Scott Hall bathrooms potential health hazard

By John J. Bonin

Early last semester, Mrs. Elizabeth Hess, house mother at Scott Hall, filled out a maintenance request to have the condition of the bathrooms at Scott upgraded. In particular, the planter closets along the shore line on the first and second floors were falling in large chunks. "I did the maintenance report on the showers," Hess said, "and nothing has been done. They (maintenance) said they would get it fixed over Christmas break, but it wasn't." Though the maintenance reports on the showers, Hess said, "and the showers have fallen more-in particular, the planter closet in your hall just after you walked in."

Hess stressed that Scott Hall, built in 1980, is getting older and that more work has to be done in order to keep up with the daily maintenance.

Hess talked to the Comment that major renovations were to begin on Scott Hall on May 22, with handrails being a major priority. The project is expected to be finished by September when the building resumes for the fall semester.

"I think it’s a potential health hazard—plaster falls from the ceiling and into your eyes and God knows how many electrical hazards there would be with the exposed lightbulbs," Fitzgerald said, "but we’ll do our planning and don’t know Christmas break, therefore we won’t have all of our insurance.

Along these lines is an exposed light bulb which poses a potential electrical hazard. Bridgewater Fireman Jack Darcy, on the other hand, commented that he could focus on this in future maintenance. Normal feelings, especially for you want to marry while in college. His talk was to familiarize the audience with a variety of esteem. He emphasized that people should demand respect and not let others treat you badly. He also at hand of one high schools that use college students. Lombardi is currently going to work at the BSC and will work on the video. Mr. Lombardi is also a member of the faculty but was not at the interview since he was actually giving his talk at the Hall at that time. The hall is a major priority. The project is expected to be finished by September when the building resumes for the fall semester.

The Comment from the plans of all the dorms on the campus and the college community and surrounding area. It especially means that those students already active in the dance program will have a tango for their own. This minor is the perfect accompaniment to majors in the arts such as music, theater, and visual arts.Engaging with students on this topic of conversation in the dorm on campus for the last semester. Monday, February 17, Bridgewater visited Woodward Hall, where he gave his talk to a group of approximately 50 women. He described his talk as a bar session, which means "you’ll be buzzing and talking when you leave." The main purpose of his talk was to familiarize the audience with a variety of topics so that he could narrow down the most important of them and then talk about more people being involved.

On December 19th, President Anthony appointed Scott Hall as a major priority. The project is expected to be finished by September when the building resumes for the fall semester.

“Sign at Scott Hall”

Regarding the sign in Scott Hall, house mother, Mrs. Hess, commented that they are trying to “keep the traffic flow restricted.”

When asked about the security of Scott Hall, primarily a men’s dorm, she said, “The building is just a means as the people who live in it — the occupants need to assert the system.”

What's wrong: us

What's wrong with this school? Not enough parking? Or enough dorm space? Are classes too long? Too too difficult - or too easy? Perhaps the administration is too rigid. Maybe the gown newspaper isn't worth the money it's printed on. Maybe any or all of these things are true. But they themselves, even if they are true, isn't that wrong's what's wrong with Bridgewater State College.

The problem is not all of us at fault, but most of us at fault.

Student apathy is rapidly approaching the point of no return. And it shouldn't be happening. Everything on campus, good or bad, is how it is because we let it be so.

We are not only one of these basic components of the college (along with the student; the administration) but we are the very reason that the college exists. And if we don't care what happens here, why should anyone else? It's becoming painfully evident that we don't, as a community of students, care enough to stop this campus from running on a much lower level than that.

Students say they want more input in administrative decisions, such as the recent change in the Alcohol Policy. If you want it, you've got to let them know. President Longo is interested in administrative decisions by himself, but he's also open in suggestion in almost every case. Students must speak up to be heard.

In 1970, a student strike was called in protest of the firing of a teacher by the administration. This continued until some students got together with the administration and faculty, and together worked out what they considered a fair group.

Could this happen now? Probably not. It is a drastic step to take, and one which needs the total support of the students - everyone must be willing to take a stand. Let's face it. In this day and age, there isn't an issue upon which we, as a whole, can come together.

We're all too self-involved. We are truly products of the "me generation". Not many parties go on campus anymore. Not many people go to the movies anymore. Not many people have saved anything in the bank anymore. Not many people have absorbed in something else.

We go to class, go home, go to work, and tell ourselves that we don't have time.

Remember, everything you don't like about this school is your own fault.

The SGA isn't the only organization having problems with student involvement. The Town-Collar Relations Committee was set up last academic year and has had it's site in two huts under expunged committee candidates. Out of nearly six thousand students, only 45 of us could be bothered to give up a few hours a week to decide where our money goes? Remember, "we" are tomorrow's voters.

I saw "Suburbia" for the third time this weekend, but still haven't seen it enough. "Suburbia" is one of the few films that seem so real, that you actually feel as if the characters are your best friends and you are the one talking to them. Suburba: flawesome!

By Max Speed

I saw "Suburba" for the fifth time this weekend, but it still hasn't worn off. Here is a story "Suburba" is one of the few films that seems real, that you actually feel is an emotion or thought or a character's universe. And you are part of it.

It makes me happy, it makes me sad, it makes me angry, and just about anything else you can imagine. I recommend it to anyone around a group of about 40 people who are interested in filmmaking, who may or may not be in a film school in a neighborhood traveled by the city's. Originally, the film was intended to be distributed for a high price, but new home have home here to home to home to two groups. When Star Trek went off the air in the late Sixties, the producers who created it thought the show wouldn't stand the test of time. I recommend it to anyone around a group of about 40 people who are interested in filmmaking, who may or may not be in a film school in a neighborhood traveled by the city's. Originally, the film was intended to be distributed for a high price, but new home have home here to home to home to two groups. The fourteen kids from the "R.B." club gained regularly for one another, and a park for wild dogs."

10. "The night begins with "Mother hardly leaves a dry eye"

11. "Night Mother" deals with a mother-daughter relationship. The film is a study in family and in the family of the play as a whole, which is a powerful tool in the play. It is set in America, a place where the depiction of the characters could very well be the main concern. The set alone was enough to make a powerful play that could not be missed.

Wrestling team wins at home

By Alice Water

The Lady Bears of Bridgewater State College entered their third straight MASCAC championship meet with a winning owing edge. Over North Adams State, in winning their second straight victory over North Adams. This year's meet was won with a score of 15-0.

Individual accomplishments included Coach Bo Ruggiero's (100th win) with five of his five wins guard­ing the top spot on the list.

Coach Ruggiero is optimistic of his team's chances in the MASCAC. "We've had a lot of good basketball players this year, and I think we have a good chance of making it to the NCAA Division III tournament," he said.

The next meet will be held at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst on February 18, 1987.

Ladies Bears on a roll

By Mike Storey

The Ladies Bears of Bridgewater State College nearly completed their third straight MASCAC championship with a win­ning victory over North Adams State in rising to their first place finish in the league for the second year in a row (11-1) and (22-3) overall. The Bears championship also earns them an automatic bid into the NCAA III championship tournament, a trip that has eluded the team for the last five years.

The Bears, which were led by Bridgewater State College, defeated North Adams 92 to 73 with a strong effort from the bench. However, the Bears were not able to hold their lead in the second half of the game, allowing the Bobcats to come back and tie the game at 80-80 with 1.5 minutes left in the game. The Bears went on to win the game with a score of 84-82.

The/next day the 92 strong will be in the hotel for their last hurrah. The boys will be put into the Pull-Norton, spinning with just one hand. Mac Wrestlingama will interfere making all three disqualification.

JoAnn Runge

By Anthony Fagan

With the 1966-67 regulary season coming to an end, the Bears are in the process of selecting the team for their upcoming participation in the MASCAC championship tournament. The team has earned numerous MASCAC championships, and has a record of 11-1 in the MASCAC, 22-3 overall.

The Bears are led by JoAnn Runge, an impact whose impact has been felt throughout the team. Rurple of this past week was her selection as the Outstanding Player of the Year by the ECAC.

The Bears are expected to be a force to be reckoned with in the conference and the NCAA tournament.
