Lice, an organism as small that it is difficult to see with the unaided eye, is spreading a large amount of fear among dormitory residents. "Scott Hall is infested," "Wood Hall is next." The rumors, spreading faster than the infection, caused much epidemic proportions.

However, Judith Deep of Health Services, declared even to call the outbreak unusual. "I don't know why, but it happens this time every year.""The number of reported head and body lice infestations is not only confined, but also in grammar and high schools." Deep continued, "for the last two weeks we've had about eleven students come in with complaints, but only two cases were confirmed. We're giving Quell to everyone who asks through, if only to ease their mind." "Quell is a prescription shampoo designed to kill lice and their eggs on contact. It is considered much more effective than over-the-counter brands."

Regardless, a Graduate Assistant of Scott Hall, held a meeting in which he attempted to calm anxious students. Harris said, "There may have been more than the two cases confirmed by the Health Office, and there is the possibility of an epidemic."

"We believe that the rumors are spreading faster than the infection. The problems seems to be spreading through the corridors and through contaminated clothing or bedding."

"In order to prevent reinfection, the residence hall should be treated, particularly clothing and bedding. We have heard the rumor that the health office will submit three names to the Massachusetts State College to prevent the spread of the infection."

"Furthermore, the most common method of transmission is through hair. We have been receiving several reports of individuals who are infested," "even without the use of causes spread in several ways. Close personal contact is the most common method."

"Lice is spread in several ways. Close personal contact is the most common method, but they can also be transmitted through contaminated clothing or bedding."

"The Health Service Office plans to hold inoculations on Thursday, October 7th and Friday, October 8th."

The Art and Music Departments of Bridgewater State College

Plano Recital and Gallery Reception

November 14, 1985 at 7:30 p.m.
Horace Mann Auditorium, Boyden Hall
Bridgewater State College

Professor Henery Santos of the Music Department will give a dedication performance on the College's recently acquired Steinway piano. He will play an original as well as works by Schumann, Ravel, and Gotschkean. Following the recital a reception will be held in the Anderson Gallery, the Art Building, where the work of Art Department faculty members Dorothy Pufiler, John Heller, and Joan Haustrath will be on display. The exhibit features one-of-a-kind crafts of clay, metal, glass, and fiber.

Admission is free.

ALL ARE WELCOME — INVITE YOUR FRIENDS! SEE YOU THERE.
I am writing in response to the article written in last week's Comment about a GALA. I am a transfer student who is a lesbian mother. This is the first time I went to a college that I started in September was the Women's Center. As a transfer student to the Women's Center was to inquire about gay groups which I had heard existed here. I was disappointed to find out that GALA did not make it. I have often felt isolated, not just as a gay man but also as a woman and I would feel better if there was a group which I could talk to. I had heard that GALA would be a good place for me to talk to other gay men and women that I could relate to.

I was surprised to learn that the people who I thought would support me were not. My collection of gay literature had only been threatened by destruction or destruction, and I was isolated and threatened by other gay people. I was also living on my own, I was the first place where I would be able to talk to my mother. The first place where I would be able to talk to my mother.

The first time I went to the Women's Center was in the fall of the 15th anniversary of the first time I heard about GALA.

GALA's absence disappointing

B'water on the move

Red and white bumper stickers proclaiming "Bridgewater is on the move" are floating around campus for the last two weeks. These bumper stickers are a small portion of the change which is taking place in the town of Bridgewater. BSC, then, is also a part of a larger community.

As for the student body, school pride is beginning to reach new levels. While apathy may be a problem at other schools, BSC has had quality publications for the last year, and the result has been a devoted SGA. Other troubled organizations, particularly the school's media groups, have come alive again and are attempting to deal with issues that are important to the student body fairly. If you have always wanted to get involved with school, now is the time to make this move!

Tripping committee meets

In the following week, our Congress will be voting on the funding of Title X programs in the family-planning clinics across the country. This legislation was sponsored by Senator Jesse Helms (R-NC), Orrin Hatch (R-UT), and Jack Keough (R-NY) who support the anti-abortion movement. The federal funds that are available to federal family planning centers will be used to fund the clinics.

The double standard will be in effect upon the funding of these clinics. It depends on whether the clinic is located in a county where the population is poor, or not. In the case of Title X funding, the clinics in the county where the population is poor, will receive a greater amount of funding.

B’water on the move

Red and white bumper stickers proclaiming “Bridgewater is on the move” have been floating around campus for the last two weeks. In the wake of its recent* tripling policy, a committee was formed to oversee this new dorm. The committee was formed to prevent a repeat of the accident that occurred last year when a dorm was hit by a fire.

President Rondileau’s statements at many school functions announcing the kick-off of the class of 1986’s 150th anniversary have not been lost on the students at Bridgewater. The dorms now live in the town of Bridgewater. BSC, then, is also a part of a larger community.

As for the student body, school pride is beginning to reach new levels. While apathy may be a problem at other schools, BSC’s high quality programs, athletic teams, and tripling policy has yielded noteworthy results in the following groups:
The Lady Bear Basketball team, WIBM radio at 91.5 FM, the Forensic Society, The Bridgewater Arts Review, the Frat sponsored Bloodmobile, and The Comment. Even more importantly, students care enough about their school not only to participate but to constructively criticize its policies and organizations.

Problems regarding the way the Student Government Association was run on the past have ended. Fair and clean elections have been held in the past year, and the result has been a devoted SGA. Other troubled organizations, particularly the school’s media groups, have come alive again and are attempting to deal with issues that are important to the student body fairly. If you have always wanted to get involved with the school, now is your chance to participate in the Bridgewater State College on the move.

*The first meeting of the committee on tripling was held at 11 a.m. on November 19 in Boyden Hall.

TRIPPING COMMITTEE MEETS

At the first meeting of the committee on tripling, it was decided that the dorms will be supplied with triples. The committee was formed to prevent a repeat of the accident that occurred last year when a dorm was hit by a fire.

Chairman Joe Reilly, a member of the board of the third floor, said, “The dorms are going to be supplied with triples, and I want to make sure that these dorms are going to be supplied with triples.”

The committee’s first task was to decide on the number of triples that are needed. The decision was made to order 150 triples (the number of triples can be changed at any time). At the present time the committee is only making suggestions regarding proposals for dealing with the dorms. The committee is not deciding on the number of triples at this time.

The committee is also responsible for making sure that the dorms are supplied with triples. The committee is not responsible for making sure that the dorms are supplied with triples. The committee is not responsible for making sure that the dorms are supplied with triples.

The little miracles of Handi-Kids

By Kevin Dwyer

As we entered the complex, I was stunned by the beauty of it. On the long, clean, shiny, grey pool deck in front of the building, there was a large swimming pool with a fountain in the center. The pool was surrounded by a large playground area. Behind the building, there was a small garden with flowers and bushes.

The building itself was quite impressive. It had a red brick exterior with white trim and large windows. The entrance was marked by a large, red door.

I was greeted by a staff member who welcomed me and showed me around the facility. She explained the different programs and services offered by Handi-Kids, and I was impressed by the range of activities available for all ages and abilities.

I was able to observe some of the activities being offered, and I was struck by the joy and enthusiasm of the participants. The children were having a great time, and I could see the positive impact of these programs on their development.

Handi-Kids is a non-profit organization providing recreational facilities and companionship to mentally and physically disabled children, teens, and adults from all parts of the Commonwealth.

The facility is located on a beautiful piece of land in the middle of a forest, and it has a special place in my heart. I worry that some people may not be aware of the programs and services offered by Handi-Kids, and I hope that this article will help to bring attention to the incredible work that is being done.

Handi-Kids operates a horseback riding program for children and adults with disabilities. The program is open to anyone who is interested in learning to ride, and it is available to people of all ages and abilities.

In addition to the horseback riding program, Handi-Kids offers a variety of other programs and activities, including arts and crafts, music lessons, and sports and fitness programs.

For more information about Handi-Kids, please visit their website at www.handikids.org.
The little miracles of Handi-Kids

By Kevin Dwyer

There's a place right here in Bridge­water where little miracles happen every day. Only special people go there. Driver down 304, past the open fields and past the massive industrial units towns, then take a left just past the railroad tracks. That's where you'll find this, very special place. It's called Handi-Kids.

Handi-Kids is a non-profit organization which provides recreational facilities and companionship to mentally and physically disabled children, teens, and adults from all parts of the Commonwealth. Its services--ranging from bowling at the Academy Bowling Alley to help with arts and crafts to adult recreation--are provided free of charge.

As we entered the complex, I was amazed by the beauty of it. On the large green lawn, the pool and pool house, we approached the building. A manicured lawn, red-brick house with a quaint stone wall and a football field behind it, is surrounded by acres upon acres. The house on the inside is clean, a well-maintained building. As we entered the door, we stepped on a basketball court and green grass, with rooms to the right. And we walked through the halls. We went up to the main building.

The break area and dining area wereCentered around the main building.

The main building was the Handi-Kids staff, Harry S. Truman Scholarship. Bridge­water's selection of a career in government work or planning to pursue a bachelor's degree program who have had at least one year of US, or local, and 25% of our national heading to a career in government.

Interested students should submit a letter, a statement of career plans, a list of past public service activi­ties and leadership positions, three re­cent transcripts, and a 600-word essay on a topic chosen from Professor Paul Harrington's list of topics. The awards are non-competitive, with two awards given to one student. The deadline for Bridge­water's application is December 1, 1985. In April 1986, the winners of the Truman Scholarship will award $105 scholarships nationally.

Bridgewater State College has again been honored with a Harry S. Truman Scholarship. Bridge­water's program, which is designed to provide opportunities for outstanding US, or local, students to prepare for careers in government service.

Scholarship to be awarded

To be eligible, students must be high­school students working toward planning to pursue a bachelor's degree program who have had at least one year of US, or local, and 25% of our national heading to a career in government.

Against the odds

The work that goes on at Handi-Kids involves the participation of these students. It takes some additional time, but it is well worth it. If you ever get the chance, please make sure you visit Handi-Kids. It will be an experience you will never forget.

Your stars this week

by Stella Walter

This week offers little opportunity for expansion, whether one's ambitions in along career path or personal life. It is, how­ever, a week that demands main­taining a sense of responsibility toward work and a sense of support and assistance among the members of any group or project one is involved in. The end result may be the ability to work together as a team.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-29)----A desire for personal growth and self-discovery will be a major emphasis this week. The need to be of service is well explored, and a tendency to give too much of oneself will be evident. (Oct. 23-Nov. 7)--Get on track now. The ride may be a long one, but it will be well worth the effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 26-Nov. 1)----This is a week of change, and one that will bring a sense of new beginnings. The need to be open to new experiences and new ideas will be evident. (Nov. 8-15)--A desire for personal growth and self-discovery will be a major emphasis this week. The need to be of service is well explored, and a tendency to give too much of oneself will be evident.

Dear PJ,

I have a problem. All semester long, I've been working my tail off to be the best student possible. I'm sure you can relate. At last, I haven't been able to connect with the concept of how to relax. I have a feeling I'm burned out. Do you know of any way I can regain some energy to maintain my good grades?

Dear PJ,

I have noticed that a lot of people who smoke want to quit, but it's too tough. Why is this? No one ever complains, even though they are full of false hope. Why is that the case? Can you help me understand the situation?

Yesterday was my birthday, I turned 21. My friends wanted to take me out to a club to celebrate, now that I'm "legal.‖ But you told me I'm too young, I really didn't want to go. I don't like to drink much, but my friends do. I ended up going anyway but I didn't have much fun at all. I have a feeling my friends want to have a good time. But I have been growing older day by day, and I don't think that's what they want. I don't know what to do.

Dear P.J.,

I have a problem. All semester long I've been working my tail off studying for hours each night. I've been getting good grades but lately I haven't been able to concentrate like I used to. I have a deadline I'm "burnt out." Do you know of anyway I can regain some energy to maintain my good grades?

Dear P.J.,

Yesterday was my birthday. I turned 21. My friends wanted to take me out to a club to celebrate. but that isn't what I want to do. I don't like to drink much, but my friends do. I ended up going anyway. Do you think I hurt my friends feelings? I have a feeling my friends suspected something. and in the hurry and rush of things I have probably just blown my chance at turning 21 with good friends. They have been ignoring me all day long. Do you think I hurt their feelings?

Signed,
Lushless

P.S. Isn't it the truth, that looking for a silver lining at the moment is the rest to the weary. daylight to the disconsolate, and the countersign of good friends. It is the rest to the weary, daylight to the disconsolate, and the countersign of good friends. And in the hurry and rush of things, you meet someone who is richer for its friendship. Is this my time? No one ever smiles anymore, everyone is so distant and everyone is surrounded with the ramifications of people. And my friends suspected something. We have been ignoring each other very long. Do you think I hurt my friends feelings? I appreciate what they are trying to do for me. What can I do?

Signed, Lushless

P.S. How much is a smile worth? It enriches who you meet and creates a smile. It enriches those who meet you. It adds to your life and creates a smile. For those who have none to give!

Happy Birthday!

P.J.

Better off dead gets buried
By Mark Avery

Better Off is another "teenage in love" movie which makes it more interesting than other films of this genre but as usual it fails to grip. It is a movie in which the elements of each of the parts are greater than the whole.

The acting is rather gawky and likeable high school senior romance is more or less a very derivative because his girlfriend breaks up with him to move in with her stoner friend. Everyone else in the film is well done, but it's Clarke is a good character to pick up the slack. The film is a definite disappointment. The Internationalroom (L) and our commits and so this is the whole bloody deal.

The plot consists of some funny boners and a love story that is amusingly by one of the main players and an obvious paper boy harming himself for his money. Lass's fantastic and frightening performance has made some of the funniest movies in the film industry. While working with people he imagines a guitar player, singing himself who helps out (You Only Live Twice) is some of the funniest stuff yet.

Baryshnikov shines in film debut

With several other successful films under his belt, Taylor Hackford has announced that Marlon Brando will star in a film in the near future. Hackford is planning a release date of April 1986.

In the film, White Nights is defined as a romantic drama. Like Hackford's other films (Against All Odds and Cross) Hackford incorporates his interest in music to the storyline of this film. He says, "You Say Me performed by Lionel Richie,旋风舞曲, Billie Jean, Tuscan Sun, live by Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin, along with other songs that appear on the soundtrack.

White Nights was choreographed by Tylar Tharp. In many of the scenes, the technology is used to create the very different worlds of ballet and dancing. He uses the technology of both ballet and hallus to achieve the end result.

Better off dead gets buried
By Mark Avery

Better Off is another "teenage in love" movie which makes it more interesting than other films of this genre but as usual it fails to grip. It is a movie in which the elements of each of the parts are greater than the whole.

The acting is rather gawky and likeable high school senior romance is more or less a very derivative because his girlfriend breaks up with him to move in with her stoner friend. Everyone else in the film is well done, but it's Clarke is a good character to pick up the slack. The film is a definite disappointment. The Internationalroom (L) and our commits and so this is the whole bloody deal.

The plot consists of some funny boners and a love story that is amusingly by one of the main players and an obvious paper boy harming himself for his money. Lass's fantastic and frightening performance has made some of the funniest movies in the film industry. While working with people he imagines a guitar player, singing himself who helps out (You Only Live Twice) is some of the funniest stuff yet.

With several other successful films under his belt, Taylor Hackford has another starring role in White Nights, the film in which he plays a music student in the soon to be released film, White Nights starting Michael York and Gregory Hines. The dance sequences are both the leads only prove to enhance the plot of the film. White Nights also brings to light the lack of racial tolerance and compartmentalization that exists in our society.

As a whole, the film White Nights is definitely recommended for viewing.wjgl

The film White Nights is a very good film. It has several dance sequences, which in the hands of Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gregory Hines, is another one of the film's highlights. Baryshnikov as the title role for David Rocchi, and Hines as the love interest for David Rocchi, are both excellent dancers, which they prove in the film. The music in the film is written by the famous composer, Barbra Streisand. The music is performed by Lionel Hampton and the rhythm section.

Better Off Dead revived
By E. Kelly
This film, in many ways, typifies high school musicals. Lenny, a young high school student, is obsessed with the idea of being a rock singer. Unfortunately, he is more interested in the idea than he is in learning how to sing. He is the type of person who would be successful in a musical, however, because he has a great deal of energy and enthusiasm.

Lenny is the protagonist of the story, and he is portrayed by a young actor who is quite talented. He is a great singer, and he has a lot of energy on stage. The problem is that he is not very good at singing, and he has a lot of trouble keeping the rhythm.

Lenny is not the only character in the story who is struggling to be successful. There are several other characters who are trying to find their place in the world of music. The story is filled with humor and wit, and it is a great way to learn about the world of music.

Student regent bill passes Mass legislature

By Beno Ross

The way has been paved for students to directly involve themselves with the decision making processes at the state level. The Massachusetts House of Representatives (Bill No. 6007) was passed by the House on July 16, while the corresponding bill was passed by the Senate on October 22. With the passage of this bill, a student from one of the state colleges will sit on the Massachusetts Board of Regents for Higher Education as an unpaid voting member. The Student Senate, represents the students at the state level.

According to Matthew Donato, president of the State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM), the Student Senate will have three goals. First, it officially recognizes school student government associations as the representation of the student body. Second, it recognizes their right to affiliate with one another without being referred to an "organization attempting to influence legislation." Third, it provides for an undergraduate representative to become a voting member of the Board of Trustees. This representative is chosen by the SSAM in the spring elections.

Each SGA will select one student to be the state Student Advisory Council, which comprises 28 student members. The SAC will determine the agenda for choosing a representative. They will then submit their proposal to the governor, and he will choose one of the students.

Lice rumors quelled

By Roger Spring

Lice, an organism so small that it is difficult to see with the unaided eye, is spreading a large amount of fear among dormitory residents. "Sean Hall is infected," everyone's got the word," said "Wool Hall is next." The rumors spread so fast that the affliction, reached epidemic proportions. However, Judith Deen of Health Services denied even to call the outbreak unusual. "I don't know why, but it happens this time every year," she said. "The number of reported cases and public inquiries increase not only in colleges, but also in grammar and high schools." Deen continued, "To the last two weeks we’ve had about eleven students come in with complaints, but only two cases were confirmed. We’re going to Quell as everyone who asks too if, only because of their minds. Good is a pediculosis shampoo designed to kill lice and their eggs on contact. It is considered much more effective than over-the-counter shampoos."

Dave Harris, a Graduate Resident Assistant of Sean Hall, held a meeting in which he attempted to calm anxious students. Harris said, "There may have been more than the two cases confirmed by the Health Center, but not enough to incite the kind of mention we’ve seen. The whole thing got blown out of proportion.

Lice is spread in several ways. Close physical contact is the most common method, but they can also be transmitted through contaminated clothing or through a contaminated toothbrush or comb.

According to Deen the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering is monitoring SMU’s entire water system. Deen said, "We can’t confirm that we’re taking in any necessary steps to make sure that the water hasn’t been tainted. Several students expressed their reaction to the crisis. Mary Harrington complained that she ”washed a whole day of dishes and clothes while Lillian O’Flaherty said she is “Sick all weekend.” "Junior Nadine O’Flaherty felt assured that the administration was “Wanting all their ron.”

Differences in opinion exist with regard to the question of how to go about finding the real problem. The Health Service Office plans to hold interviews on Thursday, October 7 and Friday, October 8.
