1. The number of affiliation agreements that have been signed has increased, with some universities setting up partnerships with other educational institutions. This trend is expected to continue as universities seek new ways to expand their reach and attract students.

2. The U.S. government has announced plans to increase funding for higher education, which could have a positive impact on universities' ability to attract and retain students.

3. The ongoing debate over the future of higher education is likely to continue, with questions about the value and affordability of college education remaining at the forefront of the conversation.

4. The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on higher education is still being felt, with many universities struggling to adapt to new teaching methods and student needs.

5. The issue of diversity and inclusion continues to be a major concern in higher education, with many universities working to create more inclusive and welcoming environments for all students.

Speaker Discusses Epilepsy

By Susan Levine

Mental Health is one of the most neglected aspects of health care. People with epilepsy are often stigmatized and underestimated.

Epilepsy is a brain disorder that causes uncontrolled electrical discharges in the brain, resulting in seizures. Seizures can affect people in different ways, ranging from mild to severe. It is estimated that 50 million people worldwide have epilepsy.

Epilepsy is a chronic condition that can be managed but not cured. It affects people of all ages and can be caused by various factors, including brain injury, genetic factors, and infections.

Epilepsy can affect daily life, causing seizures and making it difficult to work, drive, or participate in school or other activities. It can also lead to social stigma and discrimination.

Epilepsy is a complex condition, and treatment options vary depending on the type of seizures and the individual's needs.

The goal of treatment is to control seizures and improve quality of life. This can be achieved through medications, surgical procedures, or other treatments.

Epilepsy is a serious condition that deserves attention and support. It is important to raise awareness and work towards better understanding and treatment for those affected by this condition.

ROCK AT 26/2

By Bill O'Dea and Bruce Cohen

Bruce in 1976, an enterprizing group who loved the over-the-top, strange performances, the bizarre soundtracks, and the effects that could be thrown together in one film. Paul Davis, who achieved fame with his songwriting and production skills, contributed to the film's soundtrack, giving it a pop and rock flavor that was characteristic of the era.

At a time when historians and critics were trying to make sense of the tumultuous political climate of the 70's and 80's, movies like "A Small Circle of Friends" emerged to provide a window into the minds of young people during those pivotal years. "Midnight Express" is a film that resonates with many of our readers through its portrayal of the harsh realities of life in prison, particularly the psychological toll it takes on those who are incarcerated.

The film gives us an important insight as to how they emerge in the present, the performance as the student who spent years in a Turkish prison on drug smuggling charges in the 70's and 80's. By drawing from many of his own experiences, Rob Cohen, the film's director, made a powerful statement about the human qualities that can be lost or retained during times of great stress and conflict. The performance is poignantly and dramatically traced throughout the film, providing a thought-provoking and emotionally engaging experience for the audience.

In conclusion, "A Small Circle of Friends" is a film that should not be missed. It is a powerful reminder of the importance of human connection and the resilience of the human spirit, even in the most challenging circumstances. Whether you are a fan of music, film, or simply interested in exploring the complex social and political issues of the 70's and 80's, this film is a must-see. It is truly a cinematic treasure that stands the test of time.
The film opens nationwide in mid-February, following an excellent run at the Venice and Toronto film festivals. The film was made by the few editors who have been invited to a small, Selective Cinema. The film is one of the most anticipated and important films of the year.

“A Small Circle of Friends,” directed by Ron Howard, is a marvelously moving film about the love and friendship of three friends: Jenny McLean, her husband, and her brother. Jenny accidently begins to undergo chemotherapy, meanwhile, Jenny McLean’s husband, who fumbles more than expected, is finding it difficult to cope with the Dowling affair. The Dowling affair is the courtship prevents George from fulfilling his vows of celibacy. It is only by the grace of God that George is able to get through this difficult period of time, George is prepared to take the next step of an envelope, with that of an unexpected telephone affair, which blossoms into an actress. The humor and charm that the Dowling affair consistently ring true. Looked for by Gil Bliss and Susan Coffey from the parent improvisation group of young actors broke away one of the prominent theaters was called the “The Elevators.” The show is the annual light-hearted skits developed through the contributions by the show’s participants, as well as a variety of other Next Move artists. The show is a great way to view the talent of the cast which includes Tony Mastrorilli, Julie Glauben, Prince Doesn’t Carry a Card” and “Hello, Out There”. A four person cast showed their natural talents taken from the cast of “The Proposers” and “The Perfect String.” This show gave Andy Jones an opportunity to display his humor and talent. The film was the perfect entertainment for 1978. WBZ-TV Evening Magazine, “Entertainment Tonight” and “The Proposers” are performances of the film. SPORTS ARTICLES DUE BY TUESDAY AT NOON

Despite the weather, the women's basketball team continued to show some great performances. On the court, the team was on the road again last Thursday, taking on Nichols College. The game was closely fought, with the Bears managing to pull away from the Owls with a 60-58 win. The team's big winners over Nichols were Theresa Muoio with 12. and Karen Croteau with 10.

The Bears played a couple of exciting games this past week. In hosting Nichols College last Tuesday (5th), the team jumped out to a 58-6 halftime lead thanks to Angela Vieira's 24 pts. Also in action was Teresa Muoio, who added 10, and Karen Croteau, with 10. Working hard under the boards, Bridgewater had a consistent performance with 12.

The Bears played the Owls again later in the week, this time winning by a 60-58 margin. Leading scorer for the Owls was Diana Drmerrius, while the Bears were led by Theresa Muoio and Dee-Dee Enabenter with 18. and 10 respectively.

The Bears are now 14-14 overall and are 4-4 in the Mass. State Conference. The team's overall record now stands at 11-11.

The Bears continue to play tough defense, keeping Springfield's offense on its toes. Springfield's lead of 12 points late in the game, to 3 points. BSC's defense remained strong throughout the game, contesting with Springfield and keeping the score even in the second half.

Graduation Speaker Announced

by Sue Aust

Professor Richard Saguy, President of Psychology at BSC, has organized a seminar on the issue of the draft, but Sectiona believes the course is the students who completed the seminar before being introduced to Psychology and introduced to Sociology. The students are now taking Psychology and are being asked to use one of these systems in their research. On that day, who that system will not displace the students of sample.

Special Education Program Proposed

by Sue Aust

A proposal, which would allow BSC's Special Education Program, has been submitted to the Governor's Office and will be discussed at the Board of Trustees.

Men and Women on campus? Here's a question for a question: Who do you want to see?

Liz Blackburn, Mary's Roommate, says, "I want to see you on campus."
