Finnigan Changes Mind

by Ann Hackenson

It happened! The unexpected and the unsuspected woman actually affected student appreciation. The Canoe Club served as Pandora's Box when it was opened on the evening of Saturday, November 7th. The annual Kick-off party held at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union was to be for an evening of drink and merriment. Two hours were granted to dispense beverages for all tastes. 'Tell me it's all right,' Ann Hackenson mused as she wondered if Bill's change of heart had been made to please the students or to meet the will of the people in their university. Bill had reversed his decision and allowed admittance to all. "It's happened! It's happened," he exclaimed and his face blushed with pride. "Whatever the reasoning may be, I'm sure the students will be gratified." He was correct - students were elated by the unexpected change.

"I'd like to think that Bill's change of heart was due to the students' protests, but I'm not sure," Ann Hackenson admitted. "It could have been a spontaneous decision, or perhaps it was the pressure from Senator Kelly, who had been speaking against the cuts. Whatever the reason, it's a change for the better." She continued, "It's happened! It's the unexpected. It's the unexpected because it's not always what we expect." She paused, "It's the unexpected because it's always unexpected. It's the unexpected because it's always unexpected." She smiled, "It's the unexpected because it's always unexpected. It's the unexpected because it's always unexpected."

Alas, SPIRIT

Homecoming is, traditionally, a day college students and alumni look forward to with much anticipation. This year's festivities, however, were marred by a strike against the Board of Trustees. The strike was a protest against the Board's decision to cut faculty salaries by 5%. The strike was led by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) chapter at Bridgewater State College (BSC), and the lower tax bracket resulting from the strike was a significant factor in the decision to strike.

The strike was an unprecedented event in the history of BSC, and it had a significant impact on the college community. The strike forced the cancellation of many events, including the Homecoming weekend, which is traditionally one of the most anticipated events of the year. The cancellation of Homecoming was a blow to the college community, which had been looking forward to the event with great excitement.

However, despite the strike, the college community remained strong and resilient. The students and faculty continued to work together to ensure that the college community remained connected and engaged. The strike was a reminder of the importance of the college community and the need to work together to support each other.

In conclusion, the strike against the Board of Trustees was a significant event in the history of BSC. It demonstrated the strength and resilience of the college community and the importance of working together to support each other. The strike was a reminder of the need to be aware of the impact of decisions on the college community and to work together to ensure that the college community remains strong and resilient.

Dear Fellow Members:

This will bring you up to speed on the budget situation as of this morning, November 10, 1975. This past Saturday, November 7, Governor Beksha signed the State Budget for Fiscal Year 1976 as submitted by the Legislature.

Although written notifications of the specific budget for Briarcliff Manor College has not yet been received, telephone communication with officials indicates an approved budget for the College will be $6,939,800, which represents a decrease of $528,877 from the 1975-76 year's operating budget of $7,468,677.

It is important that we understand the relationship of the current budget situation to the discussions we have had in the past months, this budget will not make it necessary to release any

by Elaine Bells

Miss Maureen Fitzgerald, head of Residence Halls, has one of the toughest jobs on this campus. Being in charge of what goes on in the dorms is a massive task that is constantly changing. Miss Fitzgerald was just graduated from Bryant College where she received her B.S. in Education. For the next 3 years she taught high school. Then she came to Bridgewater State where she taught her master's and at the same time was a house leader. In her final year, two years of high school teaching followed this. In her final year she was named Head Resident Assistant of BSC and in 1970 she was named Resident Assistant of BSC.

Remaining in contact with Bridgewater since her graduation, Miss Fitzgerald heard about the open position of Head of Women's Residence Halls. She put in her application and also had an interview with President Haskell. A few weeks later she received a phone call from President Haskell informing her of her acceptance for this position. What Miss Fitzgerald has to do is not easy. In thead of Residence Halls do? She's in touch with all the happenings in the dorms. All the residents report her to be a fair, honest, and the function of the dorms. She works with her RA's and dorm officers for the safety and welfare of the dorms.

Fasting programs are often started to raise money for a cause. Students and community groups, as well as individuals, are organizing both to fast and to direct their funds and attention to the growing inequalities of worldwide food distribution. Calories, tea, fruit juice or bread may be taken but no solid food. This week, diet included: 12 p.m. - one apple; 6 p.m. - one orange. Participation is optional. All the food collected will be donated to the Pantry and Shared. Meals will be held as usual.

Student Suicide Stalks Nation's Campuses

Cynthia Crossen

If a person should ever feel a whole life of possibilities shriveling before him, it is during his days in a college student. For many students, college days are a time of independence and freedom - 'like any other or after, and the college degree, while so long a promise of success, still means a good chance at it.

But every year, at least 20 students first college life or in generation to understand that the end of their lives. At least 20 percent of the students suicides, the second highest figure of students, committed suicide during the past decade and a half. One (or Harvard psychiatrist believes the suicide rate correlates with events on campus, and the quieter the campus is, the worse. "When the campus is quiet - people are more involved in academic issues. When there are only individual cases of suicide, you're more concerned. But when you have a whole cluster of suicides, you'll see that suicide is never really isolated."

According to psychologists and suicide researchers, workers find suicide rates on many campuses today, the rate of suicide among college students between 1974 and 1981 was 19.8 per 100,000. The rate of suicide among college students is now about 11 per 100,000, or 2.1 percent of the population. This is a significant increase from the 1970s when the rate was about 7 per 100,000, or 1.3 percent of the population.

There will be a staff meeting of The New Hard Times Press publications on Tuesday, November 18th at 6 p.m. in the lobby of Horace Mann Auditorium, Boyden Hall to discuss future plans for our bi-weekly tabloid publication, The Hard Times. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

2 bucks off.

The serene beauty of a New England river, the sound of rushing water, the rustling of leaves in the breeze. It's a perfect setting for a lazy afternoon. But what if you suddenly feel like you can't take it anymore? What if you feel like you need to escape the world around you? That's what happened to a college student named Tom. He was feeling overwhelmed by his studies and had started to lose hope in his future. He decided to take his own life.

The problem is that college students are not the only ones struggling with mental health issues. Many people struggle with depression, anxiety, and other mental health concerns. It's important to recognize the warning signs and take action to get help. If you or someone you know is struggling with mental health, please seek help immediately.

Outward Bound, 3½ weeks of becoming yourself: Like it or not.

"I was prepared for the body part of the Outward Bound trip, but I was surprised at what it did to my head.

"I guess, in a sense, Outward Bound has taught me that I am me. A person with limits and fears and frustrations that can be overcome by myself, and with help from other people."

The bruises and the blistered hands were all worth it. So far, Outward Bound has been the most important 25 days in my life.

"Thunder" Rolls at Plymouth

By Sue Lawson

As far as namingropping goes
The Rolling Thunder Revue
has been taking more than its share of media scrutiny. Of course it hasn't reached that status totally on its own and, as the roll call of stars is repeated ad nauseam, we're all exposed to the same names floating around the marketplace.

The Rolling Thunder Revue, quietly, stalked upon the unsuspecting community in which it has to this point existed and was not noticed.

With publicity as minimum as possible, some tendrils and word of mouth at most, it always elicits a word-of-mouth response. It may be because of the interaction. Temperatures probably only increase when one stops toeing in the footsteps of the Rolling Thunder Revue...

On November 21st the Boston Repertory Theatre wi11 open previews of its new comedy, "Harper" at the State House Theatre. Gardner Brecker, the play emperor on Boston's newest theater (the Steel House Theatre), will be staging the production. Brecker is known for his flair for marketing, attention to detail, and his ability to create a buzz where none existed before. The play features a strong cast, including newcomer John Slattery, who is making his debut on the Boston stage.

Theatricals are由...- by...---. In the meantime, as the excitement builds, gardiner brecker's approach to marketing is beginning to show. In July the show will have its debut in Las Vegas, and the buzz continues to grow.

The show is being billed as a "broadway musical" and appears to be a departure from the typical "broadway show". With a budget of $3 million, the producers are aiming for a "ulosive" appeal to a broad audience.

Mr. Brecker is known for his innovative approach to marketing and promotion. With a strong track record in producing successful shows, he is confident that "Harper" will be a hit. The show features a talented cast, including established performers as well as up-and-coming talent. The plot follows the story of a young woman navigating the complexities of life in the 1960s.

Imagine the intrigue and the folly... This is only the beginning of a journey that promises to be both entertaining and thought-provoking. With a mix of humor and pathos, "Harper" is sure to captivate audiences and make waves in the theatrical world.

As the opening night approaches, anticipation builds. The cast and crew are working tirelessly to ensure a flawless performance. The set design is a feast for the eyes, with intricate details that transport the audience to a bygone era.

The music is a standout feature, with a blend of classic and contemporary tunes that complement the story perfectly. The sound design is top notch, with each element of the sound design working harmoniously to create an immersive experience.

As the curtain rises, the audience is immediately drawn into the world of "Harper". The performances are outstanding, with each actor bringing their unique voice to their role. The chemistry between the cast members is evident, and the audience can't help but be captivated.

With the curtain falling, the audience is left with a sense of wonder and admiration. "Harper" is a show that will be remembered for years to come.

As the show winds down, the audience is left with a sense of satisfaction and contentment. The "Harper" experience has been one of the most memorable evenings in theater history.

As the final notes fade, the audience is left with a sense of anticipation for what the future holds. With "Harper" setting the bar high, it's clear that gardiner brecker is a force to be reckoned with in the world of theater. The future looks promising for gardiner brecker and his team, and we look forward to seeing what they will bring next.

Endnotes:
1. "Harper" is being hailed as a "broadway musical" with a budget of $3 million.
2. The show features a talented cast, including established performers as well as up-and-coming talent.

The Bruins Trade?

By Joe Stilt

No way. Just don't trade possibly the greatest goal scorer of all time. Unless you have been doing your favorite impersonations on Big Van Winkle, you are not aware of the blockbuster trade made last Thursday night. It is when the Bruins traded Phil Esposito and Carol Vadnai to the New York Rangers for Brad Park, Jean Ratelle and minor Bryanures. to be major league players. Joe Zanussi from the Providence Reds was a trade that had to be made according to Harry Shvath. To shake up the team? For the purpose of cleaning house? That's exactly why the Rangers have traded or given away Glenn Courtnam, Viliams, Sanderson, and now Ratelle and Park within the last couple of weeks. Have you guys ever tried to stop Phil Esposito? They have been doing that for three years now. Esposito is a better two-way player than Ratelle and Park but has a little edge over Vadnai in defense. Besides the B's do not need another high scoring defenseman. There is only one. Phil Esposito has been an iron man for Boston since the last time he played under 16 games in a season. It is only 8 years since Jean Ratelle had a string of 3 years recently when he played under 20.

10/16/1975 Joe Zanussi is the key in the trade. The 30 year old player was the All's best defenseman last year scoring 32 goals for the Providence Reds. Of course as Roy Fitzgerald noted in Mon- day's Globe, the news of Zanussi's transfer may have hit Greater Boston with all the impact of a bucket bouncing off a stone wall. Except that Providence will miss him. All players involved in the trade were shocked of the news. Vadnais or first would not request. Last week was thinking of retirement. Esposito did not like the way he was told of the trade. And so on. Reading of course is a facet of life is the professional league. It was funny however when Zanussi said, the way things are going, with Vadnai not reporting, Esposito here and Ratelle talking about retirement, I may be the only one left in two weeks. It is like this guy already but I still would not make the trade. Trading possibly the greatest goal scorer of all time is like putting water in a Habitant soup...You mustn't ever.

Bits and Pieces in Sports

By Joe Stilt

Hockey brutality is choking the game. Starting back in January and the beginning of October the Flyers and NYR'cs had been charging recently with assault in a fight with Brian Graham. Frank Callaghan, Deputy Attorney- General of Ontario, said Maloney was in court in Toronto December 1st charged with assault accusing bodily harm. The NHL said it planned no action against Maloney, if he did. This just is not hockey. Bobby Hull hit one man on the head with a hockey stick. I sit and listen to reports about what is going on. The other night in the Pittsburgh Penguins coach accused Fred Borel, coach of the Flyers, of whipping his bench as a lesson. When will it end? Probably when somebody dies...The Rangers are sending two hockey teams over this winter. Their two best moves, Central Army and the Soviet Russas. Each will play four NHL teams in mid December and early January. The Bruins will play Central Army January 8 in Boston... And Dan owner Tom Yawkey when asked who he would choose he had said since he bought the club in 1933, he an- nounced Carl Yarremoto... Jim Palmer was an easy winner over Catfish Hunter. In the season for the third time... There is no reason to think Joe Zanussi is the key to the trade. The 30 year old player was the All's best defenseman last year scoring 32 goals for the Providence Reds. Of course as Roy Fitzgerald noted in Monda- "GAH'S Globe, the news of Zanussi's transfer may have hit Greater Boston with all the impact of a bucket bouncing off a stone wall. Children's Physical Development Clinic

by Dayle Rockwell

Saturday morning, sleepy eyes hung heavy on heads as silence fell, building up of equipment. All looking forward to the positive reinforcement of coffee and doughnuts, just, of course, to put things in the right perspective. This is the early morning start of the Children's Physical Developmental Clinic in the Slavy Gymnasium and Foot at Bridgewater State College.

It begins in the spring of April and has gone strong for over a year under the direction of Dr. Joseph H. Huber, a member of the Health and Physical Education Dept. Structurally, the clinic is composed of 50 college students, undergraduate and graduate, mapping in Health and Physical Education, Special Education, and Psychology. These students volunteer their Saturday mornings to the most important part of their college experience - the special needs children it serves. Each child is a very vital part of the clinic, all with different developmental disabilities and needs, but all possess the one outstanding special quality - each child brings with just their presence the ability to bring joy to the college students into a unity of love, understanding, companionship, and hope that manifests itself so strongly it is difficult not to be taken in by it.

The clinic operates three weeks of each semester. It is hoped that in Fall of this semester will be put into operation. Each Saturday, the program begins at 7:30 A.M. with the setting up of equipment. One by one, 30 clinicians wander into the gym. Half of them still seem half awake, and a few not really sure who they are. Dr. Huber is always good for a few inspiring remarks on everyone's capabilities as well as the share of doughnuts come 6:30. At 8:00, there is a guest speaker. Each week Dr. Huber invites professionals from various fields associated with adapted physical education to come to the gym.

These sessions prove to be very interesting as well as informative. This semester, talks have been given by a social worker, a school nurse, a physical therapist, and an adapted physical education expert.

At 8:30, the clinic divides into groups, each headed by a student supervisor. These students are usually seniors who have previously been in the clinic and are now given a chance to experience the administrative aspect. It is hoped that this experience will provide them with the knowledge to enable them to set up their own adapted physical education clinic in the future. At 8:45, each clinician meets with the parents of their child to discuss the day's activities and make suggestions for the program to be carried out at home. Parental involvement is also a vital aspect of the clinic for it provides a better understanding of each child's needs and a chance of the estimation of developmental programs at home. Dr. Huber also conducts parents' meetings the opportunity to meet and discuss problems and provide feedback as to what they feel the clinic is doing right or wrong for their child.

One of the main goals of the clinic is to improve the total fitness of all children with special needs through carefully planned and individually developed activities.

Physical development is a major aspect of the clinic but it is also designed to produce an environment that will stimulate the social and emotional aspects of a child's personality.

These groups prove to be valuable in providing important and necessary interaction and feedback between clinicians and their child in the lobby of the gym. The clinic's purpose is to set a new basis, although there is a general activity set up for all to participate in. Between 11 and 12 are two hour long sessions in the pool and in the gym. During this time, each clinician works with his or her child toward the objectives he has set. These objectives may be in the physical, social, or emotional developmental areas. Equipment lending is an important aspect of each child's needs.

The clinic operates three weeks of each semester. It offers a chance to help everyone else and is served on a rotating basis.

At 11:00, each clinician meets with the parents of their child. A band in the dinner, and you can enjoy this fabulous week with a buffet dinner fabulous week with a second buffet dinner.
