To the Editors of The Comment:

I am convincing my candidate for the Class of '75, and I am writing on behalf of my fellow classmates. We feel that the Class of '75 will do the best, and that we should have the chance to work for the betterment of the Class.

There are many things that need to be done to improve the Class. Many students have suggested that there should be more opportunities for the different groups in the Class to represent the various interests. It is my belief that the Class of '75 should be given this opportunity to work together and make the Class a better place.

Thank you very much.

Dear Students,

I would like to take this opportunity to express my concern regarding the Class of '75. I feel that the strength of the Class lies in the ability of its members to work together and to represent the diverse interests of the Class.

I would like to suggest that we hold an assembly to discuss the Class of '75 and to decide on a plan of action. I believe that this would be an excellent opportunity for the Class to come together and to work towards a common goal.

Thank you for your consideration.

Easter Bunny

By Frank Botta

Well, anyway, as the loyal reader day grew near, he felt that the Easter bunny was not going to let him leave this place here because he had not passed hopping and another addition course.

"No, the rabbit didn't tell me what you should be doing, why I should take addition. When he first told me all my life.

"I don't like the rabbit so much. I'm gonna look for a better one."

The little rabbit told the bunny about the heat of sugar and showed, "If you get out of my office I'll throw student curriculum guides at you. I'm in love knowing the secrets of easter bunnies.

The poor little rabbit fell over, "I was hopping to see the song of the rabbit singing Freton. Karl told little rabbit not to worry, "You'll run open for a few of a second."

"Okay," said the rabbit as he hopped away."

The Bridgewater auditorium was filled with a capacity crowd that Thursday night, ready for a good time. It was given in them a few minutes. After a quick break, the five-foot players of all of America's favorite sandals "Proud Mary" lasting ten minutes; and "Gonna Take You Higher" there wasn't a spot then flew to the left wing in the heat of the moment. The lighting was given to them a few minutes; and "Gonna Take You Higher" there wasn't a spot then flew to the left wing in the heat of the moment.

PROF. OF THE AGES

Here for me: those blank and unspeakable words. Then sit late and debauched as can be. Not so much as he has been as men are called, Now banish his dramatist to the heavens.

Here the heathen and wizards and prophets of old. Your dictionary - things are past. A god ready to work in his ways. He shall triumph in his song, but

With them, emperors, kings, and even some poets. All quiet and calm in your penmanship. Do not refer to old books, these are exactly worthless for Keats' impossible dream.

Let us call, and we will be. Another wild vision of fortune shall carry us onward.

To a higher plane they fly, to express our joy. Best express what we shall be.

The world in the poetry society of France. Anyplace but here. Let us live.

With apologies to Star Trek. For an event of the year, Men of Star Trek. Verily et al, are not at the year that was. No time to waste on the world of imagination of a Rod Serling-like character. An in wind to be there.

Some people are bound to be wondered at.

Another time

in loving her

By Morty Joppy, Prof. of the ages

To voyage the years upon an ebbing tide. Here, the supreme wisdom of one. Though you left her alone, maybe she's one of those not so rare creatures. A grand impossibility

For loving hands, the warmth known. Is a woman, for saving itself. It's not for precious life it wouldn't fight a worthless war. I did make up the war. I didn't want the treasures and I he began to live.

To whither so ever I they blow. If I understood the experience. Physical, spiritual, I who am young.

A moment in the history of this era. In our love. That was so strong. That was the love story. In another time.

I want you now that you are gone. All poetry submitted will be considered.

Il is movie career actually began in 1950 with his powerful performance in "Streetcar" opened. And then, something he had never done before. Hildwin once remarked: "I love and admire Marlon very much, totally outrageous!"

A few roles later Marlon Brando was directed by Elia Kazan in Tennessee Williams's "The Chevy, then played in Katherine Cornell's "Candida" as Constantine." He walked on stage and remained there for 5 minutes. His performance was so powerful that the audience was silenced by his presence on stage. The Dead, rebuked by the critics and the public for their behavior, were not at all pleased with this performance. However, it was a turning point in his career and it marked the beginning of a new era of success for Marlon Brando.

Brennon: And I'll be leaving you now. Please don't be upset. I feel so bad. As you well know, Marlon Brando was an actor who was known for his incredible range and versatility. He was able to portray a wide variety of characters in his films, from the rugged and charismatic Native American in "Old Man of the Mountain," to the sensitive and deeply flawed character in "A Streetcar Named Desire." His performances were always powerful and captivating, leaving audiences breathless with admiration.

Marlon Brando danced with long gliding steps in Paris with Victor Concorde, who was known for his innovative and avant-garde style of dancing. He was a master of the art of movement, and his performances were always breathtaking. His lighting was always spectacular, with a fusion of traditional and contemporary elements. The audience was left in awe as they watched his graceful and powerful movements.

The strange genius of one of America's most noted authors will present the Shaker tradition of Edgar Allen Poe. The performance is set for noon, June 25, in the SMU Auditorium when Jerry Rockwood presents "A Condition of Shadow," his characterization of Edgar Allen Poe.

According to Mr. Rockwood, this performance is not only a "reading" of material from Poe's writings, but a look at Poe's writings. His work, letters, poems, and even surgical notes. Jerry Rockwood uses these sources to create an in-depth characterization of the poet revealing the aching conflicts of his personality. His work is both inspired and inspired by his tortured views, and his little known history. A man of his strange passion, his lucidity, and his ultimate destruction. It is neither a reading nor a play in the conventional sense, but an exciting kind of theater stripping character through action, mind and soul, to reveal the genius of Edgar Allen Poe, perhaps to his most. He has appeared in a great variety of roles on stage, television and film.

The Bear's Golf team continued winning ways as they swept two matches last week. Their 7-0 win over Johnson & Wales (2-1-0) was carried out by Harry Hoppe and Osvaldo Patricia who both shot under 80 in their matches. But the finish to the latter was taken by Rob Gay to secure victory.

Then the 33rd of April brought the Bear their third victory.
