Self Study Day
February 10

BRIDGZEROATER - President Adrian Rouselle recently announced that Thursday, February 10, 1972 will be Self-Study Day. All daytime classes will be suspended on that day in order to allow time for student-faculty discussions of educational problems. The Self-Study Day is being held in conjunction with the College's Year of Self-Study - that is currently being coordinated by the College Self-Study Committee chaired by Professor Joseph DeRocco.

The Self-Study Committee is in charge of the overall organization of the day, according to Prof. DeRocco, while the self-study committees are responsible for organizing and conducting the discussion meetings between the members of the departments, faculty and interested students. Professor DeRocco added that those departments with majors will meet with students majoring in those departments. Department without majors will invite for discussions all students who wish to express their views on matters relating to those departments.

Professor DeRocco told the COMMENT that self-study day has two principal functions: (1) to provide students an opportunity to share with faculty members any opinions and concerns they may have relating to their education at Bridgewater, and (2) to provide departmental self-study committees with information that is vital to the Self-Study Program.

Professor DeRocco commented that this is an unusual opportunity for students to make known to the faculty what they think on such matters of instruction, course offerings, learning conditions, grading, counseling and the like. Professor DeRocco outlined the agenda procedures for the COMMENT. All departments will be furnished with sign-up sheets. Students who wish to participate in a meeting with the department must register on that department's sign-up sheet. The reason for this, according to Prof. DeRocco, is that each department's self-study committee will be able to plan for the number attending. Registration closes at 5 P.M. on Monday, February 7, 1972.

Arrangements for rooms will be made by the department with the Dean DiNardo's office. The department will then post room numbers near their offices so students will know where to report for Self-Study Day.

Professor DeRocco reported that Self-Study Day will begin at 8 A.M. on Feb. 10. Meetings will continue throughout the day as long as members consider them necessary. The meetings will end by 5 P.M.

In large departments with many majors, it may be necessary to divide students registrants into groups for meetings in separate rooms, to keep groups down to a reasonable size. Where that is done, the department's self-study committee will post group assignments and meeting places.

Each group will also have a recorder or secretary, selected by the departmental self-study committee. Professor DeRocco emphasized the importance of the recorder's job. He will keep a record of principal points brought up, votes taken, and proposals made by participants. The information will be used by the department's self-study committee in drawing up their final plan which will be submitted to the College Self-Study Committee in the spring.

Prof. DeRocco supplied the COMMENT with some additional information on the nature of the self-study program. Each department has a self-study committee whose composition is determined by that department, although the final committee is expected to have at least one student. Prof. DeRocco remarked that some committees have not yet been able to find students to serve on their respective committees. Each of these self-study committees is charged with the responsibility of re-examining both the College's and the department's educational goals, programs and processes.

Topics are suggested by the department, the faculty, and the students. Each departmental self-study committee will make a report of its work to the College Self-Study Committee. The tentative deadline in March, a Post report a master report will be submitted to the entire College Chairman DeRocco is shooting for a before the end of the school year as the target date.

Related reports will be received from the President, the Library, Graduate School, Continuing Studies Division, Admissions, the local A.A.U.P. Chapter, and Dr. Herbert Greenwald is coordinating a group of students in the departmental self-study committee to evaluate based on their department’s self-study committee.

In closing, Prof. DeRocco told the COMMENT that the Self-Study Program is an ambitious and difficult project whose success is of concern to everyone. If it is to be successful, it is essential that both students and faculty give it their support and cooperation.

ralph Levesque
Leaving BSC

Assistant Registrar in 1966, Mr. Levesque is a 1961 graduate of R.S.C. He also was a teacher and coach at Memorial High in Middletown. In his fire and one half years at BSC Mr. Levesque has seen many changes. Mr. Levesque recalled that when he first came to Bridgewater, students were locked into what was called Divisional scheduling. Biology majors for example, had all of their classes with all the other Biology majors. Electives were minimal and there was practically no choice in course time. The changing of general education requirements coupled with a strong move to provide more choice to students has resulted in the present situation where almost no students in a college of 2500 students have a great deal of freedom of choice, have options even within the same major. Mr. Levesque commented that he himself had seen many changes in the past twenty years, and he is looking forward to the future.

Tom Walsh Appointed Assistant Registrar

Bridgewater - Mr. Tom Walsh, assistant registrar will be joining the former Academic Dean Harrington at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy as an assistant to academy President Harrington.

When the Comment asked Mr. Levesque what his position at the academy would be, he quipped, "Presidential Whipping Boy". And he added, "Since I had never satisfactorily adjusted to that situation during President Harrington's "Deanship", I readily jumped at the opportunity to avoid myself of both the water air which according to an old sea legend is very good medicine for flagging wongs."

Actually, Mr. Levesque will have an administrative position close to President Harrington's that will involve him with academic areas of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, with matters that affect students, faculty, and administration.

When former Academic Dean Harrington became a candidate for the requirements of the presidency of Mass. Maritime, he treated both fairly and asked Mr. Levesque if he would be interested in a position in the office of the registrar. Upon accepting, Mr. Levesque commented that he would have a great deal of freedom of choice, have options even within the same major. Mr. Levesque commented that he himself had seen many changes in the past twenty years, and he is looking forward to the future.

New Home For Texts

An even semester has begun and, with students coming and going, the bookstore is an interesting place to visit. The Your Brain on Books place is relatively quiet, but the change in place is apparent. Whether or not shoppers are looking for textbooks or other materials, there seems to be an increased interest in the bookstore's offerings.

With the arrive of Mr. Richard Lavallee, the previous bookstore was an intriguing place to visit. The current bookstore setup, as one in the student union (SU), has been made to improve efficiency and service. Under the supervision of Mr. Lavallee, the bookstore has been transformed into a two-store system.

The bookstore now consists of two separate stores, the SU bookstore and the Annex, each handling different types of materials. The SU bookstore, located in the lower lobby of the Student Union, is focused on required texts for the first semester. The Annex, located in the back of the campus, handles required texts for the second semester.

In addition to the new bookstore setup, there are other changes that have occurred during the first week of classes. Lavallee has emphasized the importance of expanding the bookstore's efficiency; he pointed out that the bookstore will have to expand as BSC's enrollment grows.

Mr. Lavallee, who is the manager of the bookstore, said that the new setup will help create a more efficient sales day and new books for second semester. He also mentioned that there will be no exceptions to these rules.

The new bookstore setup is designed to improve efficiency and service. Lavallee stated his desire to cut costs and increase productivity. He emphasized that no refunds on books will be given unless the receipt for the purchase is still intact. He also suggested that students can view the books and determine whether they are satisfied before purchasing them.

With the new setup, students can now buy required texts at the SU bookstore and non-required texts at the Annex. This new system, which utilizes three cash registers working efficiently, will help improve service. Lavallee estimated that the new system would increase efficiency.

Students may be facing a more efficient sales day, but there may be some questions about the new setup. Students may be wondering if the books will be returned or if the system will be expanded to include additional stores. Lavallee assured students that the system will be working efficiently and that the bookstore will continue to provide the same level of service.

Ansevera school has begun and will complete the construction of a new auditorium by December. The auditorium is on the site of the old auditorium. The old auditorium was torn down in order to construct a more modern and efficient facility for the school.

The new auditorium will be used for a variety of purposes, including drama productions, music performances, and other events that require a large space. It will be a significant improvement over the old auditorium, which was located in a different part of the campus.

The construction of the new auditorium is part of a larger renovation project at Ansevera school. The school is committed to providing its students with the best possible educational environment, and this new auditorium is a key component of that effort.
