Vol. XLIII No. I

See many improvements which have spruced up the glossy fire escapes surrounding the building. Yes, we hear a loud siren and the sound of screeching rubber. Yes, Bridgewater has taken on a new charm and beauty. It is a far different place from the one we entered as freshmen. The director of admissions where we see the admissions office and we find ourselves in the Commuters' Union. The office of the most interesting renovations, a perfectly executed sectioning done in maple wood paneling. This is one of the many improvements which have been made to the building. The student government officers are in the process of informing themselves about the increased enrollment for the fall semester. The idea of increased enrollment is due to the enormous number of freshmen who have chosen to attend Bridgewater College. And the need for careful discussion of all action that we take.

To save time, however, I plan to institute a modified committee system to lighten the amount of management work required by the student government. Several other committees of a more specialized nature, will be established. As previously noted the involvement of the Student Activities Committee was to be in the Kelley Gymnasium on the 13th of September. Tales will be told in the Rotunda for only $1.00. Admission at the door will be $1.50. Take the scene and we guarantee great music.

Yearly Migration
by P.C.F., J. R. Dine

This month millions of American college students like yourself are returning to school. Many of you are anxious about the new Great American Tradition, where men search for truth and wisdom. But along with learning the classics, another burden has been added to your list: It is called growth. Growth of the mind, that is, as you grow in size, a boy becomes a man, and a girl a woman. College life is one of change. They say, 'In every decade, men co-eds around Great Hill, College, the good life, a time to live. The advertisers are right when they say, 'College is that one man's best Friend'. But America has another good friend and that friend is about a million strong. The boy with a woman is no longer a girl in love, I know you are thinking about your clothes, the pretty girl you saw yesterday and the couple of cold beers you are going to save to drink later. But do you ever think about the clean sheets on your bed? They smell fresh and they look clean. You feel good. You really haven't. Because these things are a part of your daily life, they are not foreign. You are secure there they will be there tomorrow. The other American I speak of is not the land of security, nor the stable old country. Why they are America's young people, young Americans. These people have once enjoyed the good life, but they did it themselves. They gave it up. For them the good life is more than buying a new car and living in a suburban tract. Why? Boston is a fascinating city. Old cobblestone streets are slowly giving way to modern highways and skyscrapers. Deserted tenement buildings and crumbling brick constructions are being transformed into ultra-modern apartments and high-rise office buildings. The city is changing, and it is up to the people of Boston to decide how to change it.

The Clement C. Maxwell Library has received a federal grant under the Higher Education Act in the amount of $25,000. This money will be used for books and periodicals in all fields.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The next week will feature profiles and discussions of Hubert Humphrey and Edward Muskie, as well as George Wallace.

Pigs in the Street by Barry Stehr

The riots, police brutality and disruption will continue at the national Democratic convention. Many of the student demonstrators and McCarthyites will support the Humphrey-Muskie ticket. In addition, the effects of certain issues on that campaign, inflation and the Vietnam platform.

Looking back at the Republican convention over the coming week, one suspects the hot button to be Vietnam. The last, and probably the only, bid a bitter "farewell to politics." For Nixon in 1968, the Vietnam question will center on the issue of the war. This year, it will center on the idea of the war. The Vietnam question will provide the backdrop for the Humphrey-Muskie ticket. The Humphrey-Muskie ticket, with its dovish stance on Vietnam, is the only ticket that has a chance of winning in 1968.

The comeback of Richard Milhous Nixon is an American drama of politics. In the Republican Party, he has become the leader of the "old" type of politics. He is the man who has returned the Republican Party to its roots. He is the man who has taken the party back to its basics.

Spiro Who?

By Mark Allen Lee

On the morning of August 9, 1969, the nation was surprised to hear of the sudden death of Spiro Agnew. The news came as a shock to many Americans, who had come to expect his presence in the highest ranks of government. The tragedy of Agnew's death cast a somber shadow over the nation, and left many wondering about the future of American politics.

The media was flooded with coverage of the event, and the story quickly became the top news of the day. The White House announced that President Nixon would be making a statement, and the nation held its breath as he spoke.

President Nixon spoke from the讲台, addressing the nation. He spoke of the loss of a great man, and of the service that Agnew had provided to the country. He spoke of the importance of the office of Vice President, and of the man who had occupied it.

President Nixon ended his speech with a message of hope and support for the American people. He spoke of the strength of the nation, and of the resilience of the people. He spoke of the future, and of the promise that it held.

The nation was moved by the president's words, and the story of Spiro Agnew's death became a symbol of the importance of American politics. The nation was reminded of the role that the Vice President plays in the American political system, and of the importance of choosing a strong and capable leader for the position.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by Leon Weinstein

Well, it’s fall again and the smell in the air is that of falling leaves and sight. Yes, once again the Bridgewater Bears take the grizzles to do battle and add to their game.

This year’s edition to BSC’s coaching staff is head line coach Ed Braun. The acquisition of a full time line coach and trainer has already proved a great experience. For two seasons, the intramural program is a necessity. And giving the team a little support.

The tackles will be Jerry Indelicato and Tom Cook - both are good sized players. The team’s goal is to put up a tough defense and holdovers from their respective positions.

Many of the boys will also be playing defense. Leo Fanning, veteran end, will start for everyone.

This year Bridgewater is fortunate to field a veteran team led by the pass- ing of Captain Pat “Sage” Silva. The stats of the letterman will be returning from last year’s squad, which supported a 6-2 record.

Coach Tom Woudstra and second year captain Charlie Starks - a three year team dependable, told some of the freshmen and other new runners that this year the team was going to develop its full potential by practicing and working hard and as a unit.

To win this year, a heavy prac- tice schedule ranging from 30 to 40 miles of running a week for some would be implemented.

This season’s schedule has three home meets including the September 28th opener against Nichols, the October 26th meet with Fitchburg State, and a four team meet on October 30th against Springfield College.
