Pamela Reddy, a Staff Associate, and Barbara, a Staff Associate, are the two new members of the broadcast team this season at WBIM-FM.

A Teenie Turm is held here at Bridgewater, and the new business of breaking ground, stereoophotography, and computer technology is on the rise.

Reddy says of her first broadcast, "I'm up here just having fun. Just being on the air, whether I'm doing station, broadcasting, or engineering. I enjoy this role as just being on the air, getting the team's broadcast booth.

I'm up here because I'm a woman, I'm up here because I want to be. I love this, and I'm learning more and more about what I want to do in the broadcasting field.

I am a freshman and I am that of a person ready to do anything whenever it's necessary. She's having fun, and she's one of the best we've got. I'm all for her being here and I'm glad by not just her, but the rest of my staff as well.

Fagen partner for the broadcast this year is Geoff Starnes. The 2nd year head girls coach at Mansfield High School and a member of the college's Athletic Committee along with Fagen, "always good to have him aboard, especially this season when we are a good set of color commentators from graduation and transfers. I know well won't put together this season, we look forward to it."

WBIM will begin its broadcast season on November 25th as the men play Rhode Island College at the Kitty Gymnasium. The preseason game will start at 7:30 p.m., with the top-off coming at 7:30 p.m. The rest of the schedule includes:

"World Hunger," we've heard about it over and over again. What are really being done to relieve it? Or if something is being done, how effective are the results? How can we make a difference? We can make a difference by getting involved and being aware of the situation.

On November 22, 1986, from 10:00 to 3:00 the International Club at Bridgewater State College is sponsoring its first annual forum. United Nations. The theme of the day is "World Hunger." Important questions on world hunger will be addressed. Students and faculty will participate and present findings to the students and faculty in attendance.

The day's agenda starts with the morning session, which will be followed by a luncheon. The afternoon session will begin with a presentation by Harvard University's mock United Nations. The forum will include counselling and looking forward to working with the participants.

Reagan negotiates with terrorists

By Kelly Spalding

Reagan’s negotiation with terrorists

While we American citizens may think of our President as a kind of superhero, he is, after all, the President of the United States of America. The President of the United States is responsible for maintaining the peace and security of our nation. He is also responsible for representing our country on the world stage. In other words, he is the leader of our country.

Many people believe that our President is not doing a good job. They say that he is too soft on terrorism and that he is not doing enough to protect our country. However, I believe that our President is doing the best he can under the circumstances.

I have always admired the President for his courage and his determination. He is a strong leader who is not afraid to stand up for what he believes in. I believe that he is doing everything he can to keep our country safe.

In conclusion, I think that our President is doing a good job. He is a strong leader who is working hard to protect our country. I support him and I believe that he will continue to do a good job.

Richard King’s raffle

Fourteen days in the woods, carving, meeting for the first time in the Army. I am amazed at how much I am enjoying this experience.

I have always been interested in history, especially the Civil War. I have read many books and seen many movies about this time period. I have always been fascinated by the stories of soldiers and their experiences.

In the raffle, we have been asked to think about the experiences of the soldiers and to write about them. I have been thinking about the soldiers’ experiences and I have been trying to imagine what it must have been like to be a soldier.

I have been trying to imagine what it must have been like to be a soldier in the Civil War. I have been thinking about the challenges and the dangers that the soldiers faced. I have been thinking about the sacrifices that the soldiers made.

I have been wondering what it must have been like to be a soldier in the Civil War. I have been trying to imagine what it must have been like to be a soldier in the army.

Reagan negotiates principles

A major achievement in Reagan's past was the time he spent in the woods, deep and quiet, as a young man with his friends. His love for nature and the outdoors has been a constant throughout his life. Reagan's values and beliefs are rooted in conservative principles, and he has been a vocal advocate for limited government, individual freedom, and economic growth. His ability to connect with people at all levels of society, from the wealthy elite to the working class, has been a key factor in his success as a politician. Despite some recent setbacks, Reagan remains a forceful voice in American politics, and his legacy continues to influence the direction of the country.

Fourteen days in the woods, camping, making one of my favorite days in the Army. But instead of wearing gear and not bothering with what came next, I was thrilled by the scenery, and the two events were held after work. In short, for John, a young man, it was the day that not only opened the door to a film career for me but that also inspired a love for the theatre.

Theatre class was directed by Professor Dunne, who has distinguished himself in this area. Maryjean Savage, an Assistant Professor of Art at the Laboratory Theatre, will perform "The Right to Time," on Thursday, Dec. 4, at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre. The theatre class will present an evening of student work, ranging from traditional plays to more experimental pieces. The programme will include scenes from "Savage Love," a film by actress Maryjean Savage, and "Theatre of the Absurd," a play by Samuel Beckett. The evening will be a celebration of creativity and the ongoing process of creation.

Indexer's Note: For the record, Springsteen's release was notable for itself and other reasons. The album's title was a reference to the song's title, and the cover art featured a photo of the Boss on stage. The album was released on November 12th, and it was the third album of the year. The album's success was driven by multiple factors, including its production quality, the band's live performances, and the album's promotion. The album's success was also due to its content, which was seen as authentic and relatable to the audience. The Children's Developmental Clinic

Clinic strives for “total fitness”, helps clinicians and clients!

Anne LaDuke
Jeanne Gately

In the spring of 1974, Bridgewater State College gave support to a pilot program fostering community service. Over the years, the program has afforded students, from most majors on campus, the opportunity to volunteer their time working with children and youth with special needs in a clinical physical and motor program on Saturday mornings. What started 12 years ago as a pilot program to meet the developmental and leisure needs of twenty children, has grown to a well-established program that now serves eighty children, and youths from 37 communities in the greater Boston, South Shore, and Rhode Island areas.

The Clinic has proven to be a satisfying experience for students, who know that they are helping children with special needs to reach their full potential, physically, intellectually, emotionally and socially.

Each Saturday morning at 7:30 a.m. the children gather at the John J. Kelly Gymnasium and Pool complex on the campus of Bridgewater State College. The Clinic utilizes the Olympic size swimming pool, three gymnasiums, an Early Childhood Intervention Center, a physical fitness training room and outdoor facilities. The developmental program is one of about 50 in the country.

The Clinic program seeks to improve the "total fitness" of children with special needs by enhancing their physical and motor development. In addition, the Clinic program stresses the improvement of self-esteem by strengthening the emotional-social aspects of a child's life. Self-esteem is an important factor among children and youth with special needs. All individuals need and desire to participate with others in games, activities and sports, to perform and to succeed in an acceptable manner.

Each child in the Clinic program is assigned a student clinician who, through observation and assessment, is responsible for determining the needs of the child. The data from the assessment is then utilized to develop an individualized program that addresses specific areas of concern and seeks to remediate the needs identified.

To achieve the goals of each client's individual educational plan, experience vary, but may include: Early Intervention, Physical Fitness, Perceptual Motor Development, Basic Motor Skills and Patterns, Individual and Group Games, Aquatic Skills, Rhythmic and Dance Skills, and Recreation and Sport Activities.

The Clinic program is directed by Dr. Joseph H. Walker and Professor John Anne Smith along with ten student group leaders. Recently, Dr. Huber and his staff received the Manual Children's Governor's award for excellence in public service which is a credit to the more than 100 students who have served the Clinic since 1974.

The Clinic is now accepting applications for the spring semester from all students interested in applying. Applications may be obtained at Dr. Huber's office, room 103, in the Kelly Gymnasium or on the bulletin board right out side his office.

The Bridgewater State Football team qualified for the NCAA Division III playoffs this past Saturday as they take on the Framingham State Rams (1-5). The Bears exited the season with an overall record of 6-5 and went 4-1 against MAC opposite.

Drop by dropping their opening game of the season in Cranston, the Bears ran off eight straight wins. Overall, the first team's record was the result of the replacement of football (BSC) in 1960.

In the final against Framingham State, the Bears did the unexpected. Gary Cormier, the team's running back, delivered a 20-yard touchdown and a successful extra point, propelling BSC to a 10-7 victory. The Bears backfield most of the time during seven QB runs.

After the game, coach Peter Macriano was surveyed on the team's performance. "This team is very young," he said. "They are the kids that come to my mind. This is probably one of the best teams that we've had all season long."

Doug biggins gained 30 yards on 16 carries, making for five TDs. He also had one half-touchdown and one fumble recovery. Then again, Doug biggins big game every time out, rushing the pocket to the quarterback or the ball carrier.

Junior cornerback Gary Lane, who was one of the best players in the country last season, is back for the 2008-2009 game.

Bears' defense shines

By Jeff Sherman

In the view of most football fans, this is the offense that came to BTU. It is the offense that made the Bears' defense a force to be reckoned with this season. It is the offense that scored a total of 29 points in three games against tough opponents. It is the offense that is led by two stars: quarterback John Kurz and running back Derek Friend.

Warriors out ofWO

I want to be an optimist. I still am in many ways. The only thing that brings out my pessimistic side is New England sports. Whenever my team wins, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. Whenever they lose, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. It is a curse.

The same goes for the state of Massachusetts. Whenever my team wins, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. Whenever they lose, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. It is a curse.

And when the state of Massachusetts loses, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. Whenever they win, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. It is a curse.

But back to the Bears. They are a team that is always going to be beaten next time. They are a team that is always going to be beaten next time. They are a team that is always going to be beaten next time. It is a curse.

And when they lose, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. Whenever they win, I always think they are going to be beaten next time. It is a curse.

Fagen agrees.

Joining the staff in 1984, Hardy says of her time at WBIM: "I'm not up here just because I want to be. I have a lot of fun doing this, and I'm going to continue to enjoy my voice, and what I must do to keep it a good one for WBIM."

Meanwhile, another staff member at WBIM Sports is providing the listeners with know-how. softball player Pam Fagen, a senior, has full-time broadcast for the program. Fagen has listened with enthusiasm to the play-by-playing, I feel my role is just as important as anyone else's in that broadcast because it's happening as it's happening. I'm on the air because I have to. I have a lot of fun doing this, and I'm going to continue to enjoy my voice, and what I must do to keep it a good one for WBIM."

"I'm not going to go to the air with pre-recorded tapes," Fagen says. "I'm going out there and doing it live."

On December 5, 1985, WBIM began its broadcasts on November 25th as the new station. Fagen's first broadcast was at 2:45 p.m., with the top-up opening at 7:00 p.m. She looked forward to the season.
