Lacrosse Heads for Yale

The Yale team was tied that past weekend with Harvard. Harvard leads the nation in their second game against Yale. The game was moved to the new field in which they have not played on since the beginning of the season. The game was tied 4-4, but Yale managed to come back and win the game. However, Yale's win against Harvard was not without controversy. Some Harvard fans were upset by the decision to move the game to a new field, and there were reports of cheating by Yale's lacrosse team. Yale's victory over Harvard has been described as a significant moment in the history of Yale's lacrosse program. The team has been working hard to prepare for the upcoming season and is looking forward to facing some of the nation's best teams.

Insurance Raise Recommended

by Sue Acri

The student health insurance is planning to raise its rates this fall. The rates will affect virtually all students, including freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The insurance company has stated that the increase is necessary to cover the cost of providing health care to students. The rates for the current plan are $70 per semester, but the proposed increase would raise the rate to $85 per semester. The proposal has been met with mixed reactions from students, who are concerned about the impact on their budgets. Some students have proposed that the insurance company should seek alternative funding sources, such as state or federal grants, to avoid raising rates. Others have suggested that the university should provide additional financial aid to help students offset the cost of insurance.

Language GER May be Added

by Al Sibley

On Wednesday, May 9, 1979, the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee met and discussed a subcommittee recommendation to create a foreign language requirement for all undergraduates. The recommendation was made by a committee of faculty members who met to consider the issue. The recommendation was supported by the majority of the committee, and the decision was made to present the proposal to the Faculty Senate for further consideration. The proposal would require students to complete one year of a foreign language, either French, German, Spanish, or Italian, as part of their degree requirements. The proposal was met with mixed reactions from students and faculty members, who debated the merits of requiring foreign language courses.

Softball Salutes Seniors

The softball team is playing its final home games this weekend, and the seniors are being honored for their contributions to the team. The seniors have been an integral part of the team for four years, and their departure marks the end of an era for the softball program. The seniors have been celebrated for their skill, dedication, and teamwork, and they have set a high standard for future players. The seniors have been role models for their teammates, and their leadership has been invaluable to the team. The seniors have also been a source of inspiration for younger players, who look up to them as榜样s. The team is looking forward to a successful final weekend of games and to honoring the seniors on Saturday and Sunday.

Professor Klukas is an ordained Episcopalian seminary. After deciding to go to graduate school or the Protestant Campus Ministry's intern, he always wanted to be a priest and internally struggled whether or not he was called to this role. His journey led him to a position at the Trinity Episcopal Church here in Baltimore. Upon receiving his ordination, he was appointed to the position of assistant at Bridgewater College.

President Interviewed

President Adrian Robinson gave an interview to the BBC Spire Program last week. He has been a BSC professor for many years and possesses a vast knowledge of the Episcopal Church. A short course in Bonded Bourbon

The history of the American distilling industry began in the late 18th century, with the establishment of the Bottles in Bond Act in 1897. This act established the standards for bonded products, including bonds and other bonded goods. The Old Grand-Dad is still available today and is popular among insiders and collectors.

History seemed to be repeating itself. The police charged; students resisted. It could easily have been Kent State. But it was Bridgewater, the scene of a mass takeover of Boyden Hall staged for the cameras of United Artists.

On Wed. evening, May 2, the final arrangements were made between Bridgewater and United Artists which allowed a riot scene to be filmed here for the upcoming movie "A Small Circle of Friends.

"A lottery was held at 8:00 a.m. Thursday. 100 students were selected to be the 100 who would be chosen. The filming was scheduled to occur between 2:00 Thursday and 1:00 Friday. "All roads to the Boyden Hall area (Grove, Park and Summer streets) will be blocked off," said Fortunato Gracia, Chief of Campus Police. "There will be extra police, fire and medical help on duty."

By late afternoon, rumors abounded around the campus. Many commuting students were upset that they were not given the chance to be selected. Some people had suggested a protest of the mock protest. Others suggested that the National Guard would be brought on campus to maintain peace. Still others hinted at the possibility that actor Charles Bronson was on his way to Bridgewater.

"Department of Continuing Education classes being held at Boyden were moved to the Library. Black Power signs were hung from the walls of the building. By 7:00 p.m., the filming was completed, and some positive. Hundreds of people lined up at the door to watch the filming. By 7:00 p.m., the filming was completed, and some positive."

"We were contacted by the studio on April 27," said Dave Wilson, who was in on the final negotiations. "Over the weekend they seriously began considering us. Tufts University was favored but due to scheduling problems, we were chosen. According to Wilson, the director stated Bridgewater was "one of the best locations they've ever shot at."

The film stars Brad Davis (Midnight Express), Karen Allen (Animal House) and Jameson Parker (China Syndrome). Director Robut Cohen (Thank God it's Friday) seemed pleased with the results of the shooting. There were some minor head injuries during the riot sequence. The Studio, to protect itself and the students, included a clause in the contract that would pay any injuries to extras used in the shooting and damages resulting from it. The office on the first floor Thursday night became a disaster area because of the crowd that had gathered around the building and students who were not involved in extras managed to sneak into Boyden and work their way into the scenes.

Several times the production had to be halted due to inclement weather. But this didn't seem to bother students involved with the shooting. The first take of the evening was as close to the real thing as could be. Director Cohen commented, "I think it's like as it is. It's not a disaster if you can have a disaster and you will react as if it were."

"The students were not to give a slight resistance to the police that marched to Boyden. Instead, these extras began to fight with the police. Students began to shout, "Boycott Class," and were added to the riot sequence."

Small Circle of Friends

A Columbia University student production titled "Presumed Guilty" was scheduled to start at 8 p.m. Thursday evening. But by Thursday afternoon, the shooting was already in full swing. The department of Continuing Education classes being held at Boyden Hall were moved to the Library. Black Power signs on the walls of the building. The Departments of English, History, and government, protection. The question to everyone's mind was: "Why Bridgeport?"

Julie Payne knows that the storm building up over the Andes makes the chances for success nil, but there are cases of the rare victory. She attended a recent Loose Caboose concert and found the production thoroughly charming. There were a lot of laughs, a few tears, and a lot of music. The production is a strong way to convey the stories of those lives. It was a very enjoyable way to see such a performance of a Shakespearean classic.

This is a continuation of the previous document. The text is about the appointment process and the lack of student input in the Student Union's decisions. It mentions specific examples of appointments, such as the appointment of Chip Barone as a Disc Jockey and the appointment of a student government president at SSC.

The text also discusses the lack of clarity in the appointment process and the impact of the appointment on the student body's ability to participate in decision-making. The author points out that the Student Union's assertion that they could not serve because there was a new applicant as Music Director is not supported by the Board of Governors' record.

The text ends with a question about the nature of student input in Campus functions and the importance of ensuring that students are able to participate successfully in decision-making as to how student money is to be spent.
