This special tour, planned to offer a survey of Italian Art, will be sponsored by the Bridgewater State College Art Department and through the program of Continuing Education. At a time of the prime of its arts, Italy can boast, in addition to the painting and sculpture in its museums, architectural monuments from the classical period, the Renaissance and the Baroque, and the modern. Principal cities to be visited are Florence, Rome, and Ravenna with sites in Milan, Filas, Bologna, Asti, and Orvieto also included. During the five-day stay in Florenice, a day will be spent in the Tuscan towns of Volterra, San Gimignano, Siena, and Firenze; and during the seven day period in Rome, the group will visit St. Peter's, The Vatican, the Colosseum, and much more.

Accompanying the group as guides will be BSU faculty Professor John Heeler, Art Department, Professor Laura Nevels, Department of French Languages, and Mrs. Mary Lou Peruzzi, English Department. The tour will be arranged through Crimson Travel Services, Inc., of Cambridge.

The program will feature daily tours by the guides with itineraries carefully designed to offer the broadest possible exposure within the relatively short time period of the trip.

Concerned too that most students are entering college with inadequate preparation, the Massachusetts Board of Regents for Higher Education, which oversees the state's public colleges and universities, has introduced two proposals designed to tighten admission requirements to the state's four-year colleges and universities. The first would remove any provision that would allow a student seeking admission to be exempt from the Regents' proposal to set the state's minimum college preparatory courses in English, history, and social studies.

A second proposal would also require students to be in the upper 40th percentile.

Besides the proposal to set minimum SAT scores and class-level ranks, which has gained considerable media exposure when it was critiqued by University of Massachusetts president David Bell and the University of Massachusetts's three campuses as being a threat to the chances of disadvantaged students, Dr. Peruzzi has also introduced a proposal that would allow students who feel that they would benefit from a number of years of preparation to compete in a race for college admission.

Tootsie Rolls ...

By Robert Treaton

Tootsie is an absolutely silly old-timey rowdy musical. It is charming, witty and enterprising. After all, it is the show that makes both the actors and actresses so great. The truth is that Michael is really quite a good actor. Michael Dorsey (Dustin Hoffman) is an out-of-work actor who is left to be a clerk before being hired as a telephone operator.

The film's humor comes out of some very clever situations such as Neil Simon's marvelous blend of inane situations. When one moment is well-developed, the next is just as silly, and the film is a fine blend of well-written situations and well-developed characters instead of silly, stupid and flimsy situations such as Neil Simon writes about. All this is terrible but think about what the film is saying about men and women. It is an important statement and it is ultimately why the film is so great.

The talented cast of only brings the audience through a series of parallels that are based on the Oscar-winning film St. Matthew. These parallels are told through a series of skills as well as musical numbers such as Save the People, Day by Day, Turn Off the Lights and Blame the Lord. The characters are well-developed and they all have their moments. The film's humor comes out of some very clever situations such as Neil Simon's marvelous blend of inane situations. Tootsie Rolls ...

By Robert Tretean

Tootsie is an absolute joy! It is charming, witty and entertaining as well as being importrant and timely. The way the cast mixes out that it should have for it pleases all types of audiences and also makes it a great box office.

Michael Dorsey (Dustin Hoffman) is an out-of-work actor who survives by selling tables and teaching acting classes. Now it may seem odd that someone would take lessons from an unemployed actor such as Michael, but the thought is that Michael is really good at what he does but doesn't have the luck to do it. Well, not only does he fight against possibly losing too short, too fat, too skinny, too tall, too young or too old for a part but Michael also has to fight against his reputation for being "difficult to work with." His next agent played by Sidney Poitier-the film's director-tells him flat out: "No one will hire you!" Well this is all that he needs for his fire and he sets out to prove a point. The very next day he auditions for a daytime drama "Southwest General" and is told by the head casting director that he is "too bad for the role." As a woman-Dorothy Michaels. Before the audition things go very well and his disempathy is flawless. However, Michael Dorothy has fallen in love with his character Julie (Jessica Lange), and boy, is he in trouble. To help you any more would ruin the fun. But you can be sure that all that follows is hilarious and very believable.

Dustin Hoffman is captivating in both of his roles. He makes both roles complete.

Curt Dietz, Ken Doyon, Will McQuade, and Dave Riley opened the meet with a splash in the 50 yard freestyle relay. This beat out the rest of the field and set a new pool record. It was a close win but very satisfying for Dietz, Riley, and Dave McQuade.

The following results are in effect:

Booster members are also being held behind the Old Gym and will be raised on the next trip to the UMass pool.
