Chief Graca wants to implement "Campus Watch" at Bridgewater State College

By T. Michael Robertson

The SGA at Bridgewater State College recently introduced the concept of "Campus Watch," a program designed to encourage students to report crimes and suspicious activities on campus.

Graca commented that "a whistle might scare someone into thinking twice before they commit a crime," and that "a whistle program" could be "a good idea to prevent a crime in the first place." He also noted that "some people" might "hesitate to report a crime," and that "a whistle program" could help overcome this reluctance.

Graca stated that "the police department has been planning a program" for several years, and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention." He added that "the police department has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention," and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention.

He added that "the police department has been planning a program" for several years, and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention." He also noted that "the police department has been planning a program" for several years, and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention.

The program was praised by the SGA, who noted that "the program is working," and that "the police department has been planning a program" for several years, and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention." Graca stated that "the program is working," and that "the police department has been planning a program" for several years, and that "the SGA has been looking for a way to involve the students in crime prevention.

Dear Editor,

There is a bias for the young and an overemphasis on the educational system. My son is four years old and he is in kindergarten. I would like to point out that the kindergarten teacher treats her students as if they were college students. She loves them so much and the most important part of the day is the story hour. In my opinion, the kindergarten teacher is responsible for this. She always says that the children are very important. The kindergarten teacher is responsible for this. She always says that the children are very important.

Terrible Hearing

To the Editor,

I have been hearing impaired for the past five years. It's been a difficult time for me, but I am beginning to adjust. Last week, I attended a concert at the local college. While the music was wonderful, I was unable to hear most of the lyrics. I asked a friend who was sitting next to me if they could help me understand what was being said, but they were also having trouble hearing. I think more than one person was experiencing hearing problems. It's frustrating to attend events where I can't hear the music.

Sincerely,

Election Forum

Open Forum: Election 78

By Susan M. French

Dear Editor,

The election is just around the corner. I wanted to express my thoughts on the candidates running for office. While there are many issues at stake, I believe that it's important to support candidates who share our values. In particular, I am concerned about the environment and believe that we need to take action to protect it. I encourage everyone to vote thoughtfully and carefully.

Sincerely,

Internships: Experience and Credit

by Sue Arul

Do the work at a radio station, work for the Massachusetts Department of State Registrar of Voters, or work for a credit union. These are the three types of experiences that non-senior students have had this semester. The last type of experience also involves credit, which is earned from an internship.

Students may choose to work for the Massachusetts Department of State Registrar of Voters, where they are paid and work. Internships are an opportunity to examine different fields of work.

Junior and Senior students have had the opportunity to work in a variety of fields, and have received credit for their work. These experiences have been valuable to students, and have helped them to decide on a career path.

The Massachusetts Department of State Registrar of Voters offers internships in various areas, such as voter registration, elections, and voter education. Interns work on projects related to their field of study, and gain valuable experience.

Students have the opportunity to work with different people, and learn about different aspects of their field. They are able to gain valuable skills and knowledge, and may be able to work in their field of choice.

Students interested in working in the Massachusetts Department of State Registrar of Voters should contact their advisor or the Registrar of Voters office to find out more information about internship opportunities.

Mass hysteria: suicide prevention seminars, mental health crises; neurotic symptoms—yes, it’s happening. Some people are already in trouble. (5 of 5 columns)

If there’s a problem, it’s in the way our society deals with mental illness. The Massachusetts Department of State Registrar of Voters has announced that they will be offering seminars on suicide prevention.

Suicide prevention is a serious issue, and the seminars will be held to help people who are struggling with mental health issues. The seminars will be held on a weekly basis, and will be open to anyone who is interested.

The seminar will cover topics such as recognizing when a loved one is struggling, how to help them, and where to find resources.

The seminar will be held in the Massachusetts State House, and is open to anyone who is interested.

Art Careers/Portfolio Day on November 15

by M. J. F. A. M. C.

The Massachusetts Museum of Fine Arts will be hosting their annual Art Careers/Portfolio Day on November 15. This event is open to all interested students, and is a great opportunity to network with professionals in the art world.

The event will feature panel discussions, portfolio reviews, and networking opportunities. Students will have the opportunity to meet with artists, curators, and gallery owners, and to learn about the various career paths available in the art world.

The event will be held at the Massachusetts Museum of Fine Arts, and is open to all interested students.

What are the Christmas late 1976 and before?

by M. J. F. A. M. C.

During the Christmas late 1976 and before, there were no Christmas cards as we know them today. In the 19th century, people would exchange small gifts and notes, but these were not called Christmas cards.

The first Christmas card was patented in 1840, and it was called a "Christmas card" because it was sent during the Christmas season. These cards were not printed with a message, and were meant to be handwritten.

Wagers, BSC's Youngest and Only Student Union Cook

The following is the second in a series of many perspectives about the growth of the BSC, one of the many student-run organizations on campus. It seems that everyone has a voice in the growth of the BSC, and that is one of the reasons I decided to write this article. The BSC was founded in 1970 by a group of students who were interested in creating a social club that would provide a forum for discussing various issues on campus. Over the years, the BSC has grown to include many different activities, including a radio station, a newspaper, and a variety of social events.

The BSC has also become an important voice in the campus community, providing a platform for students to express their views on a wide range of issues. The BSC has played an active role in promoting diversity and inclusion on campus, and has been a champion of student rights and freedoms. In recent years, the BSC has been especially active in advocating for changes in campus policies and practices that it believes are not in the best interests of students.

The BSC is a dynamic and ever-changing organization, and it continues to be an important part of the campus community. Its members are proud of the organization's history and are committed to continuing its tradition of providing a forum for the expression of student views on a wide range of issues. The BSC is a reflection of the diversity and dynamism of the campus community, and it is an important part of the fabric of the university.
Elise Mirtahaugb (as well as every other cutie) with the help of her dad's vivid imagination and skillful negotiations with the police department of the future, created a reality that allowed the two of them to spend their days together reading comic books. Elise's dad was a detective and he had a special bond with his daughter. He often brought her along on his cases and she would help him solve crimes. The two of them would spend hours discussing the cases and Elise's dad would teach her about his strategies for catching criminals. It was a special bond between them and it brought them great joy. Elise loved spending time with her dad and was always eager to help him with his work.

Christmas Issue 1976 to Make it Special by Submitting Some of Your Own Material

by Dave Wiltse

WBIM invites you to submit your own material for the Christmas Issue 1976. Whether it's a poem, a story, or a drawing, we want to feature your creative work.

Since 1795 we've gathered our Blue Maguery for Cuervo Gold the gentle way.

It's the old way. And still the best.

At Cuervo we know that there is only one way to make Cuervo Gold perfect. The way we've been doing it for more than 100 years. That's why people still trust our fields of Blue Magurey plants. And why we only make Cuervo Gold by bringing these precious plants to our distillery. For tradition is still the most important ingredient in Cuervo Gold. Which is why we make Cuervo Gold truly special. Next, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sumerian or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world. Cuervo. The Golden standard since 1795.

Boston State Ends BSC Season 12-10

A sorry season of college football ends here gracefully for Bridgewater State College tomorrow and we're anxious, even as it is, to begin a long walk, with a big blow. In the long walk, we're only human beings. And if we've been able to get through the long walk, we're blessed.

For BSU, the 12-10 loss was actually a victory for the team because the season wasn't a total loss. BSU faced a 2-1 start after losing its first two games of the season to West Virginia and Stanford. But the team recovered and went on to win six of its last seven games, including a 10-3 victory over the University of Maine in the Atlantic 110 Bowl.

The victory over Maine was BSU's first in the bowl game, and it ended the team's season on a high note. The game was played in front of an estimated 40,000 fans at the Sports Authority Field at Mile High in Denver.

BSU's offensive line led the way with four first-team All-Conference selections, including offensive tackle Mike Martin, who was named the conference's offensive player of the year. The team's defense was led by defensive end John Easton, who was named the conference's defensive player of the year.

BSU's season wasn't without its share of injuries, however. The team lost starting quarterback Brian Johnson to a season-ending knee injury in the game against Maine. Johnson was expected to be in the lineup when BSU faced Maine, but he never played.

BSU will head into the 2019 season with high hopes of returning to the bowl game and winning a conference title. The team has a number of returning starters, including Easton and Martin, and it will be looking to build on the success of the 2018 season.

The team will open its season against a tough schedule, with games against nationally ranked teams like Yale and Harvard. But with the right mix of talent and hard work, BSU could be in contention for a conference title once again.

Boston State Ends BSC Season, 12-10

A sorry season of college football has mercifully come to an end for Bridgewater State College. The Bears entered the season with high hopes, but a string of poor performances lead to a 3-9 record.

The game began with a bang as Bridgewater State scored on their opening drive, but the Bears were unable to capitalize on their early lead. Boston State fought back with a strong performance on both offense and defense, scoring 12 unanswered points in the first quarter.

The second half saw both teams playing a defensive game, with neither team able to break through the other's defense. Despite a few chances, both teams were stymied by the other's strong defense.

In the end, Boston State took the win with a late touchdown, giving them a 12-10 victory over Bridgewater State. This marked the end of the Bears' season, leaving them with a disappointing 3-9 record.
