BSC seeks new image

BSC ready for a new image: The answer to this question is yes, according to Dave Wilson, BSC’s Director of Community Relations.

“The image that people have of this college no longer reflects the reality of our college,” Wilson commented in a recent interview. “For years, BSC has never primarily been a college, but has provided a career for the student’s success. The fact that it has never been primarily a single-purpose college is something that we are now working to change.”

Wilson wants a new image that will reflect the reality of BSC. “We are trying to portray the image that only 70% of our students are education majors, that the college is not just a two-year institution, and that the college is a place where students can get a good education in a wide range of fields.”

“Only 30% of our students are education majors, and that leaves 70% of the college in other fields that people don’t hear about,’’ he said. If you wonder whether how BSC has been a new image or not, according to Wilson, the answer is yes, according to him.

“One person who does not have an image problem is President Wilson. He is always running in five different directions at the same time, and he is responsible for all of BSC’s public relations, as well as the production of over 100 school publications, including the College Catalog, the Student handbook, and the annual report.”

Wilson said that he hopes the new image of BSC will help the college in its efforts to attract new students. “The new image will help people to see BSC for what it really is, a college that is working hard to provide a good education in a wide range of fields.”

New Steps Taken

By Kyle Donadini

BSC students enjoyed a three-day weekend this week after a snowstorm Monday that dropped from 6 to 12 inches of snow on Southeastern Massachusetts, canceling classes for the day. By Tuesday the students were back to full-time classes, and the state’s unemployment rate was still high.

For nearly 130 years, the unemployment rate in the state has been high, and the state’s unemployment rate has not changed significantly in recent years. The unemployment rate in the state is currently at 7.3%, up from 6.8% at the end of last year.

The state’s unemployment rate is lower than the national average, which is currently at 7.8%. However, the state’s unemployment rate is still higher than the national average in many of the state’s industries, such as manufacturing, construction, and hospitality.

One factor that contributes to the high unemployment rate in the state is the lack of job opportunities. According to the state’s unemployment rate, there are currently 52 applicants for each available job.

To help unemployed students, the state’s unemployment rate is to assist in the upgrading of skills and in the acquiring of new skills, so that eligible participants can gain an edge in the job market.

Though the plan is only in the beginning stages, it looks promising. The program is headed by Dr. Robert Chambers, Acting Dean of Adult Education, and includes Career Planning and Placement Office, and the 32 applicants who have already applied for the program to identify potential career areas for assistance.

In the event that BSC’s program of studies can be used to assist the unemployed, it must be ascertained that they are indeed eligible for the program. The plan’s organizers are working with the Division of Employment and Training to ensure that only those who really need it, according to Wilson.

Danning Cigrone, who has been involved in the career planning and placement program, expressed his support for the program. “This is the time to make a new image of BSC, and that makes it necessary for his plan to make his job easier.”

In conclusion, the state’s unemployment rate is still high, but the state’s unemployment rate is working hard to provide a good education in a wide range of fields. The new image of BSC will help people to see BSC for what it really is, a college that is working hard to provide a good education in a wide range of fields.

Three Cheers for The Comment...

Dear Fellow Students,

Soon you will be hearing a great deal about "Heritage Week." Last year, for the first time, all students, faculty, and staff put together a week-long series of events in the spring to recognize and celebrate the College's heritage. The week was a big success, especially in the rural area, which featured two dozen picturesque villages, the individual homes of early settlers, and the historic buildings. This year, the week will be even bigger and better, and we hope you will join us.

Dear Mr. Gardner:

With these additional funds, we were able to send the Enciber Theatre to the city for further discussion about the problem. However, when the city refused to listen, the student groups went on strike and the theatre department was forced to close.

The institution of theatre as a source of embarrassment to the students and faculty was eventually solved. By the numbers, the theatre department was severely underfunded and had little control over the theatrical productions. The students were left to fend for themselves and realize that the only way to improve the situation was to take control of the theatre program.

The potential theatre majors have, as now appears obvious by the numbers, dropped Bridgewater from their consideration. The Board of Trustees, the administration, and the Board of Regents should be concerned about this matter, but they give no evidence of it. Perhaps they have been taught that when you take a look at what is happening, the all-round excellence of Bridgewater State College depends on an all-round administration. If they begin to look at what is happening in our department, they will find that there is a total of two faculty members in our department and they are not the only ones. Students and current theatre majors are very concerned about the future of the theatre program and department.\n Ensemble Theatre president Donald Gopin discussed the problem with the Theatre Department. Over the past several years, the theatre program has seen more than quadrupled, but the number of faculty members has increased. In the fall of 1978, when a full-time theatre faculty member, Karen Dubin, was hired, the theatre program finally began to grow.\n Theatre students have been concerned about the loss of theatre majors. This lack of courses does not only affect theatre majors anyway, since they are required to register for Theatre and Communications courses. However, the theatre program is a separate entity, and it is the responsibility of the students to find a solution for the problem. The students are working together to improve the situation. The Ensemble Theatre Executive Board met with theatre faculty to discuss the problems and the SGA senate created a committee to address the issues. The committee presented its findings to the SGA senate and it was decided to continue to address the problems.

Finally, it should be stressed that the problem of the theatre program affects not only the theatre majors but also all students who participate in theatre productions. The Ensemble Theatre, like any SGA funded organization is open to all students. It is, in fact, one of the largest campus organizations. Students from many major disciplines, (Art, English, Psychology, Physical Education, and Social Education are some recent examples) also, any situation in which student education is suffering due to a lack of faculty is something that should concern all students. The theatre program affects your department, your college, and your university. The theatre program is an important part of the college experience and it is something that should be sustained.

Sincerely,

Karen Dubin, President

"Shrinking" is a play about the students in a potential theatre major. The students are all juniors in their last year of college. Their advice is all based on their own experience as potential theatre majors. The students all share their own stories of how they got involved in theatre and why they decided to pursue the major. They talk about the ups and downs of the major and the challenges they have faced. They also talk about their goals for the future and what they hope to do after graduation. The students are all determined to make the most of their time in the major and to make the most of their theatre education. The play is a heartfelt and honest reflection on the world of theatre and on the students who are part of it.

Important American Women Part II, 1777-1788

By Arturo Berge

In 1776, twenty young women were sent to Louisiana by King Louis XV to furnish a military force to the American Revolution. They were known as the "Women of the Revolution." These women were not just military figures, they were also political figures. Many of them were involved in political activities, and some even became politicians themselves. The women's role in the Revolution was significant, and it is important to remember their contributions.

The Bears' basketball teams have been on a roll as they continue to impress everyone with their consistent performance. The men's team has been particularly impressive, with victories in their last few games. The women's team, under the guidance of Coach Mike Storey, has also been performing well, with a strong showing in their last few games.

A few standout players include Seniors Sean McNally and Tony Ellis, who have been key contributors to the team's success. McNally, in particular, has been leading the team in scoring, while Ellis has been providing strong defense.

Next week, the Bears will face a tough test when they travel to face a strong team in their conference. The men's team will look to continue their winning streak, while the women's team will aim to maintain their momentum.

The Bears are looking forward to the upcoming game and are confident in their ability to come out on top. With strong performances from their players, they are poised to make a deep run in the playoffs.

There has been another great week for Bridgewater's basketball teams. In the women's league alternate at the guard spot, Chaud and dominated.

The BC's men's team competed with Boston Colllege in the Mass. Conference and defeated the Bears 75-65. The BC men dominated the game, particularly controlling the boards defensively and offensively which was the main clas-seal. Jim Smith of the Mass. Conf. All-Star Team dominated in the Mass. Conf. Conference and finished with 23 points. The BC men will now face their next opponent, the New England States, next week.
