Protesters gather at Boyden Hall

Held to meet with campus on group issues

A student protest was held by a group of 13 students to bring to the president's attention problems on campus. The group met with the president of the ARCC in an attempt to resolve issues that had been raised.

The protest was held in response to a series of incidents that had occurred on campus in recent weeks. The students were concerned about issues such as safety, security, and the administration's response to student concerns. The president addressed the students and offered to meet with them again to discuss the issues in more detail.

Auslander named A.D.; Ruggiero, Thimas demoted

By Mary Lou Thimas and George "Bo" Ruggiero

At 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, Mary Lou Thimas was appointed athletic director and George "Bo" Ruggiero was named assistant athletic director. The announcement was made in response to concerns raised by student athletes and parents about the current state of the athletic department.

Auslander, a native of London, joined the Bridgewater basketball team as an assistant coach in 1970. He was named head coach in 1974 and served in that position until 1982. During his tenure, Auslander led the Bridgewater basketball team to a 122-42 record, including a trip to the NCAA Division III tournament in 1978.

Ruggiero joined the Bridgewater basketball team in 1972 as a guard. He later served as an assistant coach and was named head coach in 1983. Ruggiero led the Bridgewater basketball team to a 104-114 record, including a trip to the NCAA Division III tournament in 1987.

Mary Lou Thimas, a native of Damascus, joined the Bridgewater basketball team as an assistant coach in 1972. She was named head coach in 1983 and served in that position until 1989. During her tenure, Thimas led the Bridgewater basketball team to a 104-114 record, including a trip to the NCAA Division III tournament in 1987.

The new athletic directors are expected to work closely with the new head coach, Kevin Sullivan, to improve the overall state of the athletic department.

Mary Lou Thimas and George "Bo" Ruggiero

As to the being offered the job of being associated with him. He's an Athletic Director, Auslander and this is his new position and I hope he will see in the future more.

Program Committee brings ray of sun to Campus Center beach party

By Scot R. Resinsani

Summer came early to Bridge-water State College last week, as the ARCC Program Committee presented "Ray Boston's Beach Party." For one night, the Commuter Cafe was magically transformed from a place to eat into a place to bask in the warmth of the summer sun.

The activities at last Saturday night's sold-out event included miniature golf, Twister, tanning under sun lamps and swimming: two inflatable pools were blown up and filled up for the few brave souls that dared the cold water.

The best part of the night seemed to be the dancing. Ray Boston, who does three or four such parties a week, strummed his acoustic guitar and sang tons of summer songs. These included Elvis, Beach Boys and J. Geils hits, that the crowd sang along with heartily. He changed some of the words, but everyone caught on to the colorful lyrics quick enough.

He also handed out T-shirts as prizes for several dance contests. Between sets, people danced to pre-recorded music, ate ice cream and had a good time with friends.

When asked how he came up with the idea for the beach party, Boston replied, "I had a bad dream one night." Actually, he had attended several such parties, which he said were really bad. "So I saw those inflatable pools, and I was all set," Boston said. "Boston travels all around the Northeast, putting on shows for colleges. "Most colleges are the best," he said. "People at them really know how to have a good time."

Martina's yard, Provincetown, Revere Beach? Far from it! BSC students enjoy CCPC beach party in the commuter cafe.
Faculty absences now posted on campus

A new procedure has been instituted to help students know who is absent.

President Donald J. Indelicato announced his suggestion, made by the SGA, in early March that the new system would be in effect for the remainder of the month, and it was.

By the end of the month, all faculty members were on the SGA's list of faculty absences for that day. By using both a phone-in system as well as notices in each building, he believes we have improved substantially as an important student service.

The building locations for notices of class cancellations are:

- Bell Hall: inside main lobby, Science Building, students' area in main entrance closest to gym;
- Bell Hall: outside main entrance;
- Fine Hall: inside main lobby; Science Building on main floor, second floor entrance closest to gym;
- Klock Library: main lobby.

While the new system only did that number and the recording of faculty absences for that day will be played back.

At the same time, notices of class cancellations are handled differently in 25 campus locations. At least one in every academic building and the buildings, such as the Library, has a list that is public.

"With the number of students that we have on campus, I thought it was a good idea," said Indelicato.

Student demonstration; protesters rally

The group went through the branches of the Student Union Student Activities Center, the main lobby of the Student Union, and the main lobby of the Student Union Office to the main lobby of the student newsroom. In the main lobby, the protesters gathered around the table of the Student News Editor, who was in the process of editing a story. The protesters then marched to the main lobby of the Student Union Office, where they sat on the chairs and talked to the staff. They then marched to the main lobby of the Student Union and sat on the chairs, talking to the staff.

DIBASSO speaks to members of CPDC

By Susan Tepak, Group Leader, Children's Physical Development Clinic

Dr. William DIBASSO recently spoke to the Children's Physical Development Clinic (CPDC) on the child with Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD). Dr. DIBASSO is a psychologist with offices in both Weismer and Development.

DIBASSO's lecture focused on the facts that we all have ADD, and that the condition is not permanent.

Dr. DIBASSO outlined the major problem of identifying the child with ADD. It is not until 1983 that education legislation requires all children who have ADD some form of education until the age of 21.

But it was not until 1983 that the first symptoms of the ADD were noticed. In addition, the child must exhibit at least one of the following: hyperactivity, impulsivity, hyperactivity before the age of six (which lasts for about six months), have a diagnosis of psychosis, affective or mental state, or in any case diagnosed as having ADD.

Dr. DIBASSO's main points were:

1. ADD is a neurologically based condition that should be on a daily, regular basis. All professionals should be involved in the assessment of the individual's strengths and weaknesses and work together to develop an individual intervention plan.

2. Children who have ADD should be taught to think and to be able to be taught to think.

3. The nature of the intervention should be chosen to match the individual's needs.

4. The group went through the list of ADD-related intervention strategies.

DIBASSO also noted that many children will develop normally for many years and then encounter an attention deficit disorder. To prevent for ADD, as noted by Dr. DIBASSO, could include medical medication, as a form of treatment, he said.

DIBASSO pointed to two major benefits of the new system: the ability to help students keep track of the number of class cancellations and to improve the notification of faculty absences for students. By using both a phone-in system as well as notices in each building, we believe we have improved substantially as an important student service.

The building locations for notices of class cancellations are:

- Fine Hall: inside main lobby; Science Building on main floor, second floor entrance closest to gym;

Executive Vice President Edward J. Clark has been refused to be talked to "he thing Done About· Dunfey' said. Student demonstration; and education must work for each learning disabled child, such professions as neurology together to agree upon the particular disabilities differently than those that provide an appropriate program. In order to view children who have learning disabilities differently than those who do not. In order to provide an appropriate program for each learning disabled child, such professions as neurology and education must work together to agree upon the particular disability as well as to develop possible solutions appropriate for each child's need.

Dr. DiBasseo outlined the major problem of identifying the child with A.D.D. He noted that until 1963 that education legislation required all children to have some form of education until the age of six. But it was not until 1963 that the term " Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD)" was used. Dr. DiBasseo also noted that many children with A.D.D., as stated by Dr. DiBasseo, have no diagnosis or reason for the behavior, which lasts for about six months; have no diagnosis of psychosis, affective or mental retardation before the age of seven (which lasts for about six months). He stressed that the term " Attention Deficit Disorder" is defined as having possible learning difficulties in the way they perform their tasks. The learning disabled is defined as having specific learning difficulties in the way they perform their tasks. The learning disabled does not include the blind, deaf or (in particular) the mentally retarded.

Dr. DiBasseo also noted that A.D.D., as stated by Dr. DiBasseo, is a result of inattention, hallucination, impulsivity, hyperactivity before the age of six. It was not until 1963 that attention deficit disorder was present to the education community. The person with learning disabilities is defined as having possible learning disabilities in minor language, reading, spelling, and communication skills. The learning disabled does not include the blind, deaf or (in particular) the mentally retarded.

Among those people included in the group are people who have learning disabilities. The group had several children who were A.D.D. They were assigned to the group. The group spent time with children who were A.D.D. They were assigned to the group.

DIBaseo also noted that children with learning disabilities are of normal intelligence but have specific difficulties in the way they process information.

After Dr. DiBasseo informed the listeners of the history of A.D.D., he drew their attention to the child. He stated that it is important for the child's self-esteem that the child be recognized. According to Dr. DiBasseo, the most important tool in the treatment of children with A.D.D. is the education required for the child. The child must be evaluated for the child's particular disability as well as to provide an appropriate program for each learning disabled child. Such professions as neurology and education must work together to agree upon the particular disability as well as to develop possible solutions appropriate for each child's need.

Dr. William DiBasseo recently spoke at the Children's Physical Developmental Clinic (CPDC). He was the child with Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD). DiBasseo is a neurologist with offices in both Weymouth and Dedham. DiBasseo also noted that many children with A.D.D. have no diagnosis or reason for the behavior, which lasts for about six months; have no diagnosis of psychosis, affective or mental retardation before the age of seven (which lasts for about six months). He stressed that the term " Attention Deficit Disorder" is defined as having possible learning difficulties in the way they perform their tasks. The learning disabled is defined as having specific learning difficulties in the way they perform their tasks. The learning disabled does not include the blind, deaf or (in particular) the mentally retarded.

It was not until 1978 that the first terminology classifying the learning disabled was present to the education community. The term " Attention Deficit Disorder" was present to the education community. The person with learning disabilities is defined as having possible learning disabilities in minor language, reading, spelling, and communication skills. The learning disabled does not include the blind, deaf or (in particular) the mentally retarded.

Wrong action; right reasons

By Christine Kirk

For those students that haven't noticed of late, this is not the first time apparently no help had to be given, that, because at Boyden Hall this week there was a search that seemed to materialize out of the 1960's.

The protesters, all fifteen of them (that's a whopping 20% of the student body, folks), refused proposed meetings with President Indelicato, who let it be known that he would not meet with them whenever and wherever they wished. They did it in order to stand in front of Boyden Hall in a snowstorm and make a spectacle of themselves.

After repeatedly refusing to show up at meeting held on behalf of both the SGA and President Indelicato, they insisted on staying out in the cold and snow to air their grievances, though they had been invited to go inside and sit down with the president.

Of course, this was after they had started for Boyden, realized that they were seriously lacking people, probably some at the SGA, to come to the riot, and finally found their way back up to where the administration and reporters, who between them outnumbered the protesters, went back to the ARCC to recruit more, and finally talked Mr. Boyden into a snowstorm. As he said, out, they insisted on staying out in the cold and talked with him about it. It doesn't seem to have been accomplished by sitting down with him and trying to get a message across.

Lost in the liberal arts education I like truth, honesty, justice, and facts are askew, so I feel it is my received at BSC and all I can think of to become. The college experience has such an important influence on the young and is a selfish reason that makes me a diametrically opposed one.

One of the lessons I learned in working with the administration and student body was made to look many of you the truths I hadcollected that I must apologize to you for relay- determinate and factually ever since you have convoked me of you most embarrassing moment.

As an Open Letter of Apology, President Indelicato, the community, and the students are...

Sincerely yours,

Comparisons made: differences seen

By M. L. R.

While most students spent the evening of the last day of school, I passed the time at the Library. It is with deepest heartfelt when the students of the university, the RSC and West Point differ in several aspects.

The freshman year at West Point is one of the more demanding years, compared to the other two years. The West Point cadets are required to take rigorous courses in addition to the normal classes.

Additionally, the outward appearance of the USMA cadets, who dress in gray uniforms, differs from that of the RSC cadets who wear the traditional gray uniforms of the US Army. While West Point cadets are more reserved and professional, RSC cadets, on the other hand, do not have such restrictions.

Due to the nature of the military setting, there are several more military regulations enforced, compared to the other two institutions. USMA cadets follow the military code of conduct, which is more strict than the regulations of the RSC and West Point.

In summary, the commissioning programs of RSC, West Point, and the Military Academy are all different, with each having its own unique set of regulations and requirements.

For those students that haven’t noticed of late, this is not the first time we apparently need to be talking about this. In the late 60’s there was a student march that seemed to materialize out of the blue.

The protesters, all fifteen of them (that’s a whopping 3% of the student body, folks), refused proposed meetings with President Indelicato, it led to what is known today as the 1960’s. Because that was the overwhelming majority of students present, we decided to give this group a negative response on campus. I knew my parents would be dying at the start, but my concern about the college tremendously outweighed my concern for the validity of my information. Now I am aware we have been hijacked by the press, and the students are co-opted by myself and everyone else to keep supporting your information. I assure you that I was not surprised anyone supported my view and everyone ignored my information. For one thing was born in the NYC office, it is that the college did not even try to muster a response to the students who demanded an answer.

I feel my intent is sincerely of security and trust, repeated throughout the twenty-two sentences that states above.

An Open Letter of Apology to President Indelicato, the Students, and the Staff of the University of Michigan.

End of story and reason.

I am not of the same calibre, but I am a member of the community.

In conscience, I challenge you to do your job, that is, to do something for the students of this country.

As an executive and public relations manager for a major corporation, I have come across a number of situations where business people are called upon to make decisions that are not in the best interest of the company, but are necessary for personal reasons. I feel it is important to analyze these situations and to determine the steps that can be taken to minimize the negative impact on the company and its employees.

The most common situation I have encountered is when a business person is faced with the decision of whether to accept a job offer from a competitor. This decision can be difficult, as the person may feel loyal to their current employer or may be attracted to the new position. However, it is important to consider the potential consequences of accepting the job offer and to weigh the benefits and drawbacks of the decision.

One potential benefit is that the new position may offer greater career advancement opportunities, higher pay, or more flexible work arrangements. However, the person may also lose their current position, which could negatively impact their financial stability.

In order to make an informed decision, the person should carefully consider the implications of accepting the job offer. They should research the new employer and their industry, and speak with colleagues or industry experts to get an accurate picture of the new position. They should also consider the impact on their current employer, as accepting the job offer could potentially harm their professional reputation and relationships.

Ultimately, the decision of whether to accept a job offer from a competitor is a personal one, and each person must weigh the benefits and drawbacks based on their individual circumstances. It is important to carefully consider the potential consequences of the decision and to make an informed choice.

The world-famous Bridge­water State College Chamber Singers have returned from their tour of Europe, safe and sound.

The group that traveled together consisted of the exceptional members of the Bridge­water­Sings, the director of the group, Jacob Liberles, the Head of the Music Department at BSC, Mitch Mitchell, when asked her favorite part of the tour. Her enthusiasm was shared by most of the young performers, including the tour guide who was words from a sound.".

There were two standout gen­era­tion pieces that dominated the sound. One was "The Day of U2's 1987 album, the song revitalizes the band's reputation for being run-of-the-mill artists

The music field has tradition­ally been ruled by Eng­lish and American bands. As a result, many countries have been producing notable vocal prod­ucts. Japan has given us such bands as Loudness and Andromeda, while the Scandinavian nation of Sweden has yielded passable debut effort, Accept. 1987 heralds the songwriting techniques are the import crop in the form of the song "Let Her Go".

The added harmonica and piano give it the feel that it has been described as "Stay Hard", which was made up of people from our own generation. The song was recorded in their native Ger­many, and it has a live feel.

Kansa is unforgettable

A band that looked like they were going through a particularly difficult time the last time they played here, Kansas was back and better than ever last night.

Last Thursday night, bassist/vocalist/violinist Billy Greer added an extra dimension to Kansas' musical offering. Kansas then tore through several songs from the group's latest disc, "The Carpenter," including their smash hit "Carry On." A band that looked like they were through with operations 29 years ago, Kansas came back to life and put on a fantastic performance. Kansas is back!

I was old enough to go to lgg Pop at the Living Room a few years ago. I thought it was the most exciting show I had ever seen, so when I heard that Iggy canceled his entire club tour, I thought it was the end of the world. Well, they rescheduled the show, but, somehow, Wang Chung doesn't do it for me any more than it would have done then.

A band that looked like they were through with something following their 1981 release, Move Me, arrived last night. Original line-up in tact, minus lead singer, Steve Morley, who just last night (Sunday, March 25) gave the last, but not final, together an unforgettable performance.

The latest personnel include than only Green, original's keyboardist Steve Walsh, lead singer Steve Morley, original's guitarist Rich Wilkerson and rhythm guitarist Phil Erbert. This line-up is not only the only one, they pass the test.

Steve Walsh is one of the few keyboardists with his keyboard his signature piece and his signature sound. His perfect physical condition is definitely an asset to the women who attended.

The first numbers were intense but easily rhythmed. Their current instrumental from their latest album, Power, marked the start of the session as the rest of the band. Steve Morley came back with a solo, an interesting which focused on the music of Kansas. As the song itself continued, the audience grew.

For a first number of the night, the song during "Recent Heat" another of the songs from their new album. Power. Take secret senior mikes and lost on and stage suffer george scenes. Each Kansas song was a hit but no one could tell where Steve Walsh really was. The song itself features Morley and Walsh battling it out on guitar and keyboards, Entertain; 11

Kansas is still going strong

Kansas returned with a smoothed version of older classics which covered the audience's desire for the "70s" to "80s" sound. The audience's reaction was anticipated. They went all the way back to the "70s" and "80s" to find their favorite songs, and Kansas responded with a new version of "Hard Hat". The lead guitar was Dwayne Way. The show continued with some of the old classics, and the audience was thrilled with the performance.

The encore was a surprise for everyone. They played a song that no one had expected, and it was a hit. The audience was wild, and they requested an encore. Kansas did not disappoint, and they played an encore to the audience's delight.

The crowd had a blast, and Kansas proved that they are still a force to be reckoned with. Their music is timeless, and they will continue to bring the world a new version of their classic songs for years to come.

Date Rape: When the attacker is a "friend"

Special Series, Part 2 of 4

By Diane Lasheen

Date rape or acquaintance rape is a complex crime. Many consent to sexual activity because of the social context, and therefore they do not report it. The most important feature of date rape is that the victim is threatened with violence if they do not consent. The perp may use threats of violence, the threat of losing a job, or the threat of blackmail.

Since the end of 19th, Massachusetts has seen numerous changes in this regulation involved in the use of the Commonwealth's roadways, and the enforcement of these rules. The passage and repeal of the mandatory seatbelt law, the battle over the constitutionality of the Safe Roads Act, and the controversy over the use of seatbelts have all been only some of the questions posed to Massachusetts' legislators and legislators.

While more of these issues have received larger amounts of public criticism, as much of the press about the seatbelt law, this controversy for personal "rights" and objective to strong laws appears to not to be the national trend. Jane and her boyfriend were to a party over the weekend. They both had a lot too much to drink. Jane told him later that she loved him, Jane told him that she wanted to have sex. He didn't understand because they had been sexually active for a while. That night the fever started to have sex.

Date Rape or Acquaintance Rape is a common crime. Many women are afraid of being a victim of date rape because the socialized view of sex is not natural. One reason that women are afraid is that they believe that a woman will have sex only when she is in love. When she isn't in love, she won't have sex. This is not true. Most women will have sex only when they are in love.

Visithogs beat Brandeis 16-0

By Andy McCay

The Brandeis Bridgeport State Football Club opened its season with a victory by shutting our Costants on Saturday. The match was won by the visiting side, and dominated by Bridgewater from start to finish.

Back captain Jim Gumble set the tempo of the game early on with several bone-crushing tackles. The Bridgewater defense followed Gumble's lead by winning the ball on every scrimmage but one.

Dave Nor put Bridgewater on the scoreboard with fifteen minutes remaining in the first half. A screen was called at Branda's. game, and Nor carried it off into the try zone making it 4 to 0. The defense was solid, and controlled the game from the beginning. The "B" game ended up scoring.

Bridgewater came out again in the second half, and once again in the third. Bridgewater scored twice but on each occasion, the try did not go through.

First time players Marc Mangin and Chris McQuade showed great promise in their first games.

Bridgewater hosts Springfield College on Saturday at 11 p.m. They will be looking for their second win in a row, as they host New York City約 at the Carnegie-Mellon University Intercollegiate Football Championship April 11 at Brown University.

In Brandeis' end of the pitch and the hard work by the Bridge­ water running back. Freshman Dave Colby put the match out of reach by scoring with ten minutes remaining. Colby was set up on occasion by Paul Dufcal and Dan Sullivan.

The only misfortune for the Vis­ thogs faced Saturday was the loss of pro Jim Jaynes due to an ankle injury. Bud Con, a valuable player in the shorter, may be for the season.

Newly was also forced to leave the field late in the match after recovering a broken leg. Now is expected to be ready for SATU­ day's match against Springfield College and is surprisingly in a maintenance form.

Visigoths beat Brandeis 16-0

By Andy Cacace

The Brandeis university baseball team opened its season on Saturday with a 16-0 win over the University of Rhode Island. The game was played at Legion Field. Game time was 3:00 p.m. with the two point conversion scored twice but on each occasion, the try dropped through his hands. First time players Marc Mello (Al) and Chris Mandle showed great promise in their first games.

Brandeis hosts Springfield College next Saturday at 1:00 p.m. They will be looking for another win as they are having some success with non-conference opponents.

Brandeis' lead was overwhelmed by the second half. Halfback followed with the third conversion and Brandeis' lead was reduced to 0-4. In the third quarter, both teams were dominated by Bridgewater. Play was slow and methodical.

The Brandeis State Rugby Football Club opened its season by winning a third straight game to start off in Bridgewater. Dave Coley put the match out of reach by scoring with 15 minutes remaining. Coley was set up on occasion by Rick DaSilva and Dan Sullivan.

The only misfortune for the Visigoths was that the loss of Joe Jenkins due to an ankle injury. Bad Can was a valuable player in the scrum, but should not be for the season.

The brandeis team will have to leave the field last in the match after returning a back injury. No. 2 is expected to be ready for Saturday's match against Springfield College and is surprisingly unbranded from the field.

The "B" game ended up scoring points, and Veazie's goal was a dominant play. It was up to Veazie to capitalize on Visigoths' block. After Veazie knocked in his first goal, Veazie knocked in his second goal. First time players Marc Mello (Al) and Chris Mandle showed great promise in their first games.
