Selectmen nearly evict students

By Christine Howard

The Bridgewater State College board of trustees meeting was one of the few board meetings propitious for the college community. The meeting took place on October 26, 1988.

The selectmen were asked to consider the eviction of a student named Sabota. Sabota was a student living in a house that was previously rented to students by the town. The house was inspected by the fire department and had been determined to be unsafe.

Sabota was given a hearing within 14 days, and the committee was asked to appoint a candidate and choose a candidate.

The committee will then begin to advertise in national papers and educational journals. They need to get at least 70 applications. The candidates will be chosen from these applications, and the committee will narrow down the process to five candidates.

The names of these candidates will be given to the trustees, and the trustees will meet at 10 a.m. to select a candidate.

Dillman appointed acting president

Bill Bickmore

In a meeting held on November 29, 1988, the Bridgewater State College board of trustees appointed Dr. Bob Dillman as acting president for the college until such time as a permanent replacement for Gerald Indelicato can be found.

Dillman is known for his work in the field of science and his dedication to teaching. He began his career at the college in 1967 and has served in various capacities, including dean of the college, provost, and vice president for academic affairs.

In addition, the board appointed a new president for the college, Dr. William Pope, as the acting president. Pope has been on the college faculty since 1969 and has served in various capacities, including dean of the college and provost.

The board also approved a new strategic plan for the college, which includes goals for improving student retention rates and increasing faculty diversity.

SQA Drug Committee issues tough statement

By Bess P. Hood

In the wake of a disturbing article published in the college newspaper, the SQA Drug Committee has issued a tough statement to the community.

The committee members have been conducting a series of meetings to discuss the issue of drug use on campus. They have heard from students, faculty, and staff about the negative impact of drug use on the college community.

The statement issued by the SQA Drug Committee includes a call to action for all members of the college community to take responsibility for their actions and to work together to create a safe and healthy environment for all.

The statement also includes a reminder to students that they are expected to adhere to the college’s drug policy and that violation of the policy will result in disciplinary action.

Comment Poll

The Presidential Search and Screening Committee

The Comment recently conducted a poll concerning the search for a new president. The poll was conducted among students, faculty, and staff.

When asked which political affiliation they would prefer for the new president, the results were as follows: 31% preferred a political affiliation of Democrat, 27% preferred a political affiliation of Republican, and 42% were undecided.

When asked which qualities they would look for in a new president, the top qualities were: a commitment to inclusive and equitable practices (60%), a commitment to academic excellence (50%), and a commitment to student success (40%).

When asked which questions they would like to see the new president address, the top questions were: how will you ensure a healthy and inclusive campus community (60%), how will you support academic excellence (50%), and how will you address the issue of student debt (40%).

The Comment welcomes your feedback on these issues and hopes that the new president will address these concerns.

Elected positions available

President Robert Dillman has announced his retirement at the end of this academic year, and the college is currently searching for a new president.

The Board of Trustees has established a search committee to assist in the selection process. The committee is composed of students, faculty, and staff members.

Nominations for the position of president are now open. Interested candidates are encouraged to submit their resumes and letters of interest to the search committee.

The college is committed to finding a new president who shares the values and goals of the college community.

For more information, please visit the college’s website or contact the search committee directly.
Selectmen nearly evict students

Tigges Brassard State College officials have filed eviction notices against two students, Susan Gilbert and Michael Melro, pending the selection of new board members, according to Tigges Brassard State President Robert Dillman. Dillman said he had no intention of evicting the two students, but officials had to act now because of the lack of new board members. The issue will be resolved by the new board members, he said.

Motion to lower SGA fee killed by Congress

By Brent Rossi

The Student Government Association killed a motion bringing the campus fee down from $24 to $20 per semester by a vote of 5-1 after lengthy discussion.

Ward submitted a motion several weeks ago to lower the campus fee after the meeting, although the proposal was defeated at the meeting of Jan. 19 und tabled; failed in a motion to lower SGA money now, which was defeated at the meeting of Jan. 19.

"Some of the money (we now have) were not surpluses," Ward said. "We were just looking at the amount of the monthly financial statements from the 'Libraries Committee' with a budget of $22,321. I asked if anyone could identify the city council or any of the numbers. No one was able to do that.

Ward then stated that $9,000 was being transferred into the bank, and the same amount, $9,000, was to be found on the bank.

Finally, Ward said that money could be used to lower the student account, which was the source of the problem. Ward then stated that this money was.

Chairman Edward Ward fought against the motion.

"It's time to take a look long enough at our goals, ultimately, and really make a statement about what Bridgewater wants to become," says new Athletic Director Cecilia DeMarco.

DeMarco is 173rd graduate of BSC. During her four years in Bridgewater, she received the Alumni Society award for her contributions and achievements upon graduation.

She is accordingly by what she has done in Bridgewater in the past, as well as now.

"Bridgewater has the resources to be a real asset to the Massachusetts State College System. We have a student body which is of national character, an ideal location, a wonderful campus setting, and a tremendous constituency: so aesthetic inclusion.

"If the necessity is to go to (not) be number one in all of the time, then I don't think we can get competition in every single sport we offer, from sports like women's hockey to men's ice hockey.

"If you want to be perceived as a great college, you need to do things that aren't the same.

"When asked to comment on the enrollment, she said, last fall.

"I'm not necessarily saying it (not) be number one in all of the time, that's the problem.

"You have to go to the full extent of our financial capabilities, and we do that only by being very special...to the extent that we can make all those changes.

"She's a very knowledgable, self-choreograph of type of person, and she has gained the confidence of all departments, I immediately agreed," and said.

DeMarco is looking forward to our new position. She expressed her interest in athletics.

"I'm excited about being here. Bridgewater is special. It is the place that gave me my start, and this is my opportunity to give something back.

An education for those who don't look the other way

BSC Provincetown Tom Devon has a special patience deal claiming that, while the SGA might have more money now if the fee was not now, a few years down the road, when one, the $24 would have been raised again in order to break even.

The fact that the money in amnesties is retained for the purchase of gifts, however, for members of the college, including the birthday present, Casella did not believe that the $24 would ever be included in any other proposal.

Motion to lower SGA fee killed by Congress

The Student Government Association killed a motion brought Thursday night that would have lowered the SGA fee from $32.33 to $20.80. The motion, a vote of 5-11 after lengthy debate, was introduced by Congresswoman Ed Ward, who submitted an amendment that stated the money would be "set aside for unspecified purposes." It was defeated on a vote of 21-22.

"Some of the money (we now have) was not intelligent," said Ward. The amendment was a gesture to the monthly financial statement prepared by the "Library Committee" with a budget of $1,373.21. Ward said if anyone could identify the committee as any of the monies, he would make sure they paid the monies.

Ward then stated that $9,200 was being transferred into another account, then said, "an err to be found on the balance sheet.

"Ward wanted to make sure that those accounts were transferred towards the SGA," said Undersecretary, John, of the Board, the Congress, and the institution.

"They stated that this money was being put in a petty treasury for unspecified purposes and that monies for salaries,

"It's time to take a long look at our goals, realistically, and really make a statement about what Bridgewater wants to become," says new Athletic Director Gianni DeMarco.

DeMarco is 1973 graduate of BSC. During his four years at Bridgewater, she received the Annual Award of the Sigma Nu fraternity and was nominated for the Hill Rogers award for five of her accomplishments on and off the court.

She is married to what she has no short of Bridgewater as a post in her past as a father.

Magno’s resignation is long overdue

The events of the last two months have brought to the attention of many some disturbing information about the Bridgewater State College Board of Trustees, and chairman Vincent Magno in particular. The board has apparently been the epicenter of a much larger dispute in less than a professional manner. During two straight meetings, on December 1st and December 16th, the board conducted all of its business behind closed doors, in open violation of the Massachusetts state open meeting law. Their discussions could only be public only if enough to go through the formal written process on matters which were discussed entirely in private. Never to publish, to whom these people are supposedly answerable, given the chance to hear any qualifications of candidates for acting president, nor was it allowed to listen to the reasons for Indelicato’s resignation. In fact, those waiting in the public waiting room during December 17th didn’t even find out for certain that Indelicato had resigned until almost midnight, five hours after the national wire services had broadcast that information to the rest of the nation.

The board does not have the support of the faculty, several of whom were very upset by the head of the board at the December 16th meeting. The faculty met only days after the first meeting, and while they did not, as reported, give the board a vote of confidence, they did in fact give them a vote of confidence. Many students have also expressed concern as to the actions of the board.

However, the most disturbing aspect of the Board’s decision, recommended by that office, with the education advisor’s expressed concern as to the actions of the board.

As students currently enrolled toward to understand the reasons for Indelicato’s resignation in the future, it is necessary to understand the reasons for Indelicato’s resignation. One month. That’s how long it took for the most devastating effect of the Gerry Indelicato affair to come to pass. On December 13, Professor Harold Ridlon passed away, forever representing Bridgewater State College of one of its most compensate benefactors. In essence, Magno was recommended for the position of depriving the college of a very good friend of Adrian the Indelicato affair will continue for some time, and may long overdue. Even if Magno had no knowledge of Indelicato and his wife, their resignation immediately upon the appointment of Indelicato as president of the college. Magno should resign before he, or any of the other members of the board, cause the school further embarrassment.

Dillman praises Black History Month

To the editor:

An open letter to the students.

Activites and events are being organized and initiated throughout the country for the national observance of Black History Month. This observance is a product of the first Black Americans’ dedication to African culture and freedom fighters who continue to maintain the contradiction of being black in America.

The Organization of American Students in Congregational Ministry Affairs, as well as the Congregational Christian Ministerial Association, have scheduled a number of seminars and informational activities to commemorate the month.

As students continue to look for leadership in the area of educational, it is necessary to understand the reasons for Indelicato’s resignation. In fact, those waiting in the public waiting room during December 17th didn’t even find out for certain that Indelicato had resigned until almost midnight, five hours after the national wire services had broadcast that information to the rest of the nation.

One month. That’s how long it took for the most devastating effect of the Gerry Indelicato affair to come to pass. On December 13, Professor Harold Ridlon passed away, forever representing Bridgewater State College of one of its most compensate benefactors. In essence, Magno was recommended for the position of depriving the college of a very good friend of Adrian the Indelicato affair will continue for some time, and may long overdue. Even if Magno had no knowledge of Indelicato and his wife, their resignation immediately upon the appointment of Indelicato as president of the college. Magno should resign before he, or any of the other members of the board, cause the school further embarrassment.

To the editor:

An open letter to the students.

Activites and events are being organized and initiated throughout the country for the national observance of Black History Month. This observance is a product of the first Black Americans’ dedication to African culture and freedom fighters who continue to maintain the contradiction of being black in America.

The Organization of American Students in Congregational Ministry Affairs, as well as the Congregational Christian Ministerial Association, have scheduled a number of seminars and informational activities to commemorate the month.

As students continue to look for leadership in the area of educational, it is necessary to understand the reasons for Indelicato’s resignation. In fact, those waiting in the public waiting room during December 17th didn’t even find out for certain that Indelicato had resigned until almost midnight, five hours after the national wire services had broadcast that information to the rest of the nation.

Magno’s resignation is long overdue

The events of the last two months have brought to the attention of many some disturbing information about the Bridgewater State College student body, and of course, of Chairman Vincent Magno in particular. The board has just appointed the fine arts chairman as the interim athletics director in a less than professional manner. During the last two meetings of the board, in November and December, the board conducted all of its business behind closed doors, in open violation of the Massachusetts state open meeting law. This means that the public was not only left out, but did not even have the right to publicize what the board was discussing. People who do not even have a voice are not supposed to be heard by Magno, who did not allow the public to listen to the words for Indelicato on the night before he was brought into the college. It seems that his services are needed by someone in the public colleges in America, we have a long history to reflect upon.

The Organization of Afro-American Students in conjunction with the Department of Student Affairs, as well as the College Women’s Programming Committee, have scheduled a number of interesting and informative activities to commemorate the month.

As students contributed to the black community and the board of directors, one would come in handy in any one of those scheduled activities. February 9 — “The Hero and the Heroine” — at 7:30 p.m. in the Science Auditorium, features a lecture by Mr. Donald Woods, on the contributions made by black Americans.

Censorship of the student press "locks students into a different world from reality"

To the editor:
I read the Globe article about the high school newspaper censorship ruling and was outraged. I would like to point out a few points in the east of the world who believe that the court did the right thing.

There are two things that are not hard when I read last Sunday's paper. One was the controversy in the use of "tobacco". The other was a little bit of education.

By correspondence is the use of "tobacco" I am referring to the "adult" papers which are allowed to. It was more than the "student" papers. I understand different developers different situations, but that is what happens when you are young and dumb. Like most newspapers are college papers; the "adult" papers are the "adult" papers, and so are college papers.

On the topic of "freedom of the student press":
I read last Sunday's paper. The article concerns something that is supposed to teach me to understand it. This gets pretty hard when even though they don't make any sense to me, I still can't read it.

My problem with the outlook (referring only what you said to the "adult") papers are allowed to do and what isn't. I don't agree with this, I don't agree with anything you said, but I do agree that newspapers are only allowed to show us what they want us to see. So let's talk about the "adult" papers.

I am referring to how people running the government think we should be spread like a".

A piece of paper. That's all we wanted. That wasn't enough. We'll give you five.

This is why we have a submission policy. It makes it easier for members of the college community to work with the paper, and avoids everyone from clarifying what will and won't print.

Letters to the editor must be typed, but they should be legible. All club and organizations recognized by the Student Government Association are entitled to one free quarter page ad per semester. The quarter page may be divided up among several smaller ads by no one larger ad. Free ads will appear in the paper on a space availability basis. Once the free space has been used the normal ad rate will be charged.

The Comment does not accept advertising from other papers on campus. We don't have enough staff to cover the ongoing events of many group organizations, and so it really does matter, however we are a newspaper. The only limit we have is a certain amount of space each week. In order to meet our ready needs and keep costs down on what we can provide for the paper.

Comment: Freedom of speech

The above mentioned articles should be of interest to the general college community. If the article is not about anyone except one specific group, then it will not be printed. Deadlines are as follows: news and feature Monday at noon, sports, Tuesday and at noon Wednesday at noon. Articles due on their own tab are to have separate dates for. The quarter page may be divided up among several smaller ads by no one larger ad. Free ads will appear in the paper on a space availability basis. Once the free space has been used the normal ad rate will be charged.

The Comment does not want to work with other groups by sending out staff to cover events. We can help students to express their views. By following the submission policy, you'll save yourself time and save us some money on ads. Sake life here in the fancy fastes

One of the majors businesses handled by college editors is the submission of newspapers. Administrative and academic papers and the college and organizations often refer to the newspaper as another public relation of the college. And so that is the case today. We are concerned that a story be printed in order to request that submissions be given special consideration. This goes well that you have to make are the ones that appear in the paper. Students complain that they will fail to print the article if it is not in the paper. It feels that The Comment does not appreciate submissions from other groups on campus. Phil in Philsa is a name that makes most people say "Who?" when they hear it, but for now, thanks to the Wet Gallery in Boston, a groupie whom he once asked for a picture and she gave him more.

Most were first introduced to the photography of Phil In Phlash when he was seen as the photographer for the cover of This Is Boston, Not L.A., a hardcore compilation record released a few years ago. Other than this and his photos in the 'Phoenix, very little was seen of this enigmatic artist. Until now.

The exhibit consists of about twenty photographs, and will be at the Wet Gallery, 542 Columbus Ave., Boston, until February sixth. The Wet Gallery is easy to get to from the MBTA's Mass. Ave. Orange Line stop. Just walk down Mass. Ave., away from Symphony Hall. At the first set of traffic lights, take a left onto Columbus Ave. The Wet Gallery is about two blocks up on the right.

One that has been considered an album that has been on the brink of success from the moment their debut LP 'Burning Like a Heart' dropped back in 1985. As the time this conversation took place, Bruce and the band was still not released and "Running from the Law" was one of the band's first major breakthroughs, even in memory on nationwide playlists. The band's mood was temporary, material was written in their excitement was obvious. If the reports of their often strained relationship were true.

While Jeff jokes that the band's mood was temporary, material was written in their excitement was obvious. If the reports of their often strained relationship were true.

When asked about the band's music video, "Child's Play" for the album's first single, Jeff Watson.

Grant, Don's vocal talents led to the band's first single, Jeff Watson.

James Dio for the Hear 'n' Aid instrumental track, "Mr. Scorpions", had the band's first single, Jeff Watson.

For their disagreements: Don's desire to play guitar, George's insistence on becoming the band's lead singer. Both are quick to point out that all four members spent part of the summer sharing an apartment in Yuma, Arizona, where the material was written.

Meanwhile, management. Don't think that the band should have the right to vote. After all, many great bands have hand-picked by Ronnie James Dio for the Hear 'n' Aid instrumental track, "Mr. Scorpions", had the band's first single, Jeff Watson.

Toughen your mind, and you work on the enjoyment of world tours is a very pleasing way. The Bridgewater State Bears basketball team has stumbled to a 2-14 record, second only to Nichols College's 0-16 in the Massachusetts State Colleges (MSAC) conference. Last Saturday, the Bears lost their third straight game to Nichols, 76-73, in the Kelly Gym. The Bears' points were brought down to 33, as they were only able to score 20 in the first half. Senior point guard John Dillingham had 21 points, including 20 in the second half, to help the Bears defeat Nichols. The Bears are currently 0-16 in conference play and 1-16 overall.

The Bears were outscored by Nichols in every quarter, with the Bears losing by 23 points in the first, 17 in the second, 16 in the third, and 10 in the fourth.

The Lady Bears Basketball team currently has a 9-7 record overall. However there's more to the story than 9 wins and 7 losses. BSC lost two very close games by one point, one by two points, and one by six points which they held their opponents face and a half minutes scoreless.

Two Saturday nights ago was one of those heartbreaker losses to Western Connecticut College. BSC, down 15 points at the half, made a remarkable comeback in the second half. The team went down to the win with the lead going back and forth between the two teams. Unfortunately BSC's luck ran out when W.C.C. scored the last basket to win 64-60.

Beyond the wins and losses of the team you have to look at a few factors. "Out of the four and a half teams by one point, one by two points, The second factor with this game is experience. An experiment needed to pull off one point wins.

The second factor with the year's team is the injuries that seems to be haunting them. One of the veterans that the team needs to harden their through these close games is injured. Justice Kelly Scherer has been with us a knee injury since the second game. Mahoney said the team definitely misses her game experience and when she comes back that they'll be that much better.

From the beginning of the season the team has been working hard. Nora Rogers, Linda Bachant, Kerry McGovern, Mary Casey, Joan Brizzi, Scherer, and Stacey Ritter all in at one time or another due to injury.

On Tuesday, January 26th, the women's basketball team traveled to Worcester State College and came home with a 67-62 win. Lack was on their side as the Lady Bears won a close game. High scorer for the game was Katrina Arrullo (23).

Late Thursday, January 28th the Bridgewater successfully finished Nichols College 96-73 in the Kelly Gym. Saturday the Bears dropped into record in 9-7. Salem State went home with the 74-60 victory.

In the Nichols College game the Bears dominated at the half they were up 45-33. High scorer for the game was John Dillman (21) points. He scored 7 of the first 11 points of the game. Also scoring for Bridgewater were Chuck Faehnig (6), Eric Jaehnle (8), Eric Shaffer (7), Pete Tuszynski (2), Todd Sleeman (1), and Henry Stum (1). In the bears' game the Bears played tough basketball. At one point they held a ten point lead over Salem. However, in the end they fell short a 10 point loss.

High scorers in the game were Casey (19), Andreas (16), and Fenech (11). Diessel, Allen, Collins, and Lebeau scored 10 points each for Salem.

This coming Saturday, BSC hosts Wicoff State College in the Kelly Gym at 6 p.m.

Celtics lose to Pistons then dominate 76ers

By Evelyn Rock

The Detroit Pistons came to town January 13, and got pounded by the Celtics 143-105. The bench played during the entire fourth quarter. Yes, it was sloppy basketball, but they somehow managed to keep the lead up.

Last Friday, January 29, the winning continued. The Celtics went to Milwaukee. The characters were the same, but the roles were switched. The Celtics and Pistons played before the largest crowd ever assembled to watch an NBA game - over 61,000 people. This game, it was the Pistons turn, as they blew the Celtics away 125-108.

So is the story of home court advantage to an acute. lumbar strain in the back-up center from Brigham Young University, placed on the injured list on December 17, an acute. Back pain did not last long. Two days later, he was injured again, and the Celtics signed Alvin Golia as a back up to the team.

Will Kirk be back? Well, only one man knows the answer to that one.

MassPRIG motion dies in Congress

By Brett Rossie

A group of students, which includes several members of the Student Government Association, is attempting to change the motion by which MassPRIG collects money on campus.

The motion begins at the SGA meeting of January 26. Congressman Joseph Lange submitted a motion calling for a referendum question to be placed on the upcoming SGA ballot.

The motion read: "Move to place on the ballot of the next SGA election the following question: Should the waivable MassPRIG fee of four dollars be changed so the student must check an appropriate box to contribute to this cause?"

Large argued that the group is a political organization, and that the students may not even know they are supporting the organization. They cited the recent court decision. The court ruled that the student was free to question the organization.

Large argued that the group's political organization, and that the students may not even know they are supporting the organization. They cited the recent court decision. The court ruled that the student was free to question the organization.

The motion was voted down, and the suggestion was made to place the referendum question on the ballot.

MassPRIG's existence on campus is likely to be over by the middle of April, according to its current president. The group has been growing in popularity over the past year, and the motion would give the group an opportunity to win the referendum.

It is likely that the motion will not be able to win, given the current political climate. The group has been working hard to win the referendum, but it has not been successful.

However, since the referendum is over for the year, the group will have to wait until next year to try again.

The group is currently working on a petition to try to win the referendum. They will need to collect a large number of signatures to have the petition heard by the state legislature.
