Federal Cuts to Higher Education

The Reagan budget could have some serious consequences for college students nationwide and right here on the campus of Bridgewater State College. With proposed cuts in student aid, the effects of the proposed cuts could be felt on our own campus. Budgets for the college and all other local colleges must be closely monitored to determine the specific impact on our student body. These suggestions cover the following areas that you would have wished to be included in this budget:

- Information Systems
- Marketing Management
- Environmental and Resources Management
- Finance and Accounting
- General Management
- Transportation

An interest has been expressed for Bridgewater State College by the federal government in reducing the amount of federal funds available for higher education. This interest would be beneficial if it is accompanied by a reduction in the proposed budget cuts. The management program would have concentrations designed for students interested in one of the management areas. These programs would have a number of unique features: the students would be required to complete a minor in a field of their choice, they would be exposed to a wide variety of management courses, and they would be encouraged to participate in experiential learning activities. The students would also be given the opportunity to participate in a management development program that would provide them with hands-on experience in the field of management.

Have you ever wondered what the names are that you give to the SGA every year? Well, recently there has been a lot of talk about the SGA and its role in the college community. One of the problems the SGA has faced is how to effectively represent the interests of all students. The SGA is a very important part of the college community and its success is closely tied to the success of the college as a whole.

Bradford Grayson, chairman of the Board of Directors of the SGA, has been looking into the problems the SGA has faced and has been working to address them. He has been working hard to ensure that the SGA is effective in representing the interests of all students.

It is important to remember that the SGA is a volunteer organization and its success depends on the time and energy that its members are able to devote to it. The SGA is a very important part of the college community and its success is closely tied to the success of the college as a whole.

Storming the Barricades:
A Crusading Student Squares Off Against the SGA

By Tim Greeley

William "Jack" O'Neil is a fifteen-year-old student at Bridgewater State College. He entered campus four years ago as a freshman, but has since made a name for himself as a crusading student who has become increasingly disenchanted with the Student Government Association (SGA). O'Neil believes that the SGA has failed to respond to the concerns of the student body, and has decided to run for a seat on the SGA in order to bring about change.

O'Neil's dissatisfaction with the SGA stems from his belief that the organization has become too focused on its own interests rather than those of the students. He feels that the SGA has become bureaucratic and insensitive to the needs of the student body, and that it has failed to address the issues that are most important to the students.

O'Neil has been active in student affairs for several years, and has had a number of conflicts with the SGA. He believes that the SGA has a duty to serve the students, and that it is not doing so effectively.

In his campaign, O'Neil plans to focus on issues such as the lack of responsiveness to student concerns, the need for more transparency in the decision-making process, and the need for greater accountability of the SGA.

O'Neil's approach is grounded in a sense of responsibility and a commitment to the students. He believes that the SGA should be responsive to the needs of the students, and that it is time for a fresh perspective on student affairs.
Storming the Barricades: A Crusading Student Squares off Against the SGA

By Tom O'Neill
February 28, 1981. Jack O'Neill stood up, and the hall was let in to listen to the speech of a student leader who was addressing the Student Government Association. The speech was the culmination of an unexpected event that had occurred on campus just hours before. O'Neill, a proactive and outspoken student, had been protesting against what he perceived as the unfair treatment of students by the SGA. His actions had led to the suspension of another student, which further fueled his anger and determination to fight against what he saw as an unjust system.

Letters to the Editor

By Hayden Bells
It is rare Comment issue there is an article on the SGA. I was pleased and somewhat surprised to learn that there would be any articles on the SGA. Sure, there are professors and officials who would argue that the SGA is not a topic that needs much discussion. But I don't think that's true. The SGA is a complex and multifaceted organization that has a direct impact on the quality of life for all students. It's an organization that needs to be held accountable for its actions, and its members need to be held accountable for their decisions.

Stock Market Sense

By Louis Richard
The stock market is a tough game to play. A rich man's hobby. Actually, it's a rich man's hobby. A rich man's hobby. But there's a $100,000 or $100,000 in most of these investments of concern at high-school age -- that seems too short. In addition, if you really want to be into stocks, there's a 4% interest annually, it seems a bit odd. Of course, if you have some money saved, it might be wise to put it into stocks, but the only investment in the stock market that I would play with is an insurance company.

Timely / Tremendous

By Barry Hanson

Films, as a document of current events, usually develop several months behind contemporary issues. The process involved in getting information, setting a screenplay, and producing a movie can be a lengthy one. Although there is no time limit to the release of the reference of the subject is vast. Occasionally a subject coincides with a major world event. In this respect, John and Enid Wolfell's script for Dogs of War is an entity out of its time. The story plot, however, is centered on the dynamics of the main character, James. As the battle of the mercenaries begins, James's role as the leader of the mercenaries becomes evident. The film is a critical look at the world of mercenaries and their involvement in international conflicts.

Solar Energy Subject of Talk

Last Wednesday night, February 18th, a lecture on passive Solar Energy was delivered by Prof. Paul Blackford to a sizeable audience in the Conant Science Building lecture hall at 7:30 pm. It was the first in a series of three Earth Science and Geography Dept. sponsored lectures, the oldest lecture series at BSe.

Prof. Blackford teaches meteorology and cartography here on campus. He spoke both of his personal study of energy conservation methods adapted in his home and the construction of a solar greenhouse in his backyard. The data he shared demonstrated various practical measures to adapt toward saving heat and money in heating a home. The second lecture entitled "Environmental Impact Studies at a Nuclear Power Plant" will be presented by Dr. F. Mogolesko, Manager of Environmental Sciences at the Boston Edison Company on Thursday, March 26th. Holding true to the standard set by last Wednesday’s lecture, it ought to be both interesting and informative.

The budget at Bowdoin College for next year, which brings the attention of the college president and of students and faculty, is being discussed by Prof. Paul Blackford. The president’s role is that of a student representative in the group that advises the president on the budget. The group consists of the vice presidents of academic affairs and the vice presidents of student affairs. The vice presidents of academic affairs are Prof. John Gilpin, who is in charge of the division of natural sciences, and Prof. John Brown, who is in charge of the division of humanities. The vice presidents of student affairs are Prof. Mary DuBois, who is in charge of the division of student life, and Prof. Michael Reilly, who is in charge of the division of institutional advancement. The budget for next year is being discussed by the group in order to ensure that the budget is fair and reasonable. The budget is being discussed in order to ensure that the college is able to continue to provide a quality education for its students.
