Power Failure Hits College

On Tuesday, May 10, 1977, at approximately 8:30 p.m., BSC's lights went out. Not only was the College left devoid of electrical power, some 500,000 people in College left devoid of electrical power. Some 500,000 people in Connecticut were affected by the power failure.

In retrospect, our eight hours of black out will hold interesting memories for many students and faculty. The Hill are reported to have been slightly less cozy, yet despite rumors that we would be cut off. They stayed on, working and paper and plastic dinnerware was used. Candles and lamps helped to lighten the dining hall as well as flagging spirits. Conditions at the library were cancelled due to the power outage.

No doubt the blackout will hold interesting tales and stories. We may even have promoted a sense of "we're all in this together"-ness. No doubt the question, "Where were you when the lights went out?" will prompt much asking of the age of the student.

The Ellen M. Shea Award: Martha Denison Rondileau. The Mathematics Award: Peter J. Moores.

The Class of 1942 established the Lasker Award, which lite appears to arise wherever the conditions permit. Yet the Jaffe Award; Mount Sinai Medical Science and Mathematics, at 697-1. The Class of 1942, along with the American Tobacco Company, has named in honor of a former distinguished professor of biology, who is now our problem.

Four of the five awards will take as his topic "Life in the Universe." The development, differentiation, and life that now foster endless possibilities basic, others' seeming inevitable, given enough time. The very science and technology that have taught us to change the course of nature now our problem.

What is an Athlete?

Between the individual and the promoter or coach, the student-athlete is caught in the middle. She comes in different colors, in different speeds, and in different positions. She is an athlete, and they have one thing in common. They play with passion and dedication. But she is also a student, and she has responsibilities that she must fulfill.

Athletes can be found everywhere. You may see them running, jumping, climbing, swimming, or playing sports. They are individuals who have made a commitment to their sport. They are not just athletes, but also students who have a purpose in their lives.

For her coach, an athlete is a five-day-a-week employee, a body to be looked after, and a dream to be come true. But this is not the case with all athletes. There are athletes who are not given the same opportunities. They may have financial difficulties or other issues. It is up to the coach to ensure that the athlete is treated fairly.

Fabric Dance

Three self-contained dances -- an energetic start with balls, a lively trio with chocolates, and a large group dance with drums and banners clearly demonstrated that the strength of English Farces lies in its group dance, which is a hallmark of the genre. The lighting, props, and costumes are designed to express the audience's moods, and the Final Frontier dance, which arranged the audience in a circle, was particularly effective. The finale, a huge group dance, was accompanied by the music of a large group of people, and the audience was left with a feeling of unity and joy.

Tennis Finishes Undefeated

The tennis team ended its spring season with a trip to Connecticut competing against two rivals, Quinnipiac College and University of New Haven. Bridgewater has had little success in the past against these schools, and the van left campus Friday morning full of eager yet anxious players. Good humor helped ease the tension while intense matches improved concentration.

At Quinipiac, dark thunder clouds loomed above as the match began. About one hour later the downpour began but not until Rich Segal, Joe McDermott, Tom Nieva, and Mike Cobb led captured singles victories. One match short of defeat, coach Bert Kahn of Quinnipiac admitted it would be impossible for his team to win.

The scores confirm this prediction.

1. Mike Cobb (won) 6-3, 7-5
2. Tom Nieva (won) 6-1, 6-0
3. Bob Harrington 6-2, 2-3 (rain)
4. Jeff O'Connell 6-1, 4-6 (rain)
5. Rich Segal (won) 6-2, 6-1
6. Joe McDermott (won) 6-2, 6-3

With just one match left, the team retired to a quiet motel to prepare for U. New Haven Saturday morning. This year's team has a well balanced line up which takes a lot of pressure off each individual. If one player is having a bad day, the rest can compensate. Teamwork is the basis of our success, the added pressure shows your teammates' faith in your performance. The van left campus with hope for even more victories.

Power Failure Hits College

On Tuesday, May 10, 1977, at approximately 5:00 a.m., BSC's lights went out. Not only was the College left without electrical power, some MBLD models in the maintenance department of northern Rhode Island and parts of Connecticut were left without power.

According to officials of Mass. Electric and Eastern Edison, the power failure was attributed to damage caused to power lines and transformers by the high winds.

Despite the failure, life at BSC went on surprisingly well, with mass numbers of people using the electric lights of the library. Some classes were able to hold their usual classes, while others had to cancel class and travel to different locations.

The power outage also forced the cancellation of several classes and events, including the annual Power Failure Day. However, the students were able to come together and enjoy each other's company, with many classes and events held outside to take advantage of the pleasant weather.

Although the exact cause of the power failure has not yet been determined, officials believe it was due to damage caused by the high winds. They are currently working to restore power as quickly as possible.

Power Failure Day was cancelled, but the students were able to come together and enjoy each other's company, with many classes and events held outside to take advantage of the pleasant weather.

In the meantime, BSC has activated its emergency plan, which includes providing generators to power essential services such as the library and residence halls.
