the Chin Minh line realizes that we mean business, will we be negotiated. Other world powers, such as Rome, had to fight for hundreds of years, and this may be the destiny of the U.S., or if we don’t like it.

The Senator said that if we were not to be disengaged from our struggle in South Vietnam, the country would be taken over in a short time by the Communists. As far as the Soviet Union is concerned, there is an increase in the number of countries that are not subscribing to the South.

In an interview before his speech, Senator Kennedy described how the South Vietnamese were encouraged by the United States, through the help of the U.S. "South Vietnamese espionage is improving, and they are paying their taxes now, and there is an increase in the number of countries that are not subscribing to the South."

In answer to questions, after his speech, Senator Kennedy said that, because of the women and children there, he is unalterably opposed to bombing Hanoi under any circumstances. He admitted that "we can’t be the policemen of the world."

We have had our fun, now let’s get down to business. All this year CAMPUS COMMENT Board has tried to get contributions of a more scholarly nature. So far we have been wonderfully successful.

The criticism has been made that the paper is not as educational as it might be. (And this was not from the faculty either). As this paper is the leading annual normal school in the country, people could not work of different type and caliber from the school and high school papers. Get busy and write some really worthwhile contributions for us, and surprise the Board.
The football season at Bridgewater State College had never been a very exciting thing. And very few thought 1967 would be any different. There were some mighty big shoes to fill, and few expected that Salem was unable to fill them. Salem had been fairly close. Salem had managed a nine-point lead by the end of the third quarter and was back on the road against powerful Quonset. But the Bears had a new look: a quarterback, Paul Staia, who looked like the Jim Brown of Canton, and a defense that wouldn’t cower. The Bears won 3-1-0 over Quonset. In two games, Salem’s defense had missed 61 tackles offensively while allowing the opposition only 12 points.

1500 fans turned out on a sunny afternoon, October 28, as it was homecoming 1967 and Bridgewater stood on the threshold of a winning season. In the first quarter a fumble was fumbled and a Humphrey conversion made it 7-0. In the second quarter Woodman carried it over from the 1, Humphrey converted and BSC had a 14-0 lead. In the third Staia scored across and Humphrey upped it to 21-0. Within a minute Ralph Robinson personally buried Nihalsa as he broke several tackles and then ran for daylight on his way to a 76-yard touchdo w. Fifteen minutes later it was all over, Bridgewater set atop a 4-1 record. No other team in BSC history had won so many.

But injuries and a psychological letdown came on as the Bears went on the road for their last two games. Bob Lewis, Dan Hennessey, Rick Black, Bob Britt, Jim Fedorino, Leo Fanning, and Ralph Robinson were all injured. In any case the Bears lost their last two games. Even though Bridgewater State College had earned itself a 4-3 record, The 1967 BSC football team is the best in Bridgewater’s history. Among some of the top names who accounted for this were: Humphrey, Woodman, Pedrosa, Clifford, Gazzaro, and Thurston. All on defense. Offense was by downing the Bears Monday night, December 4, by a score of 92-70. Salem featured a real big guy, Bob Cooley, whose 6’8” height gave him Brownie Sam. In fact, by exit 15 in the second half Brownie was out of the game on a foul. Until then Brownie had been fairly close, Salem had managed a nine-point lead by the end of the first half, 9-0. But they had to earn it and Bridgewater looked far from being out of it.

But after Brownie fouled out it was all over. By the 10 minute mark Salem upped its lead to 9, eventually winning by 23 going away.

Bridgewater was really hurting in the line department and as a result it only got that one chance. Whether or not this will be the story for the rest of the season remains to be seen. In any case, Bridgewater State just hasn’t that big man to move on the basket.

On a happier note the freshman basketball team has looked very strong. BSC was able to clear its bench and enter all the people who have been one of the main reasons for BSC’s success, cannot be overlooked. They put it all together this year.

Those who followed Bridgewater State College’s 1967 football team saw a happening that no other people have seen on this campus at any time, ever. It was homecoming and they were not disappointed. Those who continued to follow the program will not be disappointed, for the program will continue to be exciting.

BSC FALLS TO SALEM STATE

Salem State College broke up BSC’s bid for a home opening victory by defeating the Bears Monday night, December 4, by a score of 92-70. Salem featured a real big guy, Bob Cooley, whose 6’8” height gave him Brownie Sam. In fact, by exit 15 in the second half Brownie was out of the game on a foul. Until then Brownie had been fairly close, Salem had managed a nine-point lead by the end of the first half, 9-0. But they had to earn it and Bridgewater looked far from being out of it. But after Brownie fouled out it was all over. By the 10 minute mark Salem upped its lead to 9, eventually winning by 23 going away.

Bridgewater was really hurting in the line department and as a result it only got that one chance. Whether or not this will be the story for the rest of the season remains to be seen. In any case, Bridgewater State just hasn’t that big man to move on the basket.

On a happier note the freshman basketball team has looked very strong. BSC was able to clear its bench and enter all the people who have been one of the main reasons for BSC’s success, cannot be overlooked. They put it all together this year.

Those who followed Bridgewater State College’s 1967 football team saw a happening that no other people have seen on this campus at any time, ever. It was homecoming and they were not disappointed. Those who continued to follow the program will not be disappointed, for the program will continue to be exciting.