Bears Business

By Mike Story

Well, the winter sports season has come to an end. Now it's on to the spring season where the baseball team has already begun its season.

The Bears baseball team has made a habit of winning the NCAC baseball championship each year. This year, they began their season by winning their opening game against Muskingum.

The team's strategy has been simple: play hard and win. They have a solid lineup of returning players and a few new additions that have helped them maintain their winning streak.

In their game against Muskingum, the Bears scored early and often, winning 13-2. It was a great start to their season and a preview of what's to come.

The NCAC baseball championship is just around the corner and the Bears are ready to take on the other teams in the league. With their experience and talent, they are confident they can take home the title once again.

It's going to be an exciting season for the Bears baseball team. We can't wait to see how they do in the upcoming games.
Dear Editor:

As the new Editor, I feel it is important to take this time to express my opinion. I believe that the PROGRESS program, which was established in 1968, is serving the specific purpose of creating opportunities for students of a minority background. The program, which I have seen firsthand, has its problems, but when so many positive aspects exist, it is difficult to overlook these.

The program offers a wide range of services and benefits to students, including counseling, personal development, and leadership opportunities. I am confident that the program is making a significant impact on the lives of its participants.

Sincerely,

BSC Aviation Program in Trouble

a commentary

By Mark Lengenvi

All of the major aviation programs that BSC were created during the past few years have brought about much excitement and yet, a few questions as well. The student and the tutor are still trying to figure out just what the PROGRESS program is for. In the past, the PROGRESS program was the only one that offered a positive and successful program to minority students. Unfortunately, this year’s introduction of an innovative program and a promising major has diluted, polluted, and corrupted by students of thoughts and feelings regarding the program. What went wrong? How could this happen? What does the program do?
Dear Editor,

This letter is in response to the recent article about the Science Club that was published in The Comment on February 24th. I feel that the article expressed a personal viewpoint that was not representative of the club as a whole.

Although I was part of the discussion group and my name was signed to the article, I do not feel that the article expressed my personal views accurately. I did not write the article before it was submitted to The Comment, and I would like to take this time to express my views to you.

I feel that the article misrepresents the contributions and achievements of the PROGRESS program, which was entirely negative. I am sure that the program offered at BSC PROGRESS has its benefits, but I find it very unfair to base an issue on one negative opinion.

The PROGRESS program is an innovative and progressive program that has been available to all students. It has been designed to provide a comprehensive approach to learning, focusing on the development of critical thinking skills, creativity, and problem-solving abilities.

It is important to note that the PROGRESS program is not a one-size-fits-all approach, and that it is tailored to meet the specific needs of each student. The program offers a variety of courses and activities that are designed to help students achieve their academic goals and develop their personal and professional skills.

I would like to take this opportunity to encourage others to consider participating in the PROGRESS program, as it offers a unique and valuable educational experience.

Sincerely,

Voices for Equality: The Women's Center

By Cheryl Cornell, Co-Director

I recently conducted a tour of the ever-growing Women's Center on campus. The space, which houses the office of the director, offices, and conference rooms, has expanded to accommodate more students and organizations. The Women's Center has been a powerful force in advocating for gender equality and supporting women in various capacities. It is a testament to the efforts of its dedicated staff and volunteers who have worked tirelessly to create a welcoming and empowering environment for all.

As we continued our tour, we passed the Office of Gender & Social Justice, which focuses on promoting social justice and addressing issues of gender and diversity. The office offers resources and support to students and faculty, and it hosts workshops and events to raise awareness and promote understanding. We also visited the Office of LGBT & Gender Resource Services, which provides support and resources for LGBTQ+ students and their allies. This office is committed to creating a safe and inclusive campus for all individuals.

We then moved on to the Office of Sexual Assault Support Services (SASS), which provides confidential support and resources to survivors of sexual assault, as well as educational programs to prevent sexual violence. The office offers a variety of services, including counseling, advocacy, and support groups.

Throughout the tour, we were impressed by the dedication and commitment of the staff and volunteers who work tirelessly to support students and promote social justice. The Women's Center is a vital resource on campus, and its impact is felt throughout the community.

Important Women Part IV 1848-1864

During this period, several important women made significant contributions to society. Among these was Harriet Beecher Stowe, whose novel "Uncle Tom's Cabin" brought attention to the issue of slavery.

Another notable figure was Susan B. Anthony, who fought for women's rights and was a key figure in the women's suffrage movement. She was arrested multiple times for voting in the 1872 presidential election, a crime for which women were not allowed to vote at that time.

The suffrage movement gained momentum in the years leading up to the Civil War, and the ratification of the 19th Amendment in 1920 gave women the right to vote.

These women and others of their time were instrumental in shaping the course of history, and their legacies continue to inspire and motivate us today.

Important Women Part V 1864-1890

This period saw continued progress in women's rights, with the establishment of the National American Woman Suffrage Association (NAWSA) in 1869. Under the leadership of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, the NAWSA worked tirelessly to secure women's right to vote.

The movement gained momentum, and in 1919, the 19th Amendment was finally ratified, granting women the right to vote. This was a significant victory for women's rights and set the stage for continued progress in gender equality.

Important Women Part VI 1890-1910

As we move into the early 20th century, women continued to make strides in various fields. Mary Church Terrell and Ida B. Wells were both instrumental in advocating for civil rights and women's rights.

Terrell was a prominent civil rights activist and suffragist who advocated for the rights of African American women. She worked to end segregation in schools and was a key figure in the women's suffrage movement.

Wells was a journalist, teacher, and activist who wrote extensively about social issues, including the treatment of women and African Americans. Her work addressed the issue of lynching and the need for racial justice.

These women and others of their time were instrumental in shaping the course of history, and their legacies continue to inspire and motivate us today.
The past is but the beginning of a beginning, and that is and has been the fruit of the dream. A day will come when who are now gathering in the Senate and the House of Representatives shall sit upon a footstool, and shall laugh and rise reconsidering Meany's memoirs.

Of Marcello Mastroianni and his genius, choreographed and directed by Michael Bennett. The idea came from a series of encounters with the genius of Marcello Mastroianni. The story is about a simple student at the University of Rome who, despite being selected as a dancer for a show at The Edinburgh Festival, finds himself in a world of duplicity and sophistication. The musical adaptation includes songs such as "I’ll Never Go Back to New York," "I’m the阳光" and "I Know a Girl." It is a moving and humorous story of everyday life and the search for love.

Well, the winter sports season ended in March with the NCAA Northeast Regional final four where the Bears played superbly throughout the season ending back-to-back to win its second NCAA Regional championship and its third regional title in the last four years. The Bears played splendidly for a couple of clutch hops by Coach Paul Potocki, the team played very well at the end.

The Saturday my Bear-sky Thursday. March 10, 1983 season! The men’s basketball year with a heartbreaking loss to Clark (82-80) in the Regional, especially by Mark Dias in Friday night’s game. Lehigh (56-54). Both games supported from Bears fans who were well this year.

Regional Team wrapped up its time. of :23.49 in the 200-back-stroke, this week. Head coach Fred Brown did some team records, and we're going to work hard to change their team so successful.

Then Dave Riley swam a 2:02.43, Mike Piazza swam a 1:52.95, and Greg Cook set a team record. Everyone then set upon me with a record of 20.23 in the 100-free. Then, Dave Riley swam a 2:02.43, Mike Piazza swam a 1:52.95, and Greg Cook set a team record in the 100-free.

The Bears Men’s Swim Team finished second behind MIT and the New England Division...see all the details in the Springhill. With our Bear-sky Thursday. March 10, 1983.

College Spirit & Well

This past weekend we were involved with the NCAA Northeast Regional Tournament squad for her 35th season at the 64th New England Division Meet. We were highlighted by fantastic clutch plays by Bears fans who were well this year.

On Friday, Dave Riley swam a 54.62, and Eric Nordling and all the others in the 100-free, swam a 50.80. On Saturday, Dave Riley swam a 54.62, and Eric Nordling and all the others in the 100-free, swam a 50.80.
