Gymnasts make a strong performance
Achieve highest score all year versus Ursinus

By Tom Migus

The Bridgewater State women's gymnastics team had its third best meet of the season during Tuesday night's match with Ursinus at the Maxwell Library.

"We all pulled together as a team," said captain Carol Hanagan.

By Ronda Davis

The Bridgewater State women's basketball team has had a successful season so far, with five straight wins and an overall record of 14-4. The team is currently ranked 15th in the nation and has their sights set on a successful conference tournament.

"We have a lot of talented players and a great coaching staff," said head coach Lynda Storms. "We are working hard to improve our performance and continue to work towards our goal of making it to the NCAA tournament."

The team's next game is against Fitchburg State on Saturday, February 10, and they are looking forward to the challenge.

Chairman of the Congress Patrick Pearce presented a motion at the recent SGA meeting on the topic of tuition policy. The motion passed 10-2-1 during the weekly meeting of the Student Government Association. The Congress, which met, was concerned more with their budget management, and the subsequent financial problems, which have resulted in a decline in the quality of education in Massachusetts.

"We want to act on their behalf," Pearce mentioned, "and we need the Congress to support us.

A video interview with Tony Walton, the first African American to receive an Academy Award for Best Actor, was featured in the most recent issue of the campus newspaper, The Student. The interview was conducted by Robert Moses, who has been active in the civil rights movement since the 1960s.

Telling, Bells, university opera, and open art at one of the recent exciting cities in Europe. Oxford, a group of ten students traveled to Oxford from Bridgewater College, as part of the Bridgewater Oxford exchange. This experience was the beginning of three weeks dedicated to exploring the essence of the educational experience at Britain's prestigious universities. We contemplated the great advances before us in the long road from Garrison Airport to our accommodations at St. Hilda's College, Oxford.

St. Hilda's, a seventh-century Albion of the Monastery of Whitby, was founded in 1895, The College is one of thirty-three colleges comprising Oxford University.

Having arrived at the College door in the early morning, we immediately melted away to the main dining room for breakfast. The table setting of six students and one don centered the following day. Who would have believed we would be sitting at the very top of a medieval table with gothic style in an air and the Castle Oxford quadrangle below us! While we led a discussion on the beauty of pastel woods, we noted its solemn tone at our last meal before starting off on our adventure.

We became more and more a part of what we studied, ingesting almost where we came from, as the sessions progressed from work to work. Day trips to sites where artifacts were the "Ancient Mariner," and in Wales where Wordsworth composed "Tintern Abbey," enhanced our literary exposure and muddled our experience. Professors of Classics, History, and William Smillie, went with us every step of the way, helping us gain access to the Bodleian Library, accompanying us to the ornate building at the St. Cross College and advising us on our writing assignments.

We reached London for our final weekend in England, and we were ready to exit! Students took a tour class of the city while others went on a shopping trip stopping where we had visited a visit to the famous Sandeman Department Store. The Sunday evening, we gathered at a grand hotel for a farewell dinner.

Desire for Tougher World Air Security

Samuel Skinner, the Secretary of Transportation, is going to take his measures to ban terrorists to an anniversary seminar next week. Transportation chiefs from over 13 countries have been very impressed with the impressive advancements, in standards, for airline travel and transportation.

One topic which is expected to be discussed is the increase in security for airports and travelers. The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered an increase in security for all Americans and travelers. The move is a result of the 1988 attack on a Pan American Flight 103 crash in the Middle East, and the bombing of the Pan American Flight 1073 in Rome, Italy.

Demand and get more from your student fees

At this point, almost everyone on campus has at least heard about the $125 fee which is being levied on all students. It is hopefully aware of the stand that the SGA has taken against it. One thing we must be: it is absolutely. We will not take part in paying the fee, not unless we have a right to know about it. Whenever a situation arises like this, the students deserve to be informed, to know how to come up. Of course, we cannot afford the fee, and concentrate on more productive ways to raise money. This is why we ask for your support on The Comment, in the form of letters and submissions.

Dear Student Body,

MassPIRG is a nonpartisan, student-run, nonprofit, non-profit organization that represents students on college campuses. It is committed to promoting social justice and environmental sustainability through grassroots organizing and political action. The impeding fee is an "unwarranted punishment"

The Comment

The impending $125 fee that was imposed on the students by the Board of Trustees is really a collection fee, an unjustifiably, unprecedented penalty, and as such, it is incredibly, unconstituted. It is of all those three, because the students have already paid their bills, or are about to do so at open events of grants and taxes, at the commercially agreed price. The college is not entitled, and cannot demand, to get more money. If the college or any other governmental agency demands the money, and subsequently makes threats of cancelling the student’s financial aid, or any other financial aid, etc., they would violate the contract, law, and moral principles, and they would be engaging in unethical and unwise business practices. The students can be held for damage.

The Comment

More than a few of the college community is suffering from a mysterious flu. In some people, it has found easy victims. Classmates have been coughing up their noses, along with the sufferer’s nose. Friends, relatives, and acquaintances have been forced to put up with their patients misery, and the farthest trip made has been across the office, to get a box of orange juice and cough drops. In other cases, the victims have attempted to be more valiant. They have secretly attended to class, society, and even their jobs, despite the illness, and affected

The Comment

The college can only receive the contracted price. The college does not get any money in a per person fee. The college does get not to demand more money for the same reasons why students cannot demand air conditions in their classes. Only requests can be made. Of course, I would say "immediate demand." The Administrators must treat the student like a student; some students and students have been handled, in order to make the seniors sit in August, because the university is so advanced a price. The college is not entitled, and cannot demand, to get more money. If the college or any other governmental agency demands the money, and subsequently makes threats of cancelling the student’s financial aid, or any other financial aid, etc., they would violate the contract, law, and moral principles, and they would be engaging in unethical and unwise business practices. Dear Student Body,

We would like to update you about a new club on campus, Bridgewater Student Concerns about MassPIRG’s (BSC). This club was formed in the fall of 1988 by students who are concerned about negative remarks from the students of BSC.

BSC students have expressed interest in forming a chapter of MassPIRG on campus. The purpose of this chapter is to bring MassPIRG back to the college and to involve interested students.

A MassPIRG chapter is formed when students vote to invite students who support the organization to form a chapter and to assess the support that would provide, and to assess the support that would be shared.

We, the students of MassPIRG, believe that we have the ability to bring positive change to the college community. We are committed to working toward a sensible child care policy and working toward a sensible child care policy.

We are a group of students who are dedicated to making our campus a better place to be. We are dedicated to fighting for the rights of the students of BSC.

We invite students who are interested in learning more about MassPIRG to contact the student Board of Directors, who can provide information about our programs and action plans.

A Valentine’s Day survival guide

by Murci Haba

Comment writer

As the country and across the campus, couples everywhere are eagerly awaiting Valentine’s Day. It is a day when we can say“I love you,” murmur, cuddle, and position ourselves in any angle or position, and shower each other with gifts of candy, flowers, dinner, and champagne. All in all, it is a fairly tense day. Except for those out there who are single.

For them, the best can be a living regimen. You know who you are, those of you who have been known to huddle stoned, feel of you who have been single since the opposite sex for life, for the fifth time. But take heart, there’s still hope.

First, on Valentine’s Day, you must make the necessary arrangements for an evening at the movies. Go to the game at the local theater, or play in the game if you have the money. Perhaps you can count on your own in the local theater, or play in the movie. For instance, you can count on the director of the Day Game, sponsored by the Program Committee, to return you about 11 p.m., and you should be satisfied.

If you want to take your life into account, if you are a romantic movie kind of person, these days, there are many to choose from. There’s a video matching, computer matching, and garage class walks for brunch and dinner. One of the more popular dating services is Together, because, (as a representative says) that a dating service is the way to get for a partner who wants to free of charge.

So you initially approach, you may be interested in the movie and your weight will be next to zero. Perhaps you have a degree in zoology, or a psychology major, or even a woodwork princess. You could find out when in the future you will meet your mate, or even receive a message or email her.

You could even do the ultimate, which would be to pursue on the real One Connection, or the Love Connection. You get more than a name and phone number, even in short romantic trips, maybe you could even meet your future spouse. Who knows?

These suggestions may prove to be a little too expensive. Before you shell out all of your money and weight will be lost in the process, perhaps you boredom out there should just relax. What do you want your future mate to love you, or the way you look on national television? Have a happy Valentine’s Day, everyone!

BSC theatre holds its own in festival

by Peter Ashworth

Comment writer

The case and crew of A Comedy of Errors compared against other regional schools at the American College Theatre Festival last week.

The other schools competing were the University of Rhode Island, New England College, Blackstone College, and Middlebury College, all schools with many theater majors. The Bridgewater production did more than hold its own, being one of the "gussies" of the festival. The results of the competition will not be known for several weeks.

Dr. Susanancy Mauzy’s circus of Errors were well thought out and well executed. By using cloisons, an audience was easily won in the performance and the audience, along the edge of their seats. Everyone loved the performance of the delicious clown played by Karen McDonald.

The show was not the only event that happened at the festival. When the performers, on their own, on the side line, A Comedy of Errors was 1988, and the audience were in their roles. The BSC theatre department found many present in attempting to fill the apple, not only part of the audience.

Health services wants to ask the Bridgewater State College community if their thoughts are already on spring break.

After all, it is only weeks away. If so, the notion of healthy and active may need many people running out to look for the latest, greatest, quickest, diet advice around. However, instead of starving present in attempting to fill the apple, not only part of the audience.

BSC’s Psi Chi National Honor Society in psychology experienced a phenomenal 110% increase in the number of applications from interested undergraduates and graduate students. The applications are currently being reviewed, and thepsi; those candidates whose scholarly psychology and general education accomplishments make them eligible for life membership in the BSC Chapter and the national organization. When final determination is made, candidates who have met the rigorous academic standards will be notified in writing and inducted into the chapter's ceremonies scheduled for the 1989 Awards Day.

Those jobs include working quickly and facing heavy workloads. Karasek's research linked psychosocial stressors, such as, supervisors, workloads, and money, to poor health outcomes, including those discussed at the takeoffs. Focused on the importance of higher education and the schools as the main focus of stress risks, the program is a simulator to the main focus of stress risks in the past decade, resulting in educational and financial hardships as well. The (college's) stressor selection for coordinator reflects sound, comprehensive psychology.

Is it true what they say about red hair? For centuries red hair has been historically linked to the mystical, powerful, evil, fire, passion, and the devil. Ancient Egyptians buried lepers and lepers were killed and older children burned at the stake. Although four percent of the world's population consists of redheads, up to 40% of the world's most creative and influential persons have been men, you guessed it - redheads. They are, according to the English, "the most emotional and sensitive." Perhaps it is the English whomission to take in order to successfully cope.

Cancer Society to sponsor “daffodil days” in March

With a state wide goal to sell 1.5 million daffodils, The South Eastern Unit of the American Cancer Society is preparing for this year’s Daffodil Days Campaign.

This year the deadline to order daffodils is March 6. On March 21 through March 25, daffodils will be distributed to those who have placed orders, states Robert Enos, Daffodil Days Chairman for the South Eastern Unit of the American Cancer Society.

"Last year over nine thousand dollars was raised in the Brookline Area and this year we hope to raise over twelve thousand dollars," Enos noted.

These flowers bring a friend of some of the characteristics of spring while helping in the fight against cancer," Enos explained. A minimum contribution of $25 for the purchase of a daffodil and a box of 50 daffodils can be purchased.

Daffodils are the first flower of spring. Money raised will be used to fund investigators who are making progress in the prevention, detection, and treatment of cancer. The donations will be used to support national programs and services.

This year a number of South Shore communities are involved for the first time with this project. The American Cancer Society would like to welcome the towns of Saugus, Stonington and Sharon to this worthwhile project.

Daffodils can be ordered by calling the American Cancer Society, 204 Pleasant Street, Saugus at (617) 342-4220.

New Portraiture newest show at Clarence Kennedy Gallery

A group exhibition of photographs entitled "New Portraiture" will be on view at the Clarence Kennedy Gallery from January 14 - March 4, 1989. "New Portraiture" explores a range of approaches and styles that have appeared in recent years by photographers using Polaroid film.

This exhibition honors the 15th anniversary of the invention of photography. Visually from the beginning, photography has been used to create likenesses, or portraits, which until now had only been possible in paintings and woodcuts by the privilege of astronomers and the wealthy.

Photographic portraiture has flourished almost since the 1840's. Whether made for documentary, commercial, or artistic purposes, portraiture still represents the pre-digital age of the medium.

"New Portraiture" is a broad survey of work created by both well-established and little-known photographers. In addition to those already mentioned, the show is also comprised of works by the following: Eric Blashfield, Ellen Bratic, Miriam Cain, Jean-Louis-Claude Claude, Francois Curat, Carlos Daub, Martha Debrah, Yvonne Dolez, Tom Young, Helene Doff, and Christine Cudney.

The Clarence Kennedy Gallery is open to the public Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

SGA passes a "no confidence" vote

By Bryan Hayes

The Student Government Association's (SGA) decision to vote "no confidence" in Governor Michael DiCamillo has been met with criticism and support from both sides of the political spectrum. The move, which was announced during the weekly meeting of the SGA, has sparked debate among students and faculty alike.

Congressional chair Patrick O'Donnell, who represents the 10th District, issued a statement following the vote. "It's important to note that our decision was made after careful consideration of the evidence presented," he said. "We decided that the Governor's actions and inactions have led to a loss of confidence among the students of our university."

The move to vote "no confidence" was made following a series of debates and discussions among the SGA members. The decision was supported by 12 of the 24 members, with 12 opposing it.

Some members of the SGA have expressed concern that the move could harm the university's relationship with the state government. "The Governor has been a strong advocate for our university," said SGA President John Smith. "We don't want to undermine that relationship, but we also have a duty to our constituents to act in their best interests."

The vote is expected to have a significant impact on the university's relationship with the state government. The Governor has indicated that he will take the vote as a "clear signal" to act in the best interests of the students and faculty of the university.

Moses speaks about the freedom rides in '60s

By Patricia Cowan

As part of the Afro-American Basketball Conference, Robert Moses spoke at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He spoke passionately about the Freedom Rides, which took place in the 1960s. "The Freedom Rides were about creating a better understanding of what it means to be a black person in America," he said. "We were trying to show the country that we were equal, and that we deserved the same rights as everyone else."

Moses also spoke about the importance of education, and how it can help to bridge the gap between races. "Education is the key to unlocking the potential of every human being," he said. "It's important that we provide every student with the opportunity to learn and grow."

PGA of America Boss: "Mike's" no-confidence vote was a "no confidence" vote

By Ronda Davis, Staff Writer

At Bridgewater State University, the women's basketball team has found themselves in the spotlight once again. The team, led by former head coach Mike DiCamillo, is currently ranked 12th in the national polls. The team is currently 27-2, and has won their last seven games.

"It's great to see the team doing well," said former coach Mike DiCamillo. "But at the same time, we have to remember that we are still a team and we have to work together to reach our goals."

The team's success has not gone unnoticed. "Mike's" no-confidence vote has sparked debate among the university community. Some have praised the move, while others have criticized it.

"Mike's" no-confidence vote has also sparked a conversation about the role of coaches in the university community. "We need to make sure that coaches are held accountable for their actions," said SGA President John Smith. "We need to make sure that they are working towards the best interests of the team and the university."
