The "spirits" will be flowing fast and freely this Homecoming weekend. Several events revolving around the weekend's central theme of "Past Eras" will be serving alcoholic beverages, following the recent acceptance of the college's Alcoholic Beverages policy by the Board of Trustees.

The Senior Class will sponsor an "Old Fashioned Beer Blast" on Saturday following the Homecoming Game with Curry. The event will take place in the Student Union Ballroom at 4 p.m. in another area of the building at the same time, the Alumni Association will be hosting the Alumni at a Cocktail Party in Conference Rooms 205, 206, and 307.

One of the major events of the weekend will be the Student Union Program Committee's "Gay Nineties Night." This event will be modeled after an old fashioned beer parlor. The cover charge for the evening will be $1.25 per person. Beer on tap will be $1.00.

mixed drinks will be $1.50. Peanuts in the shell and pretzels will be served at each table. The dress for the occasion will be informal. Those attending the event will be encouraged to deposit their peanut shells on the floor. To further set the mood for the evening, straw hats will be distributed. Music for the festivities will be provided by the popular night club group "The Banjo Stompers."

I.D. Required

Since alcoholic beverages will be served at the event I.D.'s will be required. The only forms of identification that will be honored will be a driver's license or a birth certificate. Identification is not necessary to gain admittance to the ballroom but it is necessary for the purchase of tickets for alcoholic beverages. The same system that was used at last year's homecoming dance will be employed this year. I.D.'s will be checked at the door. Those who may purchase alcoholic beverages will have their hand stamped. Once inside the bathroom there will be no further check of identification cards. Students are not required to show identification to anyone inside the bathroom, other than campus police and then only Bridgewater State College I.D. Cards need be shown (as per college regulations).

The COMMENT asked why all the precautions were being taken. The answer from the S.U. Program Committee was that if the A.B.C. should be present Saturday (as they were last year) the Program Committee does not want to endanger the College's chances of getting a liquor license to do infractions because of age.

MEN INFESTING HILL WOMEN'S DORM

Two meetings were held at Great Hill Dorm last week to discuss the problems of Open House, women's side.

The first, a Proctors' meeting was held Monday night. The problem of unescorted men in the dorm during Open House was discussed. The presence of BSC men visiting particular Great Hill women was not seen as necessarily a problem but the random wanderings of "townies" and other unknowns was generally agreed to be an unwanted aggravation.

A later full dorm meeting was also held last week to make Hill women aware of the problem of signing in unknown men.

Just this last Tuesday a Houseboard meeting was held on Great Hill Women's side. A new policy was announced: one that supposedly will eliminate the problem of unescorted men coming in after curfew.

Four men from lower campus will patrol the halls, lobby and fire doors of the dorm from 3 A.M. to 5 A.M. on weekends. Anyone caught opening the fire doors will be brought before Houseboard and put on dorm probation for one week; a second offense will result in expulsion from the dorm.

Any woman caught signing in a guest she does not know and does not seem to plan on escorting through will lose Open House privileges for a week.

The new policy begins this Thursday night.

With prison reform making headlines, the next lecturer to appear at the Bridgewater State College Student Union Auditorium for its 1971-72 Lecture Series, is one of whom many townpeople and students will want to hear.

He is Tom Murton, who with Joe Hyams, in January 1970, authored a book entitled "Accomplices to the Crime." It is, in the authors words, "not a prison story but a universal story. The prison is the American society of microworld. A study of the way people are manipulated in its rawest form in the prison grants some insight into the deficiencies of the larger world society."

Mr. Murton has a vast background in criminology having worked in positions ranging from jailer through warren to Chief Corrections in Alaska.

His lecture, entitled "Reform or Revolution," is a rude awakening to the cruelty and corruption festering within penal institutions.

He is scheduled to speak at 8:45 a.m., Tuesday, Oct. 19th, in the Student Union Auditorium. The talk is primarily for students, but should there be any empty seats, the public is welcomed to use them. While there is no charge to attend the event, the tickets must be obtained from the Information Desk in the Student Union Building.
When Organic Food Really Isn't

In the summer of 1984, a small store on a very quiet street in San Francisco was confronted by a rather large "Do you ever test any samples from your shelves, largely because they know that they are etc."

When Organic Food Really Isn't

By Rick Mitz

Organic food, so much the vogue these days, many people seem to think, is really the answer to all our nutritional needs. However, I'm afraid that this is not quite true. Organic food is not without its drawbacks, and I'm afraid that I must disillusion many of you who think that it's the ultimate solution to the problem of healthy eating.

Firstly, organic food is often more expensive than supermarket food. While this may be true, it is important to consider the long-term costs associated with maintaining a healthy diet. Organic food is not necessarily healthier than non-organic food, and many of the perceived health benefits of organic food have not been scientifically proven.

Secondly, organic food may be more environmentally friendly, but this is not always the case. Organic farming practices can require more land and water than conventional farming, and the use of organic pesticides can be harmful to wildlife.

Thirdly, organic food may be less accessible to those on a limited budget. While many people believe that organic food is a luxury, it is important to consider the cost of conventionally produced food, which can be just as unhealthy and just as expensive.

In conclusion, while organic food may have some benefits, it is not a panacea for all our nutritional needs. It is important to consider the long-term costs and environmental impact of our food choices, and to make informed decisions about what we eat.
University Year for Action

"University Year for Action" is a governmental initiative aimed at providing a year of service opportunities for students. This program is designed to offer a wide range of positions, from teaching and community development to policy analysis and research.

The initiative encourages students to engage with communities and organizations, offering them the opportunity to gain valuable experience and contribute to societal needs.

Judee Sill

Judee Sill got out on Aschburn in a handful of Athletic Service offices, she decided to try her hand at a few other universities in the area to see if she could find a suitable position there. She was particularly interested in the University Year for Action program, which offers a unique opportunity for students to participate in community service projects.

University Year for Action

University Year for Action is a program that is designed to bring college students to communities that are economically deprived. The program is based on the idea that students from wealthy backgrounds can use their skills and knowledge to help people in need. The students are given an opportunity to live and work in these communities for a year, and they are expected to contribute to the development of the area.

The program also provides an opportunity for students to gain practical experience and to develop their skills. They are given the chance to work with local organizations and businesses, and they are encouraged to use their skills to help improve the community. The program also provides an opportunity for students to gain a deeper understanding of the social and economic issues that affect low-income communities.

The program is open to all students, regardless of their background. It is intended to be accessible to students from all walks of life, and it is designed to provide an opportunity for everyone to contribute to the development of low-income communities.

The program is funded by a variety of sources, including private donations, government grants, and corporate sponsorships. It is run by a non-profit organization, and it is designed to be self-sustaining over time.

The program is designed to be a long-term commitment, and it is designed to be a transformational experience for the students involved. It is intended to be a way for students to make a real difference in the lives of people in need, and it is designed to be a way for students to learn and grow.

The Indianapolis 500 may be over but the trading season in racing never seems to really end. This past week saw the usual activity at the National Hotrod Association (NHRA) offices in Fullerton, Calif., as the teams and drivers prepared for the upcoming season.

The NHRA is the governing body for all forms of drag racing, including pro stock, funny car, and super stock. The organization is divided into several categories, each with its own set of rules and procedures.

The NHRA's National Hotrod Association's (NHRA) first NHRA major event in New England was held on Sunday. The event was known as the New England Dragway, and it featured drag racing and quarter-mile track performances. The event was held on a racetrack located in Enfield, Connecticut.

The NHRA is a popular organization that is known for its high-speed, high-adrenaline racing events. The organization is home to some of the most talented drivers in the world, and its events are attended by thousands of spectators each year.

The NHRA is a regulatory body that sets the rules and procedures for all forms of drag racing. The organization is governed by a board of directors, and it is headquartered in Fullerton, California.

The basketball season may be over but the trading season in just starting. The last major deal of the year came late last week when the New York Knicks completed a key swap with the Boston Celtics. The Cats sent out forward Phil商标 and received guard Wilt Chamberlain in exchange for two future draft choices. The Knicks, who have been dealing away their assets lately, expects Chamberlain to help them put together a playoff team in time for next year's four-year-old lifting. Wilt Chamberlain is a native of the Times Square neighborhood of New York City.

The game was a sellout, but due to the terrible weather conditions and the fact it was the last home game of the year for the Cats, there were only a few empty seats at the two games that made up the series. The Knicks are hoping that the fans will not be surprised at the outcome.

Last night's game was a close one, but the Knicks came out on top with a score of 13-12. The Cats led the game throughout, except for a brief period when the Celtics turned the game around and took the lead back. However, the Knicks were able to comeback and win the game with a score of 13-12.

The Cats are looking forward to the remaining games with the New York Giants, who will be playing in the last home game of the season. The Giants have been struggling lately, but the Knicks are confident that they can come out on top.

As for the future, the Knicks are looking forward to the next season. They have high hopes for Chamberlain and are confident that he will help them put together a winning team. The Cats are also looking forward to the upcoming trading season, as they will be looking to acquire more talent to help them compete in the NBA.

Curtiu to prove tough opposition
