Dr. Moore Leaves BSC

Chairman of the Anthropology Department and Divisional Director of Behavioral Sciences, Dr. Moore, will be leaving BSC this Sunday to return to his home in Provincetown, Mass. This move was announced on Page 2 of the Chronicle. Dr. Moore will be teaching at Hamline University as a biology major. He has worked his way through school by performing as a singer and drummer on radio and in nightclubs and giving voice lessons in a studio he shared with an artist. Gradually, he was drawn into sociology and was working on his dissertation on juvenile delinquency when he was interrupted by World War II.

During the War, he served three and a half years in the South Pacific. Nineteen months were spent in New Guinea, where he was part of a force known as the "Guion Rats." With his skill in engineering, he worked on replacement docks. He was also stationed in the Philippines, New Zealand, and Okinawa. This brought him into close contact with the natives which set the stage for his new interest, anthropology. After the war, he decided to postpone his dissertation and took up studies under Melville Herskovits. His pre-doctoral studies were made on Jamaica. He received his PhD in anthropology in 1942.

His studies, essentially in applied anthropology and cultural anthropology, have taken him to distant corners of the world. Dr. Moore did regional research in planning in Africa, in such countries as Liberia and the Ivory Coast. He has headed many teams, which have studied Mexico and Central America. In addition, Dr. Moore has done much work in the Southeast Asian countries on social and cultural educational needs. On many of these trips he has been accompanied by his wife, Shinya Moore.
