Consumer Affairs expert speaks to Management students

By Ed Ward

"Our office deals heavily in consumer protection. It's not just a place for consumers to complain," explained Massachusetts Association for Business and Professional Women's President and CEO Michael Luke, president of the Society for the Advancement of Management, and a frequent guest speaker. "This is an essay that was prepared to explain what we do, and to explain some of the things that we've done," he added.

"It is an essay that was prepared to explain what we do, and to explain some of the things that we've done," he added.

Consumer protection is an important issue to an office, Luke said. "The main goal of the office is to make sure that people are protected from fraud and abuse, and to provide information to consumers about their rights," he said.

Luke explained that the office helps people to understand their rights, and to help them to avoid scams and fraud. "We also help people to file complaints with the proper authorities," he said.
Ortega blunders the peace process in Honduras

By Christopher Perry

Special to The Comment

A great specie began last week when President Ortega sent U.S. troops down to Honduras, Present groups appeared in many cases. The entire group was a protest against the health department, which Ortega believes is the cause of the peace process.

The opposition believes that the peace process should not be stopped because of the health department, as a result, the possibility of stopping the peace process should be considered.

President Ortega has also been criticized for his handling of the peace process.

When I think of Zappa, I think of his unapologetic contribution to rock and roll. His music was both rebellious and insightful, and he never shied away from expressing hisviews. He was an icon of the counterculture movement, and his music continues to inspire generations.

What about the white guys?

It's time for a White Guy History Month

Commentary

By Christine Howard

Staff writer

We just finished celebrating Black History Month, and now it's White Guy History Month. Why not? White guys are just as important as black guys.

What about the average white guy? White guys don't have a month or a week to celebrate their existence. Why not? White guys deserve a day to celebrate their existence. Why not? We need to start celebrating the existence of the white guy.

Pat Robertson should be given another day. He is such a huge racist, why would people want to celebrate his existence? What about white guys who are actually nice and don't hate black people? Why are those people not celebrated?

In this country, white guys are the most vocal and the most influential. They are the ones who are always talking about how great they are. Why are those voices not amplified?

In the future, we should have a whole month to celebrate the white guy. It should be called White Guy History Month.

Perspectives

By John Baus

Staff writer

One of the subjects that gets a lot of debate at the BSC is whether or not there should be a white guy history month. Days of this semester, the topic was discussed in BSC. Those who are against it say that it is unnecessary, and that it will only increase the divide between black and white guys.

Pat Robertson should be given another day. He is such a huge racist, why would people want to celebrate his existence? What about white guys who are actually nice and don't hate black people? Why are those people not celebrated?

S социально, the white guy's history is very important. It's a part of our history, and it should be celebrated.

Consequently, does it really mean anything if we don't acknowledge the history of the white guy? Does it mean that we are all equals and that we should all be treated the same?

Of course, Michael J. Fox has his own day, but white guys don't. It's time for a White Guy History Month.

What does PRIRG mean?

PRIRG stands for Pollution of the River, I think. It's a group that's been around for a while. As far as I know, they are still around. I don't know if they have any specific goals or if they are just a loose group of people.

One of the things that PRIRG is known for is their efforts to clean up the river. They've had some success, but there's still a lot of work to be done.

I recently spoke with the leader of PRIRG, and he said that they are working on a new project to clean up the river. They are looking for donations to help fund the project.

I hope they are successful, because the river is an important part of our community.

Others will know him because of his former guitarist Steve Vai (and currently David Lee Roth's guitarist). En. Zappa's music is full of social issues, and his fans appreciate it. He has earned accolades and praise, and has become a rock star. He is one of the few musicians that has sold out his style or message to sell records, and his fans appreciate it. Campus Conversation with Deb Willis

By Bryan Hayes

Counselor staff

Spring has officially arrived in Bridgewater, bringing with it balmy days. But for the Bridgewater State College Men's Baseball team, such a feeling has been growing for the past few weeks. The season begins at the end of March, and both Coach Glenn Dunn and the team are looking forward to new scenery.

With the team we have also grown, as the number of players we can expect to see bigger and better this year, stated Tully, who is looking to coach the team for the third straight year. In the past two years, Tully has led the team to post-season play.

In the 1987 season, the team finished tenth in the ECAC, but is looking to improve that finish in 1988. The team will be playing with a full roster of players, with Sean Flaherty and Matt Dunphy expected to be key contributors.

Deb Willis is the Sister of Coach Glenn Dunn, as Dunn and Willis have worked together on the team for many years. Willis has been a valuable asset to the team, providing guidance and support to the players and Dunn.

Q: I am just graduating from high school and have received interest from colleges whom I have been offered scholarships for track. I have been running in road races for about two years now. If I run in a race that offers cash or other prizes, will this jeopardize my college eligibility?

A: Yes. A student-athlete who participates in road racing competitions where cash or merchandise prizes are awarded would be ineligible for inter-collegiate competition, according to the Constitution of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (Article Three, Section 1, Subsection a).

There have been a number of court cases over interpretation of the NCAA rules and regulations, particularly in the area of competing for money. Young competitors often are unaware that their involvement leaves them ineligible. To obtain an NCAA manual, write the National Collegiate Athletic Association, One Campus Center, Boston, Mass. 02215.

Q: I am about to buy my first house and my wife tells me that we need our own lawyer for the deal. I've already spoken with the bank lawyer, who says that she'll handle our closing. Do we need our own lawyer?

A: It's a good idea to have your own attorney review the documents of a real estate transaction. The bank attorney technically represents the interest of the bank and may not see possible problems that may exist for you. Also, your own attorney should be able to keep an eye on the fine print and other important facts that may affect you. Where a problem arises between the buyer and the bank, the bank attorney will have to be your adversary. See a real estate attorney.

Q: Instead of a formal Will, can't I just write a letter and hide it somewhere so when I die my wife will be able to use the letter as my Will?

A: Unfortunately such a letter would not serve as a proper Will. When you die, all of your assets would be probated through the courts before they could be distributed to your wife or children. In Massachusetts, Wills must be properly drafted and executed before two witnesses. This special requirement exists because of the concern that false Wills would be created by unscrupulous persons. To avoid the pitfalls of probate, have a Will drafted by someone qualified to do so.

Softball team prepares for 1988

By Bryan Hayes

Counselor staff

The Bridgewater State College Women's Softball team is gearing up for their 1988 season in high style. With practices under way and less than one week until the season opener's first pitch, Coach Darrell Endress is looking forward to an excellent season.

Last year, the BSC women's softball team won the ECAC tournament, and made it to the NCAA final before falling to the eventual champion. Endress hopes to accomplish that again, and this year, going further.

"This year, we have eight returners and six new players who are returning," said Troy Evans, the team's captain.

"We're going to keep this team strong and we're going to win," added Tully, who is looking to coach the team for the third straight year. In the past two years, Tully has led the team to post-season play.

In the 1987 season, the team finished tenth in the ECAC, but is looking to improve that finish in 1988. The team will be playing with a full roster of players, with Sean Flaherty and Matt Dunphy expected to be key contributors.

"Overall, this is basically the same team as last year," said Tully. "The lineup will be similar, but we have added some new players this year. We're excited to see how they will fit in with the returning players."

Tully is pleased with the team's morale of spring practices. "We're excited and ready to go," Tully said.

Leading the team is Troy Evans, the team's captain. Endress also has high hopes for her club softball team. "Overall, this is a very talented team," said Endress. "I think we have the potential to be very good."
