What Are These People Waiting For?

Dear Editor,

I have come to the attention that many students, as well as faculty, that their sexuality is becoming an increasing problem on campus. This seems to be the case in all colleges and universities, but I believe that it is more prevalent in our student body.

I have spoken to several students about this issue, and they have shared their experiences with me. They have told me that they feel isolated and alone, and that they are afraid to come out because of the fear of being judged or discriminated against.

One student, who wishes to remain anonymous, shared with me her story. She is a junior at Bridgewater State College and has been dealing with this issue for a long time. She said that she has been struggling with her identity and has been trying to figure out how to come out to her friends and family.

Another student, who also wishes to remain anonymous, told me that she has been struggling with her identity for a long time. She said that she has been feeling alone and isolated, and that she has been struggling to find a community where she can feel accepted.

I believe that it is important for us to have a community where everyone can feel accepted and comfortable. This is why I am writing to you, in order to bring attention to this issue and to encourage others to speak out and to support each other.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I recently had the opportunity to attend a conference on gender identity and sexuality. It was a very informative and thought-provoking event. I was particularly struck by a keynote speaker who talked about the importance of creating a welcoming and inclusive environment for all students, regardless of their sexual orientation or gender identity.

I believe that it is important for our school to continue to work towards creating a more inclusive environment. This can be done by implementing policies that support students who are different, and by creating spaces where students can feel safe and supported.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

Dear Editor,

I believe the Army offers many aspects of the Army that might look inviting. After you're accepted into our program, you'll be commission in the Judge Advocate General, then you're commissioned and you go through school as a Second Lieutenant in the Army Reserve. There's a minimum obligation of three years' service. For the hitch? Very simple. After you graduate, you'll be a member of the Judge Advocate General in the Army. You'll have your own cases, your own courtroom, and you'll be in charge of your own clients.

It's called the Simultaneous Entry Program, and it's a way for college students to get a law degree and a law license while they're still in school. They include tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus, you'll have the pay, prestige and money for tuition and the maturity to get there.

Some scholarships, there are 5-1 and even 3-year scholarships available. They include tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus, you'll have the pay, prestige and maturity to get there.

We hope these Army opportunities will bring you success as well as expand your horizons. Because there is indeed a lot the Army can offer a bright person like you.

For more information, send the stop.

The Army has a program in which money saved for college is matched with money from the government. Then, one qualifies, a generous bonus is added to it. In addition, you may be eligible for free rent, sometimes even for a month of the year.

In addition, there are some Army Reserve units that offer scholarships for college. Some offer scholarships for college. They include tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus, you'll have the pay, prestige and maturity to get there.

You also get paid for your Reserve duty. It comes to about $1,500 a month for one weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

True Confessions

by Betsy Hanson

Robert De Niro and Robert Duvall are two of the hottest actors in Hollywood, and any box-office fan romance between them. But to combine them in the same movie as lead characters would make any movie, no matter how weak, worth seeing. "True Confessions," however, has enough complexities of plot and structure to allow both De Niro and Duvall a wealth of material to exploit. Therefore, the two actors can only be icing on the cake.

Duvall and De Niro play the Spellacy brothers, two Irish Catholic men who have chosen their professions by their childhood characteristics. Tom (Duvall), the bad one, is a hard nosed LA. homicide detective. Desmond (De Niro), the good boy, has become an ambitious priest who is aiming at a cardinal's post. The film begins at the end of their lives when Desmond is ready to die, and Tom has come to visit. Told in a flashback sequence, Tom reflects back to the incident which cost him his position, and eventually led him to become a priest. An ambitious young priest, Tom is about to be a bishop. The friendship that developed between Tom and Desmond is only a matter of time. The difference between Tom and Desmond is only a matter of time. The difference between Tom and Desmond is only a matter of time. The difference between Tom and Desmond is only a matter of time. The difference between Tom and Desmond is only a matter of time.

As the Spellacy brothers, Duvall and De Niro are a more harmonious pairing than one would imagine. The historia that marked Robert A Reminder: De Niro's performance in "The Great Santini" are absent without compromising toughness. As his first role after winning the Oscar for "Raging Bull," Robert De Niro adds another great performance to his already impressive resume. Burgess Meredith and Kenneth MacMillan are also worthy of praise in the supporting cast. Director Uli Grosbard has used the contrast of Desmond and Tom's lives to form the backbone of his direction. From the beauty of a Catholic wedding ceremony to the sleaziness of a cheap whorehouse, Grosbard's visual images expertly narrow the differences and similarities of the Spellacy brothers. Based on John Gregory Dunne's novel, "True Confessions" is rich with subtleties and should be seen by anyone who considers himself a serious movie-goer.
KISS ME KATE

by Ben Hecht

Nothing can spoil a movie more than a great acting combine. Robert De Niro and Robert Duvall are two of the hottest actors in Hollywood, and any hope-of-office shows on the other side. But, to continue them in the same role as bad as they are good, they have no matter how bad, worth seeing. "True Confessions," however, has enough possibilities of plot and structure to allow both Duvall and De Niro a wealth of material to exploit. Therefore, the two actors should have a solid performance. Duvall and De Niro play the Salinger brothers, two Irish Catholic men who have chosen their profession out of childhood characteristics. Duvall (Duvall), the bad one, is hard-boiled: a humour detective who has become an ardent anti-war who is a victim of a cardinal's plot. The film begins at the end of their lives when Duvall is ready to die and Tom has come to visit. Told in a flashback sequence, Tom reflects back to the incident which cast De Niro in the role of a lawyer who later becomes a priest. Duvall has become a cardinal and Tom (Duvall) is a budding cardinal (Ottavio Duvall). The scenes involve heavily in Duvall's architecture. The trial of Tom has taken over the corruption of the Vatican, the cardinals, and the Church. The film's point of view for the most part is the inner workings of the Church, but the story is about the men involved. The difference between Tom and Duvall's characters, as well as their personalities, is of importance. The story that involved Robert Duvall is "True Confessions" is a pleasant surprise and should be seen by all who were not at the time of its release.

Volleyball

The fall weather is most appropriate for running in this area. The climate is neither too hot nor too cold. As the weather becomes more moderate, many runners choose to continue running into the winter. It was the deadly kicking of West'ss檄heep head of the defense. The Bear defense had a successful week, shutting down opponents and controlling the game.

The Bears'嬈Uccess was due to the efforts of both the offensive and defensive units. The offense was led by the running game, which consistently provided solid gains. The defense, on the other hand, was anchored by the line, which limited the opponents' offensive opportunities. The Bears' victory over WNEC was a testament to their hard work and dedication.

The Bears' next opponents are the Western Connecticut State University Bears. The game will be played on October 27th at Western Connecticut State University.

Women’s Field Hockey

The Women’s Field Hockey team continued their impressive season with a strong performance against the University of New England College. The Bears were able to dominate the game from start to finish, and the result was a 7-0 victory for the home team. The Bears’ next match will be against the University of Southern Maine, and they will look to continue their winning streak against their next opponent.

School Sports

The Bridgewater State Bears football team completed two championships in their history. The first was in 1958, but the second was in 1985 when they defeated the New York College of Technology 17-0 in the NCAA Division III championship game.

Bears Split Two in Battle Of The West

by David O'Leary

The Bridgewater State Bears football team completed two challenging games last weekend. "How was that game?" is the question. By splitting a couple of opportunities with strong competition, the Bears were able to achieve their goal. In the first game, the Bears went to the University of New Hampshire and defeated them 23-7. In the second game, the Bears faced the University of Maine and lost 27-20.

In the game against New Hampshire, the Bears had a strong performance. The defense was solid, allowing only 27 points. On offense, the Bears scored 23 points, led by Jake Plaski's impressive performance. Plaski had a total of 95 rushing yards and 75 passing yards, with 3 touchdowns and 1 interception. The Bears were able to control the game throughout and make it a tough day for the Wildcats.

The game against the University of Maine was a different story. The Bears struggled on offense, scoring only 20 points. The defense, however, was able to hold the Black Bears to 27 points. The Bears were unable to capitalize on their opportunities, and the game ended with a 27-20 loss.

Women’s Field Hockey

by Nick Roberts

"They've got a lot of talent," says Bridgewater State’s head coach, Lonnie Lussier. "We've got a lot of energy," says Lussier, "and we've got a lot of speed." The Bears have a strong offense, with multiple players making waves. "We've got a lot of depth," Lussier says, "and we're ready to make some noise."

Last weekend, the Bears defeated Springfield College 6-2, with goals from Annette Lopes and Nina Roberts. "They're a good team," Lussier says, "and we're happy to have beaten them."

"We've been working hard," Lussier says, "and we're ready to show what we can do." The Bears are looking to continue their winning streak and make a name for themselves in the field hockey world.

It was the deadly killing of Winni, our yellow lab, yesterday, unexpectedly, that seemed to put the Bears in their own right. That, and the fact that every team in the conference has the Bears’ attention.

The Bears are controlled by Senior Captain Mike Plaski, who has been leading the team with his strong performance. Plaski has a total of 95 rushing yards and 75 passing yards, with 3 touchdowns and 1 interception. The Bears are able to control the game throughout and make it a tough day for the Wildcats.

The game against the University of Maine was a different story. The Bears struggled on offense, scoring only 20 points. The defense, however, was able to hold the Black Bears to 27 points. The Bears were unable to capitalize on their opportunities, and the game ended with a 27-20 loss.

"They've got a lot of talent," says Bridgewater State’s head coach, Lonnie Lussier. "We've got a lot of energy," says Lussier, "and we've got a lot of speed." The Bears have a strong offense, with multiple players making waves. "We've got a lot of depth," Lussier says, "and we're ready to make some noise."

Last weekend, the Bears defeated Springfield College 6-2, with goals from Annette Lopes and Nina Roberts. "They're a good team," Lussier says, "and we're happy to have beaten them."

"We've been working hard," Lussier says, "and we're ready to show what we can do." The Bears are looking to continue their winning streak and make a name for themselves in the field hockey world.
