Fiore speaks on the history of BSC

Dr. Fiore speaks on the history of BSC Wednesday, December 4, 1986

Students for Life is a group which was founded by a very dedicated pro-life lady, Barbara Deflon. It's purpose is to provide assistance to a specific one of the crowds who come to that one in order to help them. Dr. Fiore was pleased that Bridgewater State can be the best study college in the country. In fact, the fact that "every student will take a course in Bridgewater State" has become the pride and tradition at Bridgewater State. Dr. Fiore is the only one who is able to speak about the pride and tradition at Bridgewater State. Dr. Fiore is the only one who is able to speak about the pride and tradition at Bridge-

Apples and oranges comp comp

CUPERTINO, California November 4--Apple Computer, Inc. today invited students, faculty staff, and affiliated college and university communities throughout the nation to join Apple's Wheels for the Mind awards and $30,000 worth of prize money.

The awards seek to honor individuals associated with the development of higher education who have developed educational applications that run on Apple computers and that are currently in use in educational institutions.

"The excellent and innovative educational tools that are currently being developed at colleges and universities are the result of the work of dedicated individuals--most of whom have personal ties--to communities that are dedicated to the development of educational applications that run on Apple computers and that are currently in use in educational institutions."--Sen. Kerry

Lifers want to live and let live

Dr. Judith Deflon was invited to speak on the history of BSC. She began by discussing the origins of the college, which she felt was important to understand the current state of the school.

"The college was founded in 1963, and it has grown dramatically since then. The campus has expanded, and the number of students has increased."--Dr. Deflon

"The college has played an important role in the community, and it continues to do so today. It is a place where students can learn and grow."--Dr. Deflon

Dr. Deflon also discussed the challenges that the college has faced over the years, including funding issues and the need to keep up with technological advancements.

"The college has had to adapt to changing times, and it has done so with great success. It is a place where students can feel at home and where they can pursue their goals."--Dr. Deflon

Dr. Deflon concluded her talk by urging the audience to support the college and to help it continue to thrive.

"We need your support to continue to make the college a great place for students. Thank you."--Dr. Deflon

Dr. Deflon was then presented with a plaque to commemorate her speech.

"I accept this plaque with great gratitude. Thank you for the opportunity to speak."--Dr. Deflon

Dr. Deflon then took questions from the audience, which she answered with great enthusiasm.

"I am happy to answer any questions that you may have. Thank you for coming."--Dr. Deflon
Fiore speaks on the history of BSC

Robert J. Fiore, director of the School of Business at Bridgewater State College, spoke on the history of BSC to an audience of students, faculty, and staff on Thursday, November 14. Fiore, who has been at BSC for 30 years, began by discussing the college's early years, including its beginnings as a normal school and its transition to a two-year college. He then talked about the evolution of the business program at BSC, including the addition of new courses and the development of online learning. Fiore also discussed the college's recent accreditation by the New England Commission on Higher Education and the importance of maintaining a strong connection with the community.

CUPERTINO, California, November 4—Apple Computers, the company founded by Steve Jobs and Steve Wozniak, celebrated its 30th anniversary in style. To commemorate the occasion, a time capsule was buried at the Apple campus in Cupertino. The capsule contains a variety of items, including an original Macintosh computer, a letter from Jobs, and a video recording of a presentation by Wozniak.

The capsule was buried at 10 a.m. local time on November 4, 1992, with a ceremony attended by Apple executives and invited guests. Jobs, who was unable to attend the ceremony due to health reasons, sent a message via video link.

Jobs said in his message, "I am very excited to see what the future holds. We've come a long way since we started this company 30 years ago. I'm looking forward to seeing what's next."

Wozniak added, "It's been an incredible journey. We've accomplished so much in those 30 years. I'm excited for what we can achieve in the next 30 years."
Sculpture exhibit open at Mr. D. MacDonald
The student Visual Art Gallery of Bridgewater State College is pleased to announce an exhibition of sculptural dimensions. Christopher M. Davis, a senior art major, titled "sculptures/Verità," the exhibit will begin on Monday, November 3, and will end on Wednesday, January 7. There will be an opening reception for the artist on Wednesday, November 5, 8:00-10:00 p.m. The public is welcome.

Motochead
Forefathers of speed metal

By Bob Lang

Motochead has just finished recording its third album, and producer Daniel Teuben announced last week that the group's new effort has been completed. The band, which is based in Boston, has been active for three years, and its last album, "Motorhead's Ultimate Metal," was released in 1985.

The group's new album, "The Critic's Choice," is expected to be released next month.

Clapton mesmerizes Metro

By Scott D. MacDonald

The first time the line of people stretched across the Warehouse floor was not that bad. The second time, the line stretched all the way to the corner of 21st and K Street, and the third time, it seemed to be nothing but a blur.

But as the line grew longer, so did the excitement. People were talking about the concert, discussing what they were going to wear, and speculating about what would happen inside.

Eventually, the line reached the front door, and the crowd began to move inside. The atmosphere was electric, and everyone was eager to see what was going to happen.

The concert started with a bang, as the band walked onto the stage to a burst of cheers. The energy was incredible, and the crowd was clearly ready for a memorable night.

Throughout the concert, the band played a mix of old and new material, keeping the audience on their feet with hits like "Layla" and "Hey Jude." The crowd sang along with every song, and the atmosphere was electric.

As the night drew to a close, the crowd erupted into applause. The band came back for an encore, and the crowd roared in response. It was a night to remember, and everyone left the Warehouse with a smile on their face.
Theatre Sans Fil brings Tolkien to life

By Lois Hansoo
Three Signs for Every-Minute Seren for the Dwarf-Lord Drowned to Death The Lord of the Rings One Ring to Rule Them All

The stage adaptation of J.R.R. Tolkien’s classic novel, The Lord of the Rings, was presented at the Shubert Theatre by the Society of Thieves. The production, which opened on Monday, December 6, and will run through January 3, is designed to introduce the audience to the world of Middle-earth.

The adaptation, which is based on the original novel, follows the adventures of Frodo Baggins and his companions as they embark on a perilous journey to destroy the One Ring. The production features a full orchestra and a large cast of actors, all of whom are dressed in elaborate costumes and makeup.

The production received mixed reviews from critics, with some praising the production for its faithful adaptation of the novel, while others criticized it for its lack of originality.

Peter Gabriel

A South Africa band begun up before Peter Gabriel. He was nim- bly down, down to earth and very personal. His reputa- tion was earned by those and others who knew him well. Peter Gabriel, the lead singer of the band, was the driving force behind the band’s success.

Peter Gabriel got the idea to form the band from the music of the 1970s and 1980s. He wanted to create a band that was both innovative and accessible. The group’s music had a unique sound and style, and they quickly gained a following.

The band’s first album, “Selling England by the Pound,” was released in 1973 and was a commercial success. The album featured hits like “Sledgehammer” and “In Your Eyes,” and helped to establish the band as one of the most influential and innovative acts of the time.

The band continued to release albums and tour throughout the 1970s and 1980s. They performed at major festivals and on late night TV shows, and their music was featured in films and commercials.

OMD-The Pacific Age

OMD album review

The Pacific Age is the band’s latest album, released in 1986. It was their first studio album in five years and marked a new direction for the band.

The album features a mix of electronic and pop elements, with songs like “Every Time She Opens Her Eyes” and “West In Autumn” showcasing the band’s ability to create memorable hooks.

The album received mixed reviews from critics, with some praising the band’s innovative approach and others criticizing it for being too experimental.

The band continued to perform and record music throughout the 1980s and 1990s, with albums like “Dazzle Ship” and “Lifeshell” continuing to be popular with fans.

The band broke up in 1996, but reformed in 2008 and have continued to tour and record music to this day.

The band has been recognized with many awards and honors, including induction into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2017. They are considered one of the most influential and innovative bands of the punk and new wave era.
In the case of track and cross country, there is one day meet with top field runners getting 5-5 points.

Bridgewater had an outstanding fall as they won both MASCAC Championships in football and women’s cross country. The Bears took second place in field hockey, volleyball, and men’s cross country. Men’s tennis took third place.

The Bears compete in the MASCAC sports of men’s and women’s basketball in the winter and softball, baseball, and track in the spring.

Director of Athletics Bruce Rogers is very pleased with Bridgewater’s early lead in the Smith Cup standings. “Our programs have progressed to an even higher level than we anticipated. If we continue this progression into the winter and spring seasons, and if both we will, the Smith Cup should come once again to the property of Bridgewater.”

BSC leads in Smith Cup race

By Mike Stacey

With the full sports season now over, it’s that time of year when all MASCAC college start evaluating the talents that each has carried through the various sports they compete in and see how they fared against each other in the overall Smith Cup standings.

Well to date, Bridgewater State College, defending Smith Cup winners, still have a lock on first place with twenty-three (23) points to lead Westfield State (20), Salem State (13) and North Adams (12). Of the six sports that the MASCAC colleges compete in, BSC competes in fifteen with eight coming during the fall season. To attain points for the Smith Cup, a team must finish among the top three positions in the conference, with first place getting six points, second place four and third place two.

By Bill Niles

Alas, we’re just back. I didn’t come in the last day but I’m back. And what’s more, I’m not the only one. There are now thousands, maybe millions, of us out there who feel this way.

I mean to is a recent Celtic game against Clarks and found myself watching Michael Jordan. While there’s nothing inherently wrong with that, I noticed that my attention lapsed from the tube whenever Jordan wasn’t doing something spectacular. This didn’t stop me at all interested in the outcomes of the game. No, I was concerned about the game itself.

The truth is, I don’t see a single match all season. With the exception of the two annual games against the Lakers, who are still the B.A. glamour team and the longest home for the Cats, I simply expect the Celtics to win every game. Even the sight of Larry Bird has become a ritual. Sometimes it seems so pointless to watch the games anymore.

The N.B.A. is, I think, a completely different league, with high television ratings and expansion possibilities, so they most likely won’t be considering shortening the length of the season. But I can’t help wondering if other teams’ fans are becoming as disinterested as Boston’s fans.

On the other hand, the division one colleges will not compete in state finals this week. It’s hard to imagine how much money these games generate. The four major bowls, Rose, Cotton, Sugar, and Fiesta, pay out about $70 million to the winning team. And don’t think that they don’t make back that money, and more.

If not for school licenses, how could the Independence Bowl have made money last year competing with 6-6 record, and Minnesota, also 6-5. Those were Bowl Teams! How does the Independence Bowl continue justifying some mediocre teams to it’s gate? To make money, these were not the same teams to make bowl games last year. Without USC’s 6-1 record, or that Illinois, 6-4-1.

There are now 18 bowl games each year, so many that there are not enough "bowl worthy" teams to compete in them. It seems not that long ago that in order to play in a bowl game a team had to have an exceptional record, 9-2, 10-1, 8-3 at the very least. The problem isn’t that there aren’t enough good teams, that there aren’t too many Bowl Games. How many of us are really interested in the All-American Bowl, Cherry, Orange, at California Bowl? The N.C.A.A. should put their foot down and tie up the Bowl picture soon, but of course they can’t. As long as the big time pro-1 man college, football and basketball schools can make some money off of this situation, it will continue to exist.

If you’ll excuse me now, my Fremont Bowl tickets just arrived.
