BSC’s hockey team was shaken-up last week when it was discovered that three players on their starting line were ineligible to play. It was found that two of the three players were non-metriculating students—that is they were not enrolled in a degree program, but they were carrying twelve hours in night school. The third ice-man had previously been separated from the college and is presently in night school. He wasn’t in a degree program.

(Hockey Coach Frank Roberts and Mr. Harry Luhman, Man’s Physical Education Director both stated that the ineligibility of the three players had not been known by them. They told the COMMENT that the eligibility lists are usually brought to the Registrar’s Office by Coach Swenson. With Coach Swenson on sabbatical this semester, there was a mix-up concerning the list, Coach Roberts not a faculty member at the college had assumed the list had been taken care of.

Both Mr. Lehman and Coach Roberts described the situation as one of those unfortunate misunderstandings that occur but it was lucky we found out now and not later in the season. It is still uncertain whether the Bears will have to forfeit the four games they won with the three ineligible players. The games in question are with Mass Maritime and one each with Framingham and Roger Williams. The ECAC has been contacted, Coach Roberts stated, but the situation is still under investigation.

Hockey Captain, Paul Napier reaffirmed Coach Roberts and Mr. Lehman’s assurance that the ineligibility of the players had not been known. Captain Napier said that two of the players would be enrolled in a degree program for next semester and back on the team. The loss of the three starters will hurt the Bears, but a bright spot for the team is the possibility of Jay Abbati, last year’s high scorer may return next semester.

S.N.E.A. Recruitment Conference

S.N.E.A. in hopes of alleviating the job crisis, will sponsor a Recruitment Conference, serving on a placement’s advice for seniors, on February 15 and 16. S.N.E.A. will host Superintendents from the New England region, who will interview the prospective teachers for next year. The Conference will allow for the Seniors to meet individually with the Superintendents.

The idea is that S.N.E.A. wants to sell Bridgewater to the Superintendents, in order that our seniors will stand a better chance in the job market. In order to help finance this project, S.N.E.A. is sponsoring a “Faculty Service Auction” on Tuesday, Jan. 4 at 10:30 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Certain members of the faculty have offered their various “services” which will be up for sale at the auction, to the student body. The money raised from the auction will be used to help finance the recruitment.

Our list of professors and services offered is growing. So far we have to offer:

Dr. Dickinson; dinner for two
Prof. Barnett; butler services for a party
Prof. Wolpert; Italian dinner for four (wine, music, and the works)
Prof. Goldsmith; tutoring services in Chemistry
Prof. Wood; dinner for four
Prof. Kent; canoe for two through the Hock-Mock swamp with guide
Stephanie, Secretary in the Education Dept.; will type all papers for half a semester

We hope more professors will offer their services. S.N.E.A. hopes to see a large student turnout for this auction, in hopes of raising enough money to sponsor the recruitment conference.

3000 COLLEGE STUDENTS LAUNCH YOUTH CAUCUS

By Larry A. Van Dyke

More than 3,000 college students from throughout the U.S. have launched a new political movement, calling for the creation of a "youth caucus." The movement is the brainchild of two political activists, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Geller, who have been organizing groups of young people in the United States for several years.

The movement is based on the idea that young people, who make up a significant portion of the population, should have a voice in political decision-making. The students hope to create a network of caucuses that will allow them to unite and advocate for their interests.

The movement has already gained support from a number of celebrities and politicians, who have expressed their support for the cause. The students are hopeful that their movement will gain momentum and become a powerful force in American politics.

LIVING TOGETHER: CO-ED DORMS

By William A. Zipoy

Although many students remain concerned about the issues of co-education, the Co-Ed Dorm movement is gaining in popularity among college students.

About 50% of American universities have introduced plans to create co-ed dorms. The movement is driven by a desire for more opportunities for social interaction and the belief that co-ed living can improve campus life.

Debate continues about the impact of co-ed dorms on the social and academic lives of students. Some argue that co-ed living can lead to improved cross-cultural understanding and opportunities for social interaction, while others believe that it can lead to increased competition and conflict.

Regardless of the debate, the Co-Ed Dorm movement is gaining momentum and is expected to continue to grow in popularity among college students.
3000 COLLEGE STUDENTS LAUNCH YOUTH CAUCUS

by Larry A. Van Dyke

More than 3000 college students, having just launched a new movement to control the power of the country's million-dollar lobby for hunger, say they are ready to encourage the youthful participation of many more students.

National Youth Council, formed from their efforts two months ago at a conference in Los Angeles, has already begun to spread the word among students.

The National Youth Council was conceived at the conference by a group of students who were concerned with the growing number of political issues that are no longer the exclusive concern of the older generation.

"We believe that the youth of this country have a right to be involved in the political process," said one of the founders of the National Youth Council. "We are determined to make sure that they are heard."

LIVING TOGETHER: CO-ED DORMS

by William A. Sievert

Although only a few college campuses have coeducational dormitories, the trend is growing in popularity and in numbers.

About 30 per cent of the American colleges are now offering coeducational housing, according to a study compiled by the University of Michigan. This study shows that coeducational dormitories are gaining in popularity and in number as a housing option for college students.

According to the study, coeducational dormitories are preferred by a growing number of college students. This preference is due to a number of factors, including the desire for social interaction and the desire to live in a more open and inclusive environment.

However, there are still some challenges to be overcome before coeducational dormitories become a more widespread housing option. These challenges include issues of privacy, safety, and the need to ensure that all students feel comfortable and welcome.

Despite these challenges, the trend towards coeducational dormitories is expected to continue as more college students and administrators recognize the benefits of this housing option.

President of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

To the Editor:

We have recently had a number of student complaints regarding faculty members keeping books overdue from the Comment/Campus Library. For the record, we should like to state our policy in regard to overdue books.

Members may borrow only books that are reference books, all books subject to recall if needed. There are no fines levied on overdue books, and we look upon the subject book recall as a service to students. For example, a book may be recalled for use in a classroom session, or a reference book may be needed for research.

We strongly encourage students to report faculty members who fail to return books promptly. However, the library does not desire that levies fines and has control of moneys collected.

Sincerely yours,

Jim Carroll

How to understand the most important part of the POW problem.

Dear Editor,

I have read with interest the recent discussion of the POW problem and I would like to add a few points from my own experience as a former POW.

1. The importance of maintaining a positive attitude.
2. The value of developing coping mechanisms.
3. The role of support systems in recovery.

Yours sincerely,

Promotion Game

1. Get an "A" in student evaluation book (so what?).
2. Participate in a political demonstration while board investigates.
3. Publish three original articles (one without tenure). Don't get me wrong, the promotion game is important, but let's face it: it's unlikely to be the key to understanding POW problems.

Rules:

1. Any number up to 1600 may play.
2. The object of the game is to become Professor Emeritus.
3. Each player flips a coin to determine how many spaces he will advance: Heads—one space; Tails—two spaces. When a player lands on a "Go to Budget Committee" space, he must roll a die to determine the outcome. Possible outcomes are:
   a. Lose a turn while furiously preparing articles for publication.
   b. Rejected this time. Go back to the same square.
   c. Lose one turn during special investigation by the Board.
   e. Fired if untenured. Play the game elsewhere. If tenured, promotion rejected.
4. Anyone who can think of a way to move ahead three spaces at a time should publish it and go straight to tenure.

This 17-21 academic year has been something of an introduction to Glee Club and Choral Join for me. This is my first year as a member of the musical fraternity. I've been exposed to a great deal of music and the performing arts during my time at Harvard, but this is the first time I've had the opportunity to be involved with a group that is as dedicated to the performing arts as Glee Club and Choral Join. I've been impressed with the talent of the members, the dedication to the music, and the camaraderie among the group. It's been a great experience so far, and I'm looking forward to the rest of the year.

KENT STATE CHARGES DROPPED

by Stephen B. Plaistow

- A recommendation from the Attorney General of Ohio to drop the charges against Ronald Brown, the remaining twenty-two enrollees of Kent State, and witnesses, largely on the basis of evidence collected at the May 4th shooting incident.

The charges were dropped for several reasons:

1. The evidence gathered by the police did not support the charges.
2. The statements of witnesses who had been interviewed by police were inconsistent and unreliable.
3. The charges were based on hearsay and speculation rather than on direct evidence.

As a result of the decision, Nicholas' trial had a substantial impact on the Kent State community, as it brought attention to the issues of police brutality, civil rights, and the need for accountability. It also led to a re-examination of the role of the police in violent situations.

WATERCOLORS!

Outdoors, still lifes and portraits by American and European artists will be on exhibition at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday. The exhibition, which is part of the museum's permanent collection, will include works by such artists as Philip Hale, John Singer Sargent, and Edward Hopper. The exhibition will be on view until the end of the year.

LEON RUSSELL & MARC BESINO in Style: Expressions Back Again

Asylum Choir Back Again by Francis H. Smith

Rushmore Choir "1/2" Leon Russell & Marc Besino 15 years ago, April 1965, was Leon Russell's first concert. The Asylum Choir got together and recorded the concert, which resulted in the album "Back Again." The album was recorded at Asylum Choir's studio and featured photos by Mary Shub, who was also present at the concert.

LEON RUSSELL, father of Alfanso Russell, killed at Kent State May 4, 1970.

Leon Russell, with Marc Benno and Mike Tesler, have been assisting on six of them. You can hear Benno in them if you know them. This record is well instrumentally as it is vocally.

GO DIRECTLY TO JAIL: DO NOT PASS GO!

by Rick Mitz

It's not the drab gray hair or the balding problem that gives the impression that the aging president is losing his edge. The true test of a person's wisdom is the ability to judge one's actions. And in so many ways, one's actions are determined by how one feels about those actions. The president's lack of confidence in his own judgment is perhaps the most obvious sign of his declining mental state.

The same logic applies to the president's approach to international affairs. As was so clearly demonstrated in Vietnam, his policy of escalation was not only ill-conceived, but also led to a situation where the United States is now saddled with a military obligation that it cannot afford. The president's inability to learn from past mistakes and to accept responsibility for his actions is one of the major reasons why the country is in such a difficult position today.

I recently had the opportunity to interview the president to discuss his views on international policy. He told me that he believes in the power of negotiation and compromise. I asked him if he thought there was a possibility that the United States could negotiate a settlement with the communist countries. His response was that the United States would never negotiate with the communists. He said, "We will not negotiate with our enemies. We will not give in to their demands."

He also mentioned that he believed in the importance of alliances. He said, "Our alliances are our greatest strength. We will never abandon our allies. We will stand by them in good times and in bad."

In conclusion, I believe that the president is misguided in his approach to international affairs. He needs to learn from past mistakes and to accept responsibility for his actions. Only then will the country be able to move forward and find a way to resolve the current crisis.

CHRISTMAS TIDE, 1971

Christmas has a special poignancy
In this age of separation and alienation....
When young and old, women and men,
Yes, a hundred special groups
Lament their lives and place in things.

This Age of Science and breakthrough is understanding...
Age of Wars and destruction multiplied...
Of growing schism between Man and the Earth
Which gave him life...

This Traumatic Time when Change in a thousand ways
Outspeeds our painful effort to adjust...
We need desperately
To be made whole again.

God has given us His love
As a great and free gift;
He does not negotiate with us...
Receiving and sharing love
We discover our ultimate identity.

Man's institutions, at their best still highly imperfect.
Can radiate the spirit of Christmas.
The ideal college campus is a center
of communication....
Where shared purposes and mutual affection
Bring community to diversity of roles and temperaments.

When such a spirit is at work anywhere
Then surely,
God has blessed us everyone.
