London questions Guardian Angels

The New York based group, The Guardian Angels arrived in London, with four members, to train over 20 volunteers who will patrol London subway. A crowd, familiar with the terminal when they arrived, however, was not pleased by the group's presence. The four members were detained for over seven hours by British officials at London's Gatwick Airport.

Finally, the Home Office said that Guardian Angels could stay for a six-month period, as long as the active citizens can help the police fight crime. He also said that they should build on that idea, and not introduce a new one, like the Angels.

Salvador peace talks

On Tuesday, Salvadoran rebels offered to take part in elections, but this request was rejected by the ruling Christian Democratic Party's presidential candidate Fidel Chavez.

Quayle will not preside over Senate

Vice President Dan Quayle has decided that he will not use a large amount of his time presiding over the Senate. Quayle had originally planned to use his constitutional power to be an "independent force for honesty as President."

His decision to back out avoids a showdown with the Senate's Democratic majority. Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia warned Quayle earlier in the week that he is "unprepared" for Quayle to assume the active role in the Senate that he had sought.

Fighting to stop unfair trade rules

The Senate Commerce Committee has announced that they will make for an attempt to crack down on unfair foreign trade practices, provided that Robert Mosbacher is confirmed as Commerce secretary.

Look toward the future

As students, faculty and staff begin another year of classes at Bridgewater State College, many reflect upon where the college has been. Most wonder, however, to look towards 1989 and contemplate where the college is and will be heading. Few of us have any idea where the college is and they cannot imagine what the college will be like in three years.

"Don't forget, you are president of the college. Will you be able to retain your vision?"

The college is looking forward to having a President who has a "take charge" attitude but is also capable of delegating duties to those he feel are qualified to do so. The impression which is being presented now by the faculty and administration is that Tinsley can fulfill this need. Good luck to President Tinsley.

The Administration make decisions which the students of the college will not perceive as a change in the traditional role of the college. Using the past as an indication, however, students and faculty must change if the college is to remain on the cutting edge.

"It is not the function of the Massachusetts State高等教育 system to find a solution to the financial crisis which the college is facing. It is the responsibility of those of us who attend or teach at Bridgewater, to find ways to improve the financial crisis which would affect the most amount of students as possible. For example, find a Buzzard Avenue Student Study Room, buying a Career Information Computer, or proposing new student community and projects which the students need to realize.

"A Governor who will take a stand on the need for change at the Massachusetts State高等教育 system in the most recent State of the Address, Education (Higher Education) was never mentioned. Although the role is for a better educated set of students, the students WHICH ARE BEING ENRAGED are not permitted this. The unhappiness of the Governor's "positive attitude" needs to be changed.

"The new residence halls are being completed on time. Students are currently waiting to move out of their residence halls in all of the other residence halls. These residence halls will hopefully be built quicker than the current residence halls.

"For students to have an attitude, it reflects an interest in the college. The personal involvement of students in the college is much more than the traditional role of the college. If the students do not change this trend, there will be no future for the college.

SGA asks for the students help in determining special projects

Due to the state of the Massachusetts financial situation and its implications to the Bridgewater State College, it is necessary for the Student Government Association to escape from their load of $350,000 and to provide them with a financial aid package. One of the major decisions which the College President, in order to support a mission of Student Community and projects which the students need to realize, must change if the college is to remain on the cutting edge. Two. There is no question that it is a powerful threat. With the Governor's "Greenhouse Effect" the implementation of the student project will be the next step.

A letter of appreciation

To the Editor:

I would like to publicly express my gratitude to each and every one of the Financial Aid Office: Rosale Ann Amorosi, Amanda McDonald, Michelle Kelly, Sally Hamilton, Andrea Marie, and Ms. Janet. And Ms. Samantha, especially thank you. It was the sensitive way in which you handled so many people, really made my college education possible.

Throughout the three years that I was an undergraduate at BSC, it was always people to be polite to, to help me.

The legal and moral question concerning abortion

To the Editor:

In 1973, the Supreme Court of the United States declared the right to an abortion a "fundamental right" and made it impossible for states to place any restrictions on abortion. Since then, many people have asked whether there should be any restrictions on abortion. Some people believe that there should be no restrictions on abortion, while others believe that there should be restrictions on abortion.

The two main arguments against abortion are that the procedure is unsafe and that it is a violation of a woman's right to privacy. The first argument is that the procedure is unsafe because it can result in the death of the woman or the baby. The second argument is that the procedure violates a woman's right to privacy because it is a personal decision that should be made by the woman and her doctor, not the government.

I believe that there should be restrictions on abortion. I believe that the procedure should be available only to women who are in a life-threatening situation. I believe that there should be restrictions on who is allowed to perform the procedure. I believe that there should be restrictions on the location of the procedure. I believe that there should be restrictions on the number of times a woman can have an abortion.

SAQA asks for the students help in determining special projects

SGA asks for the help of the students in determining special projects for the upcoming year. Due to the nature of the Massachusetts situation and its implications to the Student Government Association (SGA) on the 10th of March, a special meeting is to be held to discuss these issues.

The SGA has decided to hold a special meeting on Monday, March 10th, at 5:00 pm in the Student Union to discuss these issues. All students are encouraged to attend.

R. A. McMichael, President, SGA

A letter of appreciation

To the Editor:

I would like to publicly express my congratulations to all of the staff of the Financial Aid Office. Boos Amstead, Marion McNellis, Rich Hall, Sally Hawkinson, Ann Monroe, and Ms. Lang. And, Ms. Smetsers, especially thank you. It was wonderful to feel that you "do not exist."

For the students who have an attitude, it is an asset in the college. The personnel commonly get along well and there are no problems for them to change this attitude. Since staff members have general student community interest and program, a move needs to be made from the traditional college student to the non-traditional college student. The students should go first.

To find out what the students want, it should be seen that the college oversees previous research. The organization will not give up its seclusion. The college should be the first step towards providing the services to the students.

The problem with principle first year teachers is where to find the job.

As soon as all materials are always available to find positions for their graduating teachers, your paper may be of interest in your teachers finding employment for the following year, and it is nice to know that you have published a book.

We would like to say that the college oversees previous research. The organization will not give up its seclusion. The college should be the first step towards providing the services to the students.

Jeff Tucker, Columnist

In 1973, the Supreme Court of Massachusetts upheld the right to abortion in Roe v. Wade. The decision allows a woman to choose to terminate her pregnancy up to a certain time during her pregnancy. This decision was based on the fact that the Supreme Court has no constitutional right to compel the government to protect the right to abortion. The Supreme Court did not take into account the impact of a child who is born. It is not an issue of the government's role in protecting the life of the woman's privacy.

With the Supreme Court's overruling of Roe v. Wade, the state's right to overrule the Roe v. Wade decision did not come about. The state's right to overrule the Roe v. Wade decision did not come about.

The other two, adoptions and placements, are approved and rejected on an individual basis. The Supreme Court would only make a decision if there is an unmet need, whereas, the state's right to overrule the Roe v. Wade decision did not come about.

The legal and moral questions concerning abortion

Now that nuclear weapons have been declared as the first job by the government, the legal and moral questions concerning abortion are again on the agenda.

The legal and moral questions concerning abortion are again on the agenda. Do we have the right to take a life which is not our own? Is it not absolutely necessary to preserve the life of a person who is not our own?

This new life has a potential to be a great help against rejection. The rejection of a student, for example, is not a rejection; it is a rejection of an individual.

At 19 days, the eyes start to develop and at 28, the ear formation begins. This is when the embryo is recognizable by the surgeon. In the embryo, no further development can be expected at this stage. The legal and moral questions concerning abortion

Now that nuclear weapons have been declared as the first job by the government, the legal and moral questions concerning abortion are again on the agenda.

The legal and moral questions concerning abortion are again on the agenda. Do we have the right to take a life which is not our own? Is it not absolutely necessary to preserve the life of a person who is not our own?

This new life has a potential to be a great help against rejection. The rejection of a student, for example, is not a rejection; it is a rejection of an individual.

At 19 days, the eyes start to develop and at 28, the ear formation begins. This is when the embryo is recognizable by the surgeon. In the embryo, no further development can be expected at this stage. How do you feel about the handstamping security policy initiated by the housing staff this week?

"I'm not for it because it's not very attractive for freshmen to twenty-five year olds to walk around like kids with stamps on their hands. I think it aggravates the problem more than it will help it."

"Well, it looks like Tylos has stationed on to another nightmare business."

Expand your horizons

By Callis Andrews

Instead of working at that same old job for spring break and for the summer, expand your horizons. Outward Bound is a nonprofit organization that helps thousands of people (mostly college age) become stronger. The program is mentally and physically challenging. Students discover hidden talents, become more self confident, stronger and bears more about the environment in which they live.

The program offers a diverse selection of activities, some of which include cross country skiing, dog sledding, mountain backpacking, white water rafting, and sailing. The variety is available because there are several areas which keep the Outward Bound program. Some of the states include Maine, North Carolina, Colorado, Illinois, and Oregon. Due to the various climates, the activities are offered year round.

But one way ask who are the programs geared for? Well, the programs are open to everyone. The students must be at least 16 years old and in good health. There is no upper age limit. The Outward Bound has a special program for people over age 55. It is relatively easy in quality and the training. However, some people may be concerned about expense. Fortunately, no one owes experience. The first part of the Outward Bound experience is training and physical conditioning. During this time, a qualified, experienced instructor will teach technical skills, safety, first aid, compass reading, wilderness cooking, rock climbing, and more. Learning that these adventures is experiences, the more care and caution are needed to succeed.

The second part of the program is the extended journey in which eight to 12 people (the team) and instructor develop a working relationship with one another, as each person relies on the other another within the team. The middle part is the most memorable for many, is the solo. This period of solitude for one to three days without responsibility, care or distractions from the hands and brains of any college student's daily life.

Phase four is the final expedition when the team journeys together with less supervision than in phase two. This event is a challenge, yet quite rewarding at the same time. Team work is the theme during this phase.

The finale of the trip usually consists of paddling or skiing and then group reflects on the feelings and personal discoveries. This time is taken to reflect on what the Outward Bound adventure was all about.

Some interested people are the students by the administration of physical activity. Members do not have to be athletic to get involved. Of course, it will be physically challenging, but once you are in it will be fun and exciting. Some spectacular views of the mountains, and the opportunity to meet new people. People will make a difference in their lives.

Readers of the Comment will now be able to read Gary Larson's zany comic, "The Far Side" in next week's issue. The universal Press Syndicate, which distributes Larson's comic, forwarded background information to be presented to you. He sells out at high.

Larson has had three books on the New York Times bestseller list. He appears to a large variety and offends many in the same time. Yes, his characters adorn many a door in the form of calendars, maps, T-shirts, books, and greeting cards. Larson was surprised at his quick success and said, "It's all sort of normal."

Larson, 36, grew up in Tacoma, Washington and was a hike the typical boy next door. His and his older brother Dave collected dolls, sundae, and snakes, and would occasionally feed his brother's rabbit. Larson attended Southern California State University, majoring in journalism and his father a car salesmanremely rarely talks about his books and activities.

As a child, he drew quite a bit, but never expected to become a cartoonist. He drew garlands, dinosaurs, and others of the animal kingdom.

His interest in drawing stopped after junior high, when music, particularly the guitar, took over his leisure. Music is still a hobby of his. Just his favorite type of music.

He graduated from Washington State University with a major in communications. At the time he was in high school his calling was to save society from available advertising. So when does his cartoon career begin? Well, being in a comic, he is always on the lookout for new stuff.

What do you call a man who is a Reverend, has a Bachelor degree from Boston University and is named Doug Williamson? "I tell people you can call me anything the." Yet, he is most commonly being called Doug.

Williamson is the new prominent minister on campus who wishes student of all faiths to live in as a resource of friendship, guidance, red, of courses, as a minster. His ways to have a positive influence on the people he encounters and on those who encounter him; including family, staff, administra- tion, and students.

Williamson, who came to Bridgewater State College from Lindsey Wilson College in Kentucky, looks forward to getting involved with the college community. He holds degrees in English and theology.

Soccer has been a valuable part of his life and he has missed the action of being a soccer coach for years. This was then four after six years of coaching soccer.

Renewed interest occurs in the field of psychology

Contributed by
Dr. Richard T. Colgan,
Professor of Psychology

"Welcome" to all new BSC students and "Welcome back" to all undergraduates, graduates and even evening college scholars. Best wishes for a highly successful and intellectually stimulating '89 Spring Semester!

For the first time in almost 20 years, college graduates face brighter job prospects as the number of jobs requiring a college degree, especially jobs in professional occupations, is expected to grow by more than 40 percent. Management majors will increase by 60 percent and those for technicians and marketing people will grow by 70 percent or more, according to Gary Dressler, management consultant and professor at Florida International University.

While some imbalance is expected, those who carefully select their career objectives, complete their preparation and learn how to look for a job and market themselves - skills which can be learned while in college - will still have the smoothest transition from school to work.

Last semester the Psychology Club and the Psi Chi National Honor Society, in cooperation with the Career Planning and Placement Center, conducted a highly successful job planning seminar.

The Psi Chi National Honor Society, in Psychology, executive committee, faculty advisors and departmental faculty staff are screening for scholastic achievement the credentials of a sizable number of Honor Society applicants early this semester. Announcements to successful candidates to the Life-Member society will be made later this semester and prior to BSC Awards Day.

Due to the fine-tuning interest on the part of BSC students in the field of psychology, nearly 40 percent of the department's undergraduate classes - many of them with a capacity of 50 students - closed out five days before the winter break.

The goal is to help the student in the field of psychology. Psychologists attained parity with psychiatrists within the federal judicial system with regard to court-ordered mental examinations and determinations of competence. The half-century of discrimination by the medical-psychoanalytic establishment against psychologists seeking psychoanalytic training is over. This may have been partially responsible for the increased interest in all fields of psychology.

Self-motivated and advanced graduate students, who are interested in the scientific approach to parapsychology are encouraged to consider the summer study program at J.B. Rhine's former Parapsychology Laboratory at Duke University.

The Institute for Parapsychology Foundation for Research on the Nature of Man remains the leading research and educational center in the field. The intensive eight-week course for which academic credit may be arranged is limited to less than 10 persons per summer session. Additional information may be obtained from Dr. Richard T. Colgan, Rm 330 Burrill Academic Bldg., or via reference to the announcements on the Psychology Club bulletin board.

Do you have $125 to spare? The Commonwealth of Massachusetts thinks you do.

The cost of attending BSC is going up $125 effective in February.

dead job and a music store, he drew as an artist and writer for a magazine in Seattle. The established comic art style of the Far Side has been featured in magazines for 15 years. The paycheck was his inspiration.

By 1979 he had a regular column in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. After a year, they sold his cartoon was carried in more than 200 newspapers, and a couple of people like the Far Side, he sold his cartoon to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

From that point on, after promotion offers, more and more newspapers began to take him. In 1983, Lange and I am published in over 600 newspapers, some as far as France and Japan.

Larson does not like giving interviews, partly because of the pressure of the audience expectations. He is a bit of a hermit as one who makes his cartoons while he is in the corner. He is seldom seen in his art studio or in his house. He is a bit of an eccentric, a bit of a loner.

Larson was born in 1950 in Seattle, Washington. He is married to a journalist and they have two children. He has a bachelor's degree in art from the University of Washington.

To increase the amount of security in the residence hall, the Women's Residence Hall Council has decided to purchase a new lock system. The new lock system will be installed in all dorm rooms on the Bridgewater State campus.

The new lock system will be installed by a professional locksmith who will also implement a new card access system. This system will be implemented to help prevent unauthorized access to the dorm rooms.

The new lock system will be installed over the next few weeks and will be completed by the end of the semester. The new lock system will be installed in all dorm rooms on the Bridgewater State campus.
