There can be no rest for the money-conscious

To the Editor:
I am writing to respond to the position by John W. Murphy (March Comment). I believe the money-conscious viewpoint is incorrect.

One of Mr. Murphy's arguments is that the financial club wields too much power over the SGA budget. Mr. Murphy states that he believes SGA, and not the Finance Club, should decide on the distribution of funds. However, I believe that the Finance Club is the appropriate body to make these decisions. The Finance Club has the expertise and knowledge necessary to make informed decisions. It is also accountable to the students through the SGA, which allows for a form of oversight.

Another argument by Mr. Murphy is that the Finance Club is only interested in increasing its own budget. I disagree. The Finance Club is interested in maximizing the overall budget for student organizations. This is evident in the club's efforts to fundraise and engage with student organizations.

I hope that Mr. Murphy will reconsider his stance on the role of the Finance Club in the budget process. The club has a valuable role to play and should be given the opportunity to continue to make decisions that benefit the student community.

Sincerely,
Student Organization Member

By Bryon Hayes

As a result of the article in the Ancon Herald (Friday April 14) about "Bryon Hayes," my name is not to be found in the official dedication.

The fact is that I am the only person who is not here. I do not wish to be here. I would rather be anywhere else, but I am trapped here by the circumstances of my life.

In conclusion, I will say that the person named in the article is not me. The person named in the article is not in my interest.

Senior officers support Murphy as the Commonwealth speaker

As president of the Senior Class, I join my fellow student leaders in welcoming the Governor to the Commonwealth State College.

Today, as the governor speaks to our classmates, I am reminded of the importance of our role as leaders in this great institution.

On election day, we are called upon to vote for the candidate of our choice. This is an important responsibility, and it is one that we should not take lightly.

I believe that we should support Murphy, the candidate supported by the Commonwealth State College community.

For these reasons, I urge all of you to support Murphy as the Commonwealth speaker.

The good old days

By Byron Hayes

The good old days are almost over. Many people have asked me what I think of the new administration, and I have replied that I think it is a good one.

I believe that the new administration is headed by a team of dedicated public servants with admirable qualities of leadership and a record of achievement on behalf of the citizens of the Commonwealth. Murphy, the first woman elected to constitutional office in Massachusetts, is a positive role model for the grading class. Every core-gender group feels secure in itself; she holds a bachelor's degree from Dalai, a master's degree from Columbia, and a doctorate in economics.

The great depression and the war have made this fact known. They also made many local, commercial weeklies. The paper can go still farther in its growth, but we've pulled through. Although it has. Finals are less than two years away, and the overall design of the newspaper keeps up the good work, and people will listen to him, the paper can go still farther in its growth. Maris Green also contributed with blocked passes and aggressive defense that denied several goals. Nancy Delaney and Joanna Stone combined with one. Webber, Costa, and Erickson each scored important goals in overtime to finish the sudden death.

Next source proves to be promising. Approximately 90% of the team this year were underclassmen who will be returning.
