TUITION INCREASE DOUBTFUL

Bridgewater - Chances for an increase in the $200 annual tuition for next year are "practically nil," according to Academic Dean Lee Harrington, after the Comment informed him that the Senate-House Committee investigating the possibility of raising the tuition had reported unfavorably on the proposal.

Yesterday afternoon the newspaper contacted the office of the committee chairman, Senator Mary L. Poulsen of Fall River, and was informed that her committee did not favor the bills that are currently in front of the legislature to raise the tuition.

Dean Harrington, who has a large number of contacts in the State House, told the Comment that when a committee reports unfavorably on a bill "almost always" it insulated the defeat when it comes up for a vote in the legislature.

The office of the Senate Clerk was contacted to determine when the vote will come, but as of yesterday no date had been determined. Sometime after next Wednesday, the Comment was told, a definite date will be assigned.

Dean Harrington said a vote could come as soon as next week.

The president of the Massachusetts Senate is Kevin Harrington, cousin of Bridgewater's academic dean, and the Comment questioned Dean Harrington about the Senate President's recent backing of a graduated tuition plan, whereby each family would pay what it could afford.

"I'm against that type of an increase," Dean Harrington stated. "In fact, I'm opposed to any increase in the tuition. I would like to see this state adopt a plan similar to many western states of no tuition. But one thing disturbs me about the 'graduated tuition' bill - that is the possibility of it being sold by those who support it that those who could afford to pay more are somehow getting a break. It's not true, because remember this is a tax-supported institution, and if a man is making $3,000 a year he's going to be paying a lot more than the man who makes only $6,000 a year, so in reality there is and has been a graduated plan in effect. "Now in the question of who gets the benefit, if one were to take the number of students enrolled in the state colleges and universities and multiply it by the number of years this low tuition has been around, it would be plain to see that a great number of Massachusetts families have been and are recipients of the benefits."

Dean Harrington expressed the fear that if a graduated plan were to be put into effect that within a few years this College would have what he termed a "caste system." He explained: "If a graduated plan, and some students paying $1500 a year and some paying only $200 a year, I can foresee those paying the higher amounts demanding things like first choice in classes, etc., and that frightens me. I'm thoroughly opposed to it."

He mentioned that although Senator Harrington is a supporter of the proposals, he has not filed any legislation dealing with it.

Top S.G.A. Positions to Vote

Bridgewater - Elections for the office of President, 1st Vice-President, 2nd Vice-President, Secretary and Assistant Treasurer take place on Monday.

Polls will be open from 9:00 am. to 4:00 p.m. for commuters, with the voting to take place in the lower lobby of the Student Union Building, and the dormitory students from 6:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. in their respective dormitories.

The Comment will come out on Thursday with the results of the election.

The race generating the greatest interest is by far to presidential race, which is between Tom Sullivan and John Wayman. It is regarded now as too close to call, as both are waging hard campaigns.

Running for the second spot in the student government, the office of 1st Vice-President, are Rob Cherrie and Jim Foley. Both are experienced deputies in student government, with Foley having an edge in that he has been a member of the S.G.A. Council for a year longer than his opponent.

2nd Vice-President is an uncontested election. Pat Connelly, from Westport, Mass., is the sole candidate. One other candidate, Mark Lincoln, withdrew from the race.

The office of Secretary is being sought by the current Secretary of the S.G.A., who is seeking another term, James Ilerardo. Her opponent is the Secretary of the Bridgewater Peace Action Committee, Lynn Gardner. Miss Gardner is a sophomore from Bridgewater while Miss Ilerardo is a junior from Canton.

The office of Assistant Treasurer is another uncontested race. Nancy Conolly, a member of the S.G.A. Council for the past two years, is seeking that position. If elected, she will serve one year in that post and then will automatically become Treasurer in her senior year. The Assistant Treasurer of the Council this year, Tony Hopley, has decided not to take it automatic promotion and is expected to announce his resignation this afternoon, effective at the end of this year. If he does so, a special election for Treasurer will have to be held within a few weeks.

The Comment talked with both of the presidential candidates (a third, Frank Cullen, President of the Class of 1972, withdrew from the race Tuesday of this week) to outline what specific proposals each had in mind.

Tom Sullivan told this newspaper that he plans to expand the current staffing of the S.G.A. office with delegates from 8:00 to 4:00 daily, in an effort to reach the student body.

He also wants to see an inflationary set up on a larger basis for a cooperative book exchange, which he explained in detail.

On Wednesday, April 14 the SMU Board of Trustees voted 10-6 not to renew the contract of President Joseph Driscoll once it expires on August 31, 1972. A motion for the immediate renewal or reinstallation of Driscoll was defeated earlier at the meeting.

The trustees reached the decision concerning the controversial administrator during a special meeting held behind closed doors which lasted for five and a half hours. Chairman Richardson informed a reporter that it was the first time in his memory that Driscoll had been barred from a trustee's meeting. Although there was some speculation that Driscoll would appear at the meeting in spite of the fact that he wasn't invited, he did not do so.

The trustees' action comes as the result of long-standing and widespread dissatisfaction with Driscoll on the part of both faculty and students. Among the issues which have sparked disputes at the Dartmouth campus are faculty appointments, tenure, and faculty contracts.

Last June last trustees voted 11-5 to retain Driscoll under a two-year contract at a salary of $30,000. Although Driscoll had wanted a three year contract at a salary of $30,000, he was not pleased with the trustees' decision.

He believes that this action "has helped to run the university on a mathematics and paranoia that has piqued it during the last two or three years." Dr. Richard Fostera has received a pledge of support from the student senate. It is Dr. Fostera who will, as Dean of Faculty, make decisions concerning the hiring and firing of faculty members in the future.

Sack & Long Advocate

The situation of an American soldier in Vietnam was hurtlessly described by Jim Hoft at Tuesday's S.U.C. lecture. The former steeped in the military experience in Vietnam, he was unimpressed by the popular image of the Vietnamese people.

Sack, who took the position of the United States soldier in Vietnam, pointed out that the American soldier is not the only one. Vietnam has its own forces, its own culture, its own language, and its own way of life.

Hofstede explained that the Vietnamese people are not the same as the American people. They have a different culture, a different way of life, and a different language. The American soldier is not the only one who has to adapt to the Vietnamese culture. The Vietnamese people also have to adapt to the American culture.

Chomsky Speaks on Vietnam

Ne Win, Burma's new president and long-standing opponent of the United States, was appointed to the post after the elections, according to the New York Times. "The United States should recognize the legitimacy of the Burma government," Chomsky said in an interview.

Chomsky compared the U.S. affairs in Vietnam to the U.S. relations with the United Kingdom in the 1970s. "The U.S. is using Vietnam as a laboratory for testing and developing the techniques and strategies for aggression to be used against other countries," he said.

Zinno While taking note of the tactic of repression being used, he believes, to intimidate the American people in order to gain their support for the war, he feels that such action will help to end what he considers to be an aggressive war, waged by the U.S. against the Vietnamese people.

Zinno also criticized the American economic system, labeling it both irrational and undemocratic. Large corporations, aloof from public control, are used to control the U.S. economy. Furthermore, the corporate managers comprise the bulk of those who staff the government offices.

Chomsky asserted. There is just no threat to the U.S. which requires that we have a professional army. The U.S. Government, he conjectures, have realized that an army, in effect, becomes a kind of minority in the future, continue to go on the war against the Vietnamese people, and to be controlled by all rather than merely a few.

Chomsky also criticized the American war against Vietnam, saying that it is being used to control the U.S. economy. Furthermore, the corporate managers comprise the bulk of those who staff the government offices. Chomsky said, has forfeited its respect for the American people.

Chomsky believed that the American Government is placing too much emphasis on its military strength and not enough on its economic strength. Furthermore, he also opposes the idea of giving his scheduled talk. Instead, he held a question and answer period.

Letters to the Editor

Put on your best dress, because the office of the university president, which is open to all, should be the last place where the marks of a popinjay can appear, and whose office furniture is used only in social engagements.

The COMMISSION

April 22, 1971

Too often the university is the preserve of those who hold power, and this is one reason why the university is often called the "aristocracy of the mind." The university is a place where the young are trained to become leaders of society, but too often this training is not available to all. The university should be a place where everyone can learn and grow, not just the privileged few.

With love and admiration,

DEPARTMENTS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my concern about the coverage of the current student movement in the media. The student revolution, as they portray it, is a flawed and distorted image. The media, especially television, has given unbalanced coverage that shows only the superficial aspects of the movement.

Student leaders are often portrayed as being radical and confrontational, while the true nature of the movement is far more complex. The student revolution is about the struggle for education, freedom, and democracy. They are fighting against the exploitation of the student body and the military-industrial complex.

I urge you to provide a more balanced and accurate portrayal of the student movement. The students are not just protesting against the war, but they are also fighting for their rights and the rights of all oppressed people.

Sincerely,

John Doe

The Emerging Stereotype

The student image has been changed dramatically over the years. From the 1950s to the 1970s, the image of the student has evolved significantly. In the 1950s, the student was seen as a hard-working and serious individual who attended church, had a good job, and enjoyed apple pie. This image was reinforced by television shows and movies that depicted the student as a model citizen.

However, in the 1960s and 1970s, the image of the student began to change. The student movement emerged, and the media began to portray the student as being wild, rebellious, and uncontrolled. The student was seen as being involved in the anti-war movement, the civil rights movement, and the feminist movement. The student was no longer the model citizen, but rather a radical who was fighting against the establishment.

Today's student image is even more radical. The student is seen as being involved in the alternative lifestyle, the drug culture, and the punk rock scene. The student is no longer the model citizen, but rather a radical who is fighting against the establishment.

The media's portrayal of the student is not only misleading, but it is also harmful. The student is not just fighting against the establishment, but they are also fighting for their rights and the rights of all oppressed people. The media should provide a more balanced and accurate portrayal of the student movement. The students are not just protesting against the war, but they are also fighting for their rights and the rights of all oppressed people.

Sincerely,

Jane Smith

The Bear Tribe

Their way of life, however, is being turned upside down. This summer the Bear Tribe turned heads around the country when elders from the tribe traveled to the West Coast, and many more are working to bring the Bear Tribe's message to the world.

The Bear Tribe's message is that our lives and our planet are in great danger. They believe that we must change our ways of living if we want to survive. They are calling for people to come together to fight for nature and to protect our planet.

The Bear Tribe is a group of people who believe in living a simple life, in harmony with nature. They believe that we must stop using technology and fossil fuels, and instead use natural resources and renewable energy.

The Bear Tribe is growing in popularity, and many people are signing up to become Bear Tribe members. They are holding workshops and meetings across the country, and the tribe has a website where people can learn more about their message.

The Bear Tribe is not just looking for people to join them in their fight for nature, they are also looking for people to help spread their message. They want people to become Bear Tribe members and to help spread their word.

The Bear Tribe is a powerful force, and they are making a difference in the world. They are a group of people who are determined to save our planet and to protect our children's future.

So if you believe in living a simple life, in harmony with nature, then join the Bear Tribe today. Together we can make a difference.

A LOOK AT JOY OF COOKING

Carolyn S. Reardon, Justin, Conn., reports.

JOY OF COOKING author, Joy of Cooking, grew up in a small community in Western Pennsylvania.

It is said she has always been interested in cooking for a living. She started her first cooking course when she was eight years old. Her mother taught her how to make simple dishes and she continued to learn from her mother.

Major part of the positive features were the hard work and dedication of the residents. The residents were always willing to learn and willing to work hard.

As a result, many people have come to know Joy of Cooking as the queen of the kitchen. She has been teaching for more than 50 years and has taught thousands of people how to cook.

Joan has over 140 cookbooks and is now working on her next one. She plans to have it ready by the end of the year.

It opens on your campus; it gives you a chance to interact with people and have a memorable evening with your friends. For those who did not participate, it is encourage
