Foreword

THE editorial board of the 1927 Normal Offering has endeavored to present to you a book typical of the life and spirit of the school. The attempt has been made to adhere, strictly, to all laws of harmonious arrangement of subject matter and illustration, so that the appeal may be made to the eye, as well as to the mind.

It has been the purpose of the editors to assemble a book, which is a symbol of the love and respect felt for our Alma Mater.

When the years spent in Bridgewater Normal School are only a memory, may you re-live your schooldays in the pages of this, the Normal Offering of 1927.
To Our New School Building

We dedicate the Normal Offering of 1927, with the sincere desire that it will serve for many years as the example and inspiration of high ideals.

“Coiled up in this institution, as in a spring, there is a vigor whose uncoiling may wheel the spheres.”

Horace Mann
ALMA MATER

Dedicated to Dr. Albert G. Boyden
Principal, 1860-1906

Oh loved Alma Mater we greet thee,
Thy daughters and sons from afar,
As often we pause in our toiling
To hail thee, whose children we are.

Refrain

    Hail to Normal! Hail to Normal!
    Safe for aye in mem'ry's shrine;
    Hail to Normal! Dear old Normal!
    Praise and love be ever thine.

With strong, steady hand dost thou lead us,
Thy powerful arm is our stay;
Thy light is our beacon in darkness,
Which ever will lend us its ray.

Oh may thy fair name live forever,
Be deeply impressed on each heart;
That we in our trials and triumphs
May ne'er from thy guidance depart.

Dedication of the State Normal School at Bridgewater

On October 23, 1926, there gathered in the Horace Mann Auditorium, an impressive assembly of many of the foremost educators in New England. A great number of them were Bridgewater Normal Alumni, who, rejoicing in the erection of the beautiful new buildings of their Alma Mater, came to attend the dedicatory exercises.

Dr. Payson Smith, State Commissioner of Education, was the presiding officer.

After an invocation by the Reverend Egbert C. Prime, of Bridgewater, musical numbers were rendered by a trio, composed of violin, cello, and piano.

The first address was given by His Excellency, Alvan T. Fuller, Governor of the State of Massachusetts, who spoke in part, as follows:

"We honor Bridgewater for vastly more than the length of her service and the number of her graduates. We hold Bridgewater in the highest esteem for the sterling principles which she has championed from the beginning, and I refer particularly to the principle that any education worthy of the name must minister to spirit as well as to intellect. In the second report of the Board of Education signed by Edward Everett, I find the following significant statement: 'The principles of Christian ethics and piety common to the different sects of Christians will be carefully inculcated, and a portion of Scripture will be daily read in all the normal schools established by the Board'. Education and character training were to go hand in hand in order to achieve the noblest results.

From the time of her foundation to the present day Bridgewater has been favored with the highest type of leadership, and one that has given continuity to these early conceptions of education. The first principal, Colonel Nicholas Tillinghast, was characterized as a man of strong religious feeling, pure character, and unflinching devotion to principle; and I find Mr. Albert G. Boyden, the honored leader of this institution during more than half of her entire history, expressing his educational philosophy in the following language: 'The normal school stands for certain definite ideals—first, for the inspiration of its students with the spirit of the true teacher who has the spirit of service and comes to his pupils as the Great Teacher comes to men, 'that they may have life and have it more abundantly'."

Next, the school Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Frieda Rand, sang two selections.

In the absence of Dr. William G. Vinal, president of the Bridgewater Normal School Alumni Association, Mrs. Cora M. Barry, vice-president of the association, extended a few words of greeting.

Greetings from the town of Bridgewater were given by Clifton C. Putney, Superintendent of Schools.

Mr. Frank W. Wright, Director of the Division of Elementary and Secondary Education and Normal Schools, then addressed the audience. In part, he said:

"We see in these splendid buildings renewed evidence that Massachusetts places the preparation of her teachers among her primary duties. She is here rededicating herself to the task of carrying forward, through the decades of the future, the important work begun by our far-visioned leaders of more than four-score years ago.

On the simple stone that marks the grave of Horace Mann in the Old North Burying Ground in Providence is this meaningful inscription, 'Whatever is excellent, as God lives, is permanent.’ The work of the skilled teacher is excellent. Look about you during every hour of every day if you would see the permanent values of good teaching.

A line from Chaucer adorns one of the ancient buildings at Oxford. It reads, ‘Gladly does he learn and gladly teach.’ No more fitting inscription could grace the portal of this school, and no more compelling ideal guide its work. Generously has the Commonwealth here provided an institution worthy of its task. Gladly, let us hope and believe, will thousands leave this campus to return to the State an hundred fold the benefits here received.”

Following more music, came the dedicatory address by Principal Arthur C. Boyden, of the State Normal School at Bridgewater. We regret that because of the unavoidable lack of space we cannot print the whole of this most interesting and enlightening address. First Mr. Boyden paid tribute to Mr. Samuel P. Gates, a graduate of the school, through whose generosity the present advantageous site of the building was made possible. Then in words of sincere admiration, Mr. Boyden spoke of Horace Mann, the great educator, after which he spoke as follows:

“There are four objectives in the Normal school ideal:

(1) A professional centre. The new conception gaining force in education emphasizes the fact that the ‘child is the centre of gravity in education’, and not the subject matter of instruction. This means that the ampest facilities for the observation of children, for demonstration purposes, and for training in teaching, both intensive and extensive, are the vitals of a Normal school. This means that both the cultural and the technical instruction must focus on the specific professional purpose of the school, just as a lens held in right relation to the sun's rays and to sensitive tinder, will cause a burning flame. Students in the Normal school must live the life that will best prepare them to direct the experiences of those whom they teach, and teaching thus becomes a fine art. The old Prophet in his description of the ideal condition of life closed with those beautiful words—'and a little child shall lead them.'

(2) A professional faculty. The expression often heard to-day is—'to teach is to interpret'. The older phases of the teacher's work are not neglected, but it is being more clearly recognized that the principal function of the teacher is twofold—to interpret to herself the young life in all of its many, and often strange, manifestations, and to interpret life in all its complexity to the new generation. Only a teacher who is perpetually young can do this. This power to interpret life in its rich meaning is a gift and an achievement—the real teacher is born and 'born again'. There is a still fundamental truth in Garfield's well-known description of a college—'a youth at one end of a log and Mark Hopkins at the other end.' There is also a wonderful inspiration in the words of the great scientist who wished placed on his monument these simple words—'Louis Agassiz. Teacher.' The great Teacher defined teaching for us,—'I came that ye might have life and have it more abundantly'.

(3) A professional equipment. There is such a thing as an equipment appropriate and adequate to its purpose, and the equipment of a normal school should resemble that of other great professional schools, because it has a specific purpose. It also must be a comprehensive equipment—an equipment for an all-round physical development; an equipment with which to interpret the world of our new environment; a social equipment, to meet rationally and happily the great social hunger of young minds; a library equipment, that includes the treasures of the cultural and professional literature of the ages; an artistic equipment, that appeals to the imagination through the eye and ear; and, if you allow the term, an ethical equipment, that provides opportunity for such exercises as tend to the uplifting of the spiritual nature, remembering, as Dean Franklin told the Conference at Framingham—'The ethical is the gateway to the moral and religious'.

(4) A professional spirit. 'It is not the letter but the spirit that quickeneth'. The most influential factor in the establishment of the Massachusetts normal schools was the high devotion of a small band of men and women who laid the foundations so securely. The names of such great promoters of teacher training as James G. Carter, Edmund Dwight, and Horace Mann will ever be in our minds. The first principals of the normal school,—Father Peirce, Samuel Newman, and Nicholas Tillinghast,—were men of scholarship, men of vision, men of high purpose, men who could teach and inspire. The traditions of this particular school cluster around the names of men and women who gave their minds, their hearts, and their lives to this school. This is our priceless heritage.

For long years there has been on the walls of our buildings, as well as in the hearts of the faculty, students, and graduates, this motto, which still remains as an inspiration for the years to come,—'Not to be ministered unto, but to minister'."

“Destroy this Temple and in Three Days I will Build it up Again”

In the words of our Lord—“Destroy this temple and in three days I will build it up again,”—the spirit behind our school has a graphic parallel. After careful consideration,—and at the risk of criticism,—we have decided that no other words can so aptly express our thought as this quotation. It symbolizes to us the triumphing of spirit over matter. The material things of this world may be destroyed, but the spirit cannot.

A short while ago our school building crumbled into ashes. Nothing that was earthly remained. But the soul of the school,—the knowledge of the necessity of well-trained teachers,—lived on in the hearts of the Massachusetts educators.

A few months found erected in the place of the destroyed building a structure more powerful, more adequate, and more beautiful than ever. “Destroy this temple and in three days I will build it up again.”

Each year the members of our school have instilled in them the spirit of well-trained teachers. His excellency Alvan T. Fuller, Governor of Massachusetts, says, “Schools cannot rise above the teachers in them.” If this be so, and we feel that it is, how vitally essential it is for us to carry the high ideal of Bridgewater Normal School, through which it survived a calamity, into the schools in which we teach.

Centuries ago, the Greek philosopher, Diogenes, uttered a modern view when he said, “The foundation of every state is the education of its youth.” He did not say that a nation needed great industries, powerful trade routes, or conquering armies in order to survive. He knew that there is something more fundamental which forms the basis of a state. Education is the bed-rock on which the rest is constructed. All mundane effects may be destroyed, but if the spirit lives on, reconstruction will follow.

If, as Napoleon says, “Public instruction should be the first object of government”, then the second should be that the public instruction should be the best possible. The State Normal School at Bridgewater has ever aimed to graduate only students who have attained a high degree of pedagogical ability. Because this skill was possessed by our instructors, they were able to carry on through disaster and into the new life of the school. A spirit was there which could not be destroyed.

The temple is but a fragile place, at best. It is the will to fight and conquer that counts. “Destroy this temple and in three days I will build it up again.”

Marie Hayes.
History

Lookouts in the towers of Bridgewater sighted a strange craft making port one day in September, 1923. This ship was in sad need of repairs, and showed strong evidences of having borne the brunt of many storms. The crew was composed of ambitious and progressive youths who were seeking Higher Learning. They had managed to keep their craft afloat on the dangerous seas, but fearing the storms to come they realized the need of the peaceful shelter and fortitude that the harbor promised.

Life in their new surroundings was a pleasant one for the crew. They were known as the D's and a genial and original lot they were. They first gave evidence of their originality when they opened their marvelous "Three Ring Circus".

A step higher toward their goal, the second year found the "land sailors" at Bridgewater Normal working enthusiastically under the name of C's. It was during this year that a terrible calamity befell them—their beloved new home was almost completely destroyed by fire. As a result of the fire the crew was sent to nearby lands to train, a year earlier than they would otherwise have been sent.

The title of C's merged into that of B's upon the beginning of the crew's third year of study. Many of the B's seeing the goal in sight, became eager to launch their boats once again, but they were told that by remaining on land another year they would be better equipped to face the storms that they would be sure to meet upon leaving the sheltered harbor. Furthermore, they were told that another year's application to their work would gain for them a badge of merit, a symbol of perseverance, called a degree.

As A's, the crew was well represented in all the activities of the school. Members were particularly distinguished in the chapel exercises of the various departments. The A Social was a well attended affair.

Now the year is fast drawing to a close, and the time is very near when the crew will again sail, not in the great ship in which they came, but in individual ships, each one to fight out his own destiny. With eyes straining out to sea to catch a glimpse of the not distant shores of Success, they will guide their crafts with a firm purpose out of port and on to the great sea of Life.

DORIS KELLEHER
DORIS IRENE ANNIS

131 Grove Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Glee Club, '23-'25; Hockey, '23-'27; Baseball, '23-'25; Social Activities, '25-'26; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Chairman Day Student Council, '24-'25. Dot alphabetically heads the class roll of girls this year, but it is not in this alone that she is first in class. Remember the "Soc" tests! But we don't want to give the impression that Dot spends all her time in this way. When we glance at the above list we see that she has been active in many outside organizations. No social ever attempted by us was considered complete until Dot had carefully planned the decorations for the gym. Good luck, Doris!

ELSIE BEVAN

128 Park Avenue, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; W. A. A. Board, '24-'27; French Club, '25-'27; Treasurer, '26-'27; Hockey, '23-'26; Baseball, '26-'27. Here is a girl whose sweet personality is noticed wherever she goes. Elsie is a star French student, and we suspect that she would make an excellent instructor in that subject. She is quiet, modest, and conscientious—a girl with a definite goal in mind. Her popularity with the rest of her classmates, gives proof of her likable disposition. May you be very successful, Elsie, in your future work.

WINIFRED BOOTH

416 Arnold Street, New Bedford, Mass. Glee Club, '23-'24; W. A. A., '23-'24; Recording Secretary, W. A. A., '24-'25; Vice-President, W. A. A., '26-'27; Head of Tennis, '25-'26; Hockey Captain, '23-'27; Baseball, '23-'27; Tennis, '26-'27; Basketballs, '26-'27; Chairman of Field Day, '25; Chairman of Class Social, '26. Winnie is known to all for her keen sense of humor and good sportsmanship. She is also one member of Class A who did not succumb to the lure of bobbed hair. Winnie was often found in a dazed condition in the library due to the departing vision of an almost solved logarithm. Best of luck, Winifred, always.
ANNE SARELL COHEN

96 Cherry Street, North Adams, Mass. Graduated from State Normal School at North Adams, '25; Transferred from New York State College for teachers, at Albany, '26. Frenchy hails from another school but we have grown to admire her in the short time that she has been with us. This very able member of Class A is frequently to be found in the library. Sometimes it is only library duty but more often it is hard work for the next day's lesson. If you see a girl with a shock of fluffy auburn hair and a pleasant, friendly smile you can be sure that that is Frenchy, one of the most kind-hearted and sociable members of the class.

GOLDIE MAE COLBURN

6 Bolton Place, Brockton, Mass. NORMAL OFFERING BOARD, '23-'24; Basketball, Captain, '23-'27; Varsity, '23-'27, Captain, '27; Baseball, Captain, '23,'26; Hockey, '26-'27; All Senior Hockey Team, '27; Class Representative, '23-'26; Class Vice-President, '23-'27. Goldie will have a brilliant career before her, if her years at Normal are any indication. Her scholastic work here has been of the first rank, yet she has found time to take a very prominent part in athletics. That she is popular is easily shown by the fact that she has been our class vice-president for four years. We will miss you next year, Goldie, but we wish you all the success in the world.

EVANGELINE COURTNEY

313 80th Street, Brooklyn, New York. French Club, '25-'27; Treasurer, Student Government Association, '26-'27; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27; Dormitory Council,' 26-'27; House Board, '25-'26. Van can always rally to a cause and lend a helping word, especially if the cause happens to be a pet subject, for example F---h. Perhaps if Van had not succumbed to bobbed hair a certain teacher's life might have been happier, and an index finger might not have been so overworked! May you always be as happy and successful as you have been here, Evangeline, is our wish for you.
ANN MARIE CRAHAN

33 Ford Street, Brockton, Mass. Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Secretary, NORMAL OFFERING BOARD, '25-'26; Day Student Social Committee, '27. No matter how dark the day, Ann's smile of greeting will light up the place where she may be. It isn't always easy to smile, but we might take a lesson from our smiling classmate. As for versatility, Ann can play a leading male role or a charming Spanish lady with equal ability, as witnessed in our A and B socials. We know that she will find good fortune in the "higher mental processes", because anyone who passes the Psychology course with honor is foreordained to be successful. May your life be one round of success, happiness, and prosperity, Ann.

EVELYN MARIE DONAHUE

84 Atherton Street, Stoughton, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'25; Dormitory Council, '26-'27. Unobtrusive, agreeable, and loyal, Evelyn has found a place in the hearts of her friends. Although unusually quiet, we find that we have been amply repaid for waiting when she does talk. Of great sincerity of character and sympathy, we have been glad to be numbered among her friends. Good luck, Evelyn, don't forget your classmates!

ELEANOR BRADLEY FARRELL

164 East Main Street, Gloucester, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Hockey, '23-'26; Basketball, '23-'27; Varsity, '25-'26; Baseball, '23-'27; Hospitality Committee, '24-'26; W. A. A. Board, '24-'27; President, Student Government Association, '25-'26; Student Council, '25-'26; Dormitory Council, '25-'27; Woodward House President, '26-'27. The password of the younger set is "Charm", and our diminutive Eleanor has it to a very marked degree. Her personality has endeared her to all her classmates. She is always to be found in the fore rank of the athletes. Steady, conscientious, faithful,—she is a splendid student; and we are sure she will be a success in her chosen profession. Best of luck, Ellie.
MILDRED HELENA FRANK

134 Spring Street, Gardiner, Maine. Dormitory Council, '23-'24; Hockey, '23, '26; Track, '23-'24; W. A. A. '23-'27; Secretary-Treasurer, Gates House, '26-'27; Basketball, '27; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27. Mildred, who came to us from Haverhill, is a most surprising person. Didn't we nearly collapse when we saw her hair bobbed? We first thought she was very quiet, but those who have lived with her in any one of the four dormitories in which she has lived, have learned a different story. Despite her serious operation in our Junior year, she has surmounted all obstacles and has remained a leader of our class. Good luck, Mildred, always.

ELEANOR LOUISE GARVIN

30 Summer Street, Weymouth, Mass. W. A. A. '23-'25; Library Club, '23-'24. "Is anyone going downtown?" We need not ask who is speaking, because everyone knows Eleanor's famous words. In spite of her numerous excursions to the center of Bridgewater and home, she never failed to find time for study. While we shivered because of unprepared lessons, she sat calm and collected, knowing that she was ready to recite. Weymouth is a pretty good place, and she is a splendid example of what they can send to Normal. Normal loses a mighty fine person when she receives her degree. Success and happiness, Eleanor.

JOSEPHINE MAGDALENE GIBERTI

19 Hillside Avenue, Middleboro, Mass. President, Day Student Council, '26-'27; W. A. A., '23-'27; Student Council, '24-'27; Secretary-Treasurer, Day Student Council, '26; Baseball, '24-'27; Orchestra, '24, '27; Hockey, '24-'26; Basketball, '25-'27. Jo is one of the most unobtrusive and clever people imaginable. Her marvelous skill in math has made the rest of us gasp more than once. She tries to conceal her natural brilliance, behind her unassuming manner, but she has been discovered just the same. Her dignity, coupled with her initiative, have made her a splendid leader of the day students. Best wishes for a successful career, Josephine, because you deserve it.
CLASSES

DOROTHY CONSTANCE HALLORAN

59 Freedom Street, Fall River, Mass. Hockey Team, '23-'26; Baseball, '24; French Club, '23-'27; Vice-President, '26-'27; W. A. A. '23-'26; W. A. A. Board, '25-'26; Hospitality Committee, '25-'27; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '26-'27. Dot is one of Class A's best students. She is not a grind, however, as regardless of everything she must have her little period of leisure before study hour. She certainly stepped around in Training School though,—but there's a reason. She is an excellent French scholar, too, and they say she speaks French as well as she does English. Good luck, Dorothy, may you meet with the best of success.

MARIE LORENA HAYES

678 Main Street, Brockton, Mass. Editor-in-chief, NORMAL OFFERING, '26-'27; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'26; Class Historian, '25-'26; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27. We all know Marie's ability as a student. How often have we listened to one of her themes and marvelled at its thought and expression! What with keen insight, lightning perception, extraordinary sympathy, and scholastic aptitude, to aid her natural charm, she is truly one of the few of whom it may be said that "To know her well is to like her better." May happiness and prosperity be yours, Marie.

DORIS MARIE KELLEHER

156 Auburn Street, Brockton, Mass., Student Council, '23-'24; Basketball, '24-'27; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Class Secretary, '26-'27; Hospitality Committee, '25-'26; Hockey, '25-'27. Dot has a charming personality which has endeared her to a great number of friends since she came to Normal. Her artistic ability is readily proved by the blackboard drawing which she sketched in such a clever manner. It was so very superior to the work of the rest of her envious class, that it remained on the board for the entire year. However, she is an all-round student, and if we can judge her success as a pedagogue by her success here at school, her future is going to be a happy one. Best of luck, Doris, all your life.

MARGARET MARY LUCEY

39 Leavitt Street, Brockton, Mass. Student Council, '26-'27; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; NORMAL OFFERING Board, '26-'27; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27; Class Representative, '26-'27. Life blesses us with the friendship of one of those rare mortals whose capacity for understanding and sympathy is immeasurable. Such a benediction is Peg. To restrict a just biographical sketch to a few paltry lines is indeed a sorry limitation; but, let it be known with no ostentation or exertion, Peg has endeared herself to the hearts of her classmates with a friendship straightforward, frank and unpretentious. Good luck, Margaret, in your future life.

EVA HAMILTON McGAW

Norfolk Road, Cohasset, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Hockey, '23-'27; Baseball, '23-'27; Basketball, '23-'26; House Board, '25-'27; Cottage Secretary-Treasurer, '23; Scouts, '23-'26; Dramatic Club, '26-'27; Dormitory Council, '26-'27; All Senior Team, '26. Eva is always ready for a good laugh, because she has a very happy disposition. That is one of the reasons we love to have her around,—she puts us in a pleasant frame of mind, too. We know Eva for her excellent work in Dramatic Club, and hope that in future years she will have an opportunity to teach dramatics to console her for having to leave our Alma Mater. Best of luck to you in all you do, Eva.

DOROTHY OSGOOD MITCHELL

54 Allen Street, Bradford, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Y. P. U., '23-'26; Girl Scouts, '23-'27, Treasurer, '26-'27; Glee Club, '25-'27; Secretary, '26-'27; Library Staff, '23-'27, President, '26-'27; Choir, '26-'27; Hockey Team, '26; It certainly was fortunate for the rest of her classmates that Dot decided to return to Normal for her fourth year. What would we have done without her to keep the assignments straight in her little book, and what would have happened to her roommates without her to keep them in the straight and narrow path! We can all vouch that in spite of her extensive outside activities her lessons were always carefully prepared. Success and happiness, Dorothy.
MARJORIE NICHOLS

480 June Street, Fall River, Mass. Class Treasurer, '24-'27; Hospitality Committee, '24-'27; Social Activities Committee, '25-'26; Hockey, '23-'24; Baseball, '23; Tennis, '26; Dormitory Council, '26-'27; Vice-President of Gates, '26-'27. We feel that the future of pedagogy is secure when girls of the type of Marj are still turning toward that field of endeavor. She has an unusually gentle and unassuming manner to which everyone seems to respond with a feeling of admiration. Furthermore, she possesses the rare combination of superior intelligence and physical attractiveness. As a student she is faithful, conscientious, and industrious. May you meet with the best of happiness, prosperity, and success, Marjorie.

ISABELLA GREENE PERKINS

168 Main Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Glee Club, '23-'25; NORMAL OFFERING Board, '26-'27. When we first learned that we were to have a real school-teacher as a member of our class, we were a wee bit timid. But, when Bella appeared with her most delightful smile, and her friendly, yet not presuming attitude, we laughed at ourselves. With so many virtues to record, as we have discovered to be the case since we have known her, and so little space in which to record them, the task is a difficult one. Let it suffice to say that Bella possesses all of the qualities which explain her popularity here, and which assure her future success. Good luck, Isabella.

PEARL MIRIAM PETTENGILL

14 Pleasant Street, Bradford, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'24; Social Activities, '24-'25; House Board, '25-'27; Dormitory Council, '25-'27. This blue-eyed girl came to join our ranks from Haverhill High School, and if they were as sorry to lose her as we will be, we sympathize with them. That she is a sincere friend has been the happy discovery of her classmates. Punctuality is one of the virtues of this clever girl, who was never known to hand in an assignment late. It was due to her artistic ability that Class A had such attractive posters announcing the fact of our coming social. Good luck, Pearl, is our heartfelt wish for you.
HELENA REDDY

87 Harvard Street, Brockton, Mass. Debating Club, '23-'24; Glee Club, '24-'27; Class Historian, '24-'25; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '24-'25; Editor-in-chief, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'26; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Day Student Social Committee, '27. Take four feet eleven of pep, add plenty of originality, then a dash of humor, and the result will be our Helena. When affairs in class have almost come to a standstill, and our teacher is waiting for an answer or suggestion, Helena always comes to the rescue. Not only is she the shining light of every class, but she is actively connected with many of the outside organizations of the school. We seldom see Helena without her inseparable pal, Bunny. Best of luck, Helena, may you enjoy your teaching as much as you did your work here.

MARCELLA SMITH

5 Chestnut Street, Nantucket, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Glee Club, '23-'27; Treasurer, '25-'26, President, '26-'27; Secretary, Student Government, '25-'26; Vice-President, Student Government, '26-'27; Hospitality Committee, '25-'27. Of all the representatives which Nantucket has sent to Bridgewater Normal there is none to whom she points with more pride than Marcella. Achieving early fame in the musical pursuits of the school, she unselfishly gave her time and attention to further the interests of the musical clubs. Furthermore, we can testify that she has been a consistent student, a genuine optimist, and a real sport. We wish you all the success in the world, Marcella, in your future life.

ANNA LOUISE STEVENSON

Main Street, Vineyard Haven, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'27; Debating Club, '23-'24; W. Y. W., '25; Hockey Team, '23,'26; Library Staff, '26-'27. Anna came to Bridgewater with a smile on her face, and her good nature has never deserted her. She has been a faithful and loyal classmate, proving a worthy representative of “the island”. As a champion hiker, or early riser, she certainly is unequalled in this school. She has done her part for four years in keeping the post-office department of Bridgewater busy. The best of luck, Anna, in your teaching career.
RUTH BENTLEY SWIFT

136 Cottage Park Road, Winthrop, Mass. W. A. A., '23-'24; Vice-President, Gates House, '25-'26; President, Gates House, '26-'27; Campus Carnival Committee, '26; Dormitory Council, '25-'27. Ruth has been one of the most popular girls in our class since we have been here. Her reticence and evident sincerity has made her fellow-students believe that she is a friend worth having. Gates House owes much of its success to her guidance and leadership. We all wish you the best of luck, Ruth, in your future life.

GEORGE FRANCIS AHERNE

243 Birch Street, North Abington, Mass. Secretary-Treasurer, N. A. A., '25-'27; Assistant Manager, Baseball, '26; Manager, Baseball, '27; Member of winning Tug-of-War Team, '25; Winning Track Team, '26; Sphinx Club. Buck is the boy with the admirable oratorical ability. He never ventures an opinion unless he can defend himself with a good line of argument. Buck has an immense store of resourcefulness, good humor, and initiative. His splendid pedagogical manner in front of a class will be of great assistance to him next year. Good luck, George, old boy!

JAMES WILLIAM BUCKLEY

170 Center Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Basketball, '24-'26; N. A. A., '24-'27; NORMAL OFFERING Board, '24-'25; Football, '24. Jim is not easily excited by modern theorists in science or behaviorism because he is satisfied with conservatism and everyday common-sense. With Jim no task is too involved. Proof of this is found in his elaborate notebooks, and in his many thorough charts of Greek culture, Roman laws, and Norman institutions; or in his well-arranged lesson plans in science, based on McMurray's "Teaching by Projects". In character and manners their supreme excellency lies in their simplicity. We wish you success, Jim.
JOSEPH JOHN CONDON

482 High Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Glee Club, '24-'27; N. A. A., '24-'27; Football, '24-'25; Winning Tug-of-War Team, '25; Sphinx Club. During the four years that Joe has been our classmate we have come to know and appreciate his virtues. Beneath his calm exterior, he possesses the faculty of definite decision, and power of earnest application to the task at hand. Always obliging, he has made it pleasant for many people here, by his splendid piano playing. Joe is the boy who is always in demand when a good accompanist is wanted either for purposes of dancing or singing. He also has an excellent tenor voice. The community will be fortunate which receives the benefit of his inherent and acquired potentialities. Good luck, Joe.

WILFRED HAROLD GRAVES

23 Main Street, Williamsburg, Mass. Class President, '24-'27; Student Government, '24-'26; Social Activities Committee, '24; Glee Club, '24-'26; Football, '24; Vice-President, N. A. A., '25-'26; Basketball, '24; Baseball, '24; Business Manager, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'26; Assistant Art Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '24; Sphinx Club. The cares and responsibilities of our class have rested upon Hap's shoulders for the past four years, and the efficient manner in which he has led us has created a sincere admiration. For faithfulness, school spirit, and congenial manners he is unsurpassed. The class of '27 wishes you all the success in the world, Hap.

RICHARD ELLIOT JASON

403 Commercial Street, Provincetown, Mass. Baseball, '24-'26; Football, '23-'24; Glee Club, '24-'26; N. A. A., '24-'27; Manager, Basketball, '25; Cheer Leader, '25-'26; Winning Tug-of-War Team, '25; Sphinx Club. Studies, athletics, and social activities are easy victims to Dick's persistent nature. Dick often has strong convictions on the affairs of the day, and no amount of threats, diplomacy, nor imploring can make him alter his opinion. If Dick remains the good sport, real friend, and persistent worker that he has been at Normal, there is no doubt in our minds as to his assured success. May happiness and prosperity be yours, Dick.
ELWIN MERTON KERR

47 High Street, Natick, Mass. Glee Club, '24-'27; N. A. A., '24-'27; Vice-President, N. A. A., '27; Dramatic Club, '26-'27; Social Activities Committee, '27; Assistant Business Manager, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'26; Business Manager, NORMAL OFFERING, '26-'27; Manager, Basketball, '27; Sphinx Club. Bunny is the walking, living, breathing exception to the rule that “nobody loves a fat man”. He has become one of the most important men in the school by his general willingness and co-operation. This is proved by the number of offices he has held while at school. He has found time to run the school store and make it pay! The gang will never forget you, Bunny, and wish that your future life may be as happy and successful as your life here has been.

ROBERT CARLTON KILEY

105 Tribou Street, Brockton, Mass. Basketball, '24-'26; Captain, '26-'27; Tennis, '24-'27; N. A. A., '24-'27; Glee Club, '24-'27; Champion Division Basketball Team, '24-'25; Sphinx Club. In the fall of 1923 Bob descended upon us with a presence that has continued to be felt throughout our four years. His capacities are many. In scholastic work, sports, and clubs, he has shown himself to be overflowing with energy and initiative. If you have not witnessed an exhibition of this young man’s speed and accuracy in passing the ball, you have missed a basketball treat. Your host of friends wish you the best of luck, Bob, all your life.

MICHAEL THOMAS LANKILAS

86 Broad Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Football, '23; Baseball, '24-'27; Basketball Second Team, '23-'24; Varsity, '26-'27; Freshman Floor Director in Gym; Sphinx Club; University of Illinois. Mike is a boy of few words but sound philosophy. In class we always noticed the look of glee on his face when a question of rather involved explanation was hurled at the class. Up would go Mike’s hand, and the necessary information would shortly ensue. In work in the gym he is unusually proficient. Whatever Mike attempted he did with a good will, which probably explains his success. We wish you success, Mike, in whatever you undertake in future life.
RUSSELL BURGESS MARSHALL

55 Stetson Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Football, '24-'25; Glee Club, '24-'26; N. A. A., '24-'26; Cheer Leader, '26; Assistant Manager, Football, '25; Winning Tug-of-war Team, '25; Sphinx Club. For four long years Russ has been a true friend and a competent student. He has shown himself to be competent both in his studies and in the social life of the school. His interest in Bridgewater Normal is unflagging, his loyalty unquestioned, and his success inevitable. May you reach the heights of success and prosperity, Russ.

ROBERT JAMES NEEDHAM OSBORN

St. George Street, Duxbury, Mass. President, N. A. A., '26-'27; Baseball, '24-'27; Captain, '27; Football, '23-'24; Glee Club, '24-'27; Dramatic Club, '26-'27; Tennis, '25-'27; Winning Tug-of-war Team, '25; Sphinx Club. The success of our baseball team for the past four years has been due largely to the superb pitching of Bob's great right arm. Bob has been great as president of N. A. A., and the manner in which he conducted the meetings certainly qualifies him as an A-1 presiding officer. Bob was the envy of the rest of his class in public speaking because of his oratorical ability. He has a splendid personality which has made him very popular here. Good luck, Bob.

CARL HEARTZ PORTER-SHIRLEY

3 Bell Street, Providence, Rhode Island. Football, '24; Baseball, '24; Manager, Baseball, '26; Glee Club, '24-'27; N. A. A., '24-'27; Basketball, '26-'27. Port is the one among us who lives life as it should be lived. He enjoys every minute to its fullest capacity, ever ready with mind and muscle when someone needs help. He is a great one to have around if you happen to feel a little blue, because he is bound to cheer you up with his happy-go-lucky disposition. May it ever be thus, Port, that everything comes easy for you. Best of luck!
History

Foreseeing that in the near future there will be underway an investigation to explain the remarkable improvement in the world, due to the entrance, on the field of activities, of a certain B class of the Bridgewater Normal School, I will here record certain facts and tendencies of said class, which may aid the investigators in their explanation.

The individuality and genius which later marked this class was not apparent when on a sunny day in September, in the year 1924, they arrived at the metropolis of Education. It was not long, however, before they became accustomed to the ways of the place and could use its terminology with the hoariest of seniors. By the end of their first year they were acknowledged as a power to be considered.

In their second year, feeling that in union there is strength, they organized the class and elected the officers which are still retained.

With their members, the foremost actresses, athletes, musicians, and scholars of the school, they returned for a third year, to enjoy the glory of their successes.

Whatever they are to do, one thing is certain, that the class whose accomplishments have been so great will continue in a broader field with as great achievements. In the meanwhile, this record will remain as a proof of the irresistible will and unconquerable spirit of Class B.

Genevieve Westervelt
Class B

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

The "Bridgewater Spirit" is, in my opinion, the feeling of the Normal students that their teaching is not a mere "job" by which they are to earn their living, but that their teaching is something worthwhile—something that will build the character of future citizens of the United States. When we first came here, we may have had the impression that teaching was a very easy profession—perhaps we had chosen it for that very reason. Since then we have formed a new impression. Our observation in the Training School has had something to do with the change. I think it is because the Bridgewater graduates love their work that such a spirit exists. Their love increases as the years go on. Such is the "Bridgewater Spirit."

ELEANOR TESTONI
EDITH GRACE AUGER

23 Lyon Avenue, Brockton, Mass. “Care is an enemy to life.” Why worry? You were the most quiet person in our class when you came to us. No, times have not changed but Edie has! She is one of our “day hoppers” from Brockton and broke the nine to four rule only because of Training School. We always felt sorry for the first one in the class, alphabetically, but our sympathy was uncalled for in this case. Why? Because Edie is one of the most studious and clever girls in the class. References insure work everywhere, especially in drawing. Popular! Ask anyone in B1. Success, Edith, wherever you go.

ELEANOR FRANCES CALLAHAN

66 Center Street, North Easton, Mass. Callie is the most quiet girl imaginable. Nevertheless, we are able to judge from her unassuming manner, the depth and sincerity of her nature. As to her scholastic ability, her marks are the answer. North Easton must hold a great attraction for Callie as she is always in such a hurry to leave Bridgewater. We know that Callie is going to make an excellent teacher, judging from her record here, at school. Best wishes for your success, Eleanor, all through life.

MARION EARLE CARPENTER

Central Street, Foxboro, Mass. W. A. A., ’25-’26. Bud will always be remembered as a leader, because of her stateliness and her charming personality we suppose. The “Bud and Jess Co.” must have cornered the cracker and jam markets, for were they not always doling out these delicacies to the weak and famished? Bud has won fame on the athletic field, too, especially in soccer. Her classmates are going to miss the happy and irrepressible Bud more than they like to think. Do not forget us, Marion, and the best of luck.
KATHRYN FRANCES DOLAN

33 Silver Street, Randolph, Mass. Kay has gained quite a reputation in our class for being extremely quiet. However, in class, she has unusual powers, that are readily discerned by means of her recitations. This reserved damsel made the rest of us blush oftentimes, because of the superiority of the preparation of her lessons over ours. Keep up the splendid record which you made for yourself while in school, when you go out into the world, Kathryn, and we know that we will be proud of you.

GRACE GERALDINE FITZGERALD

603 Union Street, Rockland, Mass. French Club, '24-'25; W. A. A. '26; Secretary of W. A. A., '26; Hockey, '24-'26; Basketball, '24 '25; Baseball, '24; Soccer, '26; Class Representative, '25. B1 would not be complete without Grace, because she has one of the jolliest dispositions in the class. When Grace graduates in June, Normal will lose one of its best students and athletes. This has proof in the fact that Grace has been a leader, not only in her scholastic work, but also in club and athletic activities. The best of luck, Grace, and we know that you will succeed wherever you go.

GRACE MARGARET FORREST

183 Main Street, Randolph, Mass. Class Representative, '24-'25. Grace is the vivacious member of our class. She is not "Grace" to us however, she is "Blondie" or "Curly" or "Sparkie". Not only do we admire her physical appearance, but we also admire her mental prowess. A rare combination, but Blondie possesses it. You are bound to be a success, Grace, and we wish you the best of luck.
LOUISE ELIZABETH FURLONG

1059 North Main Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'25; Soccer, '26. Here is another one of our classmates who, besides her school work, is fond of sports and dancing. We never really knew Louise until this year when she left the ranks of the day students and came to live in the dormitory. We are very glad she did this, as we found out what a very nice girl she is. We extend our sincere wishes for your happiness in the future, Louise, and ask you to be sure to remember your admiring classmates.

PRISCILLA ELIZABETH FURROW

134 Main Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26; Girl Scouts, 24-'26; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '26. Maximum accomplishment with a minimum expenditure of time has been a byword for Pris ever since she became a member of our class. A minute properly employed is worth an hour misspent, and Pris certainly did employ her minutes. When you leave Normal, Priscilla, we hope and expect that you will have the same success outside as you have had within our school walls.

BEATRICE MAE GIBBS

22 Wall Street, Brockton, Mass. Basketball, '24-'26; Hockey, '26; Bowling, '25-'26; French Club, '24-'26; Dramatic Club, '26-'27. If you are looking for a true friend, a steady friend, a jolly friend, then look for Bee. You may not hear her talking, but she is always around ready to join in any fun or to help a person. She has a rare habit of letting little annoyances slide past her. “Why worry?”, she says. “It doesn’t matter in the end.” She leads a busy life, for besides her school work she is prominent in the club and athletic life of the school. Good luck, Beatrice, in your teaching life.
ANNIE GERTRUDE GOULD

4321 North Main Street, Fall River, Mass. Gert is known to everyone by her curly hair and happy smile. She is commonly found in the library, which leads us to suppose that she will make a splendid librarian as well as teacher. From her team mates we learn that she is invaluable on the field when a game of soccer is being played. We will miss you next year, Gertrude, but we extend to you every wish for a bright future.

LORETTA ELIZABETH HEBERT

16 Seymour Street, Pittsfield, Mass. French Club, '24-'25; Dramatic Club, '25-'27; Class Reporter, '25-'26; Class Representative, '26-'27; Bowling Team, '24-'26; Soccer, '26-'27. Lorrie does everything well, whether in studies, athletics, or social activities. She does not have to "plug" to receive "A's", they just seem to belong to her without any great effort on her part. Will you ever forget her as "Jessica" in "A Merchant of Venice"? We owe many an evenings entertainment to Lorrie—and the piano. Good luck, Loretta.

JESSIE MARION KELLEY

61 Riverview Road, Walpole, Mass. Glee Club, '25-'27. Here's to one of the most popular girls in Class B1. Three years ago this satellite came from the Walpole High School to B. N. S., where she soon took a prominent place in the history of the class. Although Jess has not been a great athletic star during her three years here, she certainly has shone in a scholastic way. In geography classes she is especially proficient. Our best wishes go with you, Jessie, in your teaching career.
JOSEPHINE EILEEN LANNIN

31 Exchange Street, Rockland, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Basketball, '25; Baseball, '25; Hockey, '25-'26; Soccer, '26. You know who Joe is of course. She is one of the best sports in BI. If you want to see a real game some afternoon go down to the field when the B’s are playing and watch Joe send the ball through the goal. Joe may be a splendid athlete, but she is just as good a student! We do not need to say any more. Good luck to you, Josephine, because you deserve it.

LILLIAN MAY MARTIN

Hopedale, Mass. Lillian graduated from Framingham Normal School after two successful years, and then joined the teaching ranks. The desire for more knowledge took possession of her, however, and she ceased teaching to come and join us. B2 welcomed her and learned to admire her for her ability to say something worthwhile on such a wide range of subjects. We hope your success continues in the future, Lillian, as it has in the past.

MARION EMILY WARWICK

8 Davis Street, Woburn, Mass. Girl Scouts, '23-'25; W. A. A., '23; Hockey, '23-'26; Soccer, '26. Here's to one of the nicest and most original members of our class. She is ready to tackle anything in sports or studies. Although she was not well known to members of Class B until this year, she soon proved herself one of us and made for herself a permanent place in our hearts. Her smiling and friendly manner, together with her willingness to help a friend in need have been a great asset in this acclimating process. The best of luck, Marion.

WISHING

Wishing might well be called the world's favorite game. Everyone plays it. We begin when very young to wish for every toy we see. As we grow a little older we long for the things we read of in fairy tales: castles, adventures, the life of a king or queen, or fairies for playmates.

Then comes the age when every boy wishes for long trousers, and perhaps for a smile from the shy little miss next door; and every girl wishes for as many clothes as Susie Jones has, or to be as beautiful as Mary Smith.

A few years later, the boy wishes for a car of his own. (What if it does look like a grasshopper, and need a little urging occasionally?) The girl, a young lady, now begins to wish for a higher education, or perhaps just for a good time.

So through life this game of wishing goes on. Even the aged have their wishes, which I think are the best of all—to be young again, and to return to the places where they had such good times.

Wishing is a good thing for most people. It serves as an incentive for them to obtain the much-desired thing. Would machinery ever have been invented if someone had not wished for an easier way of doing his work? The saying is that if you wish for a thing long enough you will get it: but I think a little energy, too, would help your desire come true.

Wishing has been the subject of many poems and sketches in literature. Whittier has written a poem on the most beautiful wish in the world. The theme of it is:

"To-day, beneath Thy chastening eye,
I crave alone for peace and rest,
Submissive in Thy hands to lie,
And feel that it is best."

B II Graduates

DENA BESDANSKY

2 Frederick Terrace, Dorchester, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'27; Basketball, '26-'27. Dena is quiet, very reserved and dignified, but when one is once acquainted with her she is found to be a jolly good pal. Although she was not with us the first year, we would miss her now if she were to leave us, because she has made many friends here. Dena is a good all-round student, but she excels in math. Tennis, too, claims much of her time, and she has become a very skillful player. B2 wishes you great success, as a teacher, Dena.

WHILMA CLAIRE DÉSY

452 Osborne Street, Fall River, Mass. Secretary of French Club, '25-'26; President of French Club, '26-'27. Whilma is the "Little French Girl" of B2, whose presence these last two years has made us wish more than once that she had been with us our first year. Her unperturbed and gentle countenance is but a covering to that vast amount of character which she possesses. She displays an equal amount of interest and ability in all her subjects. We wish you the best of luck, Whilma, in whatever you do.

OLIVE EMILY HOWARD

Purchase Street, South Easton, Mass. Glee Club, '23-'25, '26-'27; Day Student Social Committee, '27. If ever two girls were inseparable, Olive and Helena can claim the championship. Helena certainly was glad when Olive, after a year's experience in teaching, decided to return to Normal for another year. Bunny we call her, and the epithet well fits the charming little miss. 'Tis no secret that Olive excels in science, and as for her penmanship, well, we expect soon to be using the Howard method of writing in our public schools. Athletics profited by the quick little center-forward, who was always ready. Such History of "Ed," charts! Bunny has a lovely singing voice too. We can but look for success in the highest degree for you, Olive.
MARGARET MARIE KENEALY

34 Erin Street, Whitman, Mass. B2 without Peg Kenealy, would occupy a far less illustrious position than it now has the good fortune to enjoy. Many times Peg has stepped in and helped win our basketball and soccer games. She has conclusively proved the fact that it is possible to enjoy the social life, and still retain a high scholastic standing. In the numerous trials and agitations which befell our lot, Peg was in the front line to help our cause along. As we worked, played, sorrowed and rejoiced together, we came to admire Peg as an all-round good sport. Good luck, Margaret.

CARLOTTA GERTRUDE LINEHAN

18 Lexington Avenue, Bradford, Mass. Library Club, '25-'27; House Board, '25-'27; Baseball, '24-'26. Carl is a member of the famous quartet on the second floor of Woodward. We cannot imagine B2 without her, although Carl does not let her desire to be a good sport interfere with her studies. She has a sunny smile and a pleasing disposition, which have won for her many friends at B. N. S. Your class wishes you the best of luck in your teaching career, Carlotta, and we just know that you are going to succeed.

MARY AGNES MARSH

57 Rock Street, Norwood, Mass. Library Club, '24-'27; Vice-President of Library Club, '25-'26; W. A. A., '24-'27; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25-'26; House Board, '25; Soccer, '26. Pleasant, jolly, and full of fun, Ag came to Normal to show B2 by her excellent example, how to look on the sunny side of life. Ag will never starve, as long as drop-cakes are sold at Hayes'. Her love for sports, her loyal class and school spirit, as well as her warm-hearted friendliness to all, have won for Ag, many lasting friends. Good luck to you, Agnes.
GLADYS EVELYN NOWELL

25 Annis Street, Methuen, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'27; Basketball, '26-'27; Basketball Technique, '26-'27; Soccer, '26; Dancing, '25-'26; Hockey, '24; Library Club, '26-'27. Wherever you see a group of excited, chattering B 2's, Gladys will be among them, you may be sure. Glad is the "Math shark" of the class, especially since Mr. Durgin made his appearance here. Although Glad is very studious, she is not entirely a book-worm, as you know if you have seen her perform in soccer and basketball. We are glad you are in B2, Gladys, and wish you success in the future.

ETHEL ARLENE OLIVER

119 Myrtle Street, Rockland, Mass. French Club, '24-'27; Hospitality Committee, '25. Ethel receives a great thrill out of life in general. She is the living proof of the great advantage of using Palmolive soap, and we truly envy her "school-girl complexion." She has oratorical ability which has stood by her in many crises—an ability that the rest of us wish we could cultivate. In school and outside we are unanimous in our decision that Ethel has been a great asset to B2. May you find the best of luck, Ethel, wherever you go.

HELEN AUGUSTA PAUL

4 Whitney Court, Cambridge, Mass. French Club, '26-'27. Take a large amount of good-nature, with much dignity, self-possession, and any other desirable qualities you can think of, mix them very gently, and there you have our good sport, Helen. We have known her for three years, but we haven't found an undesirable quality in her yet. We must not fail to mention her ambition, through which she completed two years of French in one, and which is sending her to Middlebury College this summer. We wish you a huge amount of luck as a French teacher, Helen.
MARY AMANDA RAINVILLE

37 Kensington Avenue, Bradford, Mass. Library Club, '25-'27, Vice-President, '26-'27. When Mary joined us three years ago we all admired her gentle and quiet manner. A conscientious spirit and thoroughness in her work are two of her marked characteristics. We are confident that Mary's pupils will have the same respect and admiration for her that we have had during her stay here. The very best of luck and happiness to you always, Mary.

ANNA LOUISE ROBERTSON

6 Avon Street, Andover, Mass. Baseball, '25-'26; Glee Club, '26; House Board, '25; Hockey, '25; Library Club, '27; Dormitory Council, '26. Robby's ability to entertain us with her playing and singing has made her very much in demand. When she longed for solitude she was ruthlessly dragged from her room to the piano, there to accompany the voices of an admiring circle of friends. She has won our hearts through her music, and has kept our hearts by means of her sunny and pleasing disposition. We wish you success next year at B. U. Anna, and hope that you will have as many friends there as you have here.

GLENNA HELENE SMITH

418 Water Street, Haverhill, Mass. French Club, '25-'26; Library Club, '26-'27; W. A. A., '26-'27; Baseball, '26; Soccer, '26; Dancing Class, '26-'27; Basketball, '26. Glen, one of the best-natured members of B2, is popular with both students and teachers. Although she never shirks her duties, she has never been known to refuse a good time. She is very conscientious, never failing to prepare her lessons carefully and in good time. The best wishes of the class go with you, Glenna, for success and happiness in your career.
LIEDA STEINHILBER

85 Division Street, Brockton, Mass. Lee is the girl who hands in such exquisitely neat maps, charts, and notebooks. She is the coolest member of B2; not even a test can move her to excitement. We love to watch her swagger down the street every day, her books nonchalantly tucked beneath her arm. She has a delightful sense of humor, seeing a joke in everything possible. The class will not seem complete without you, but since you must graduate we wish you all sorts of good luck. You are going to be a corking teacher, we know, Lee, and we are sure that you will be successful.

MARGARET OSGOOD STILES

23 Webster Place, Malden, Mass. Baseball, '25; Garden Club, '24-'27; Marg is a member of that famous "First Floor Woodward Sextet". She is noted for her merry little laugh that is heard so often, for Marg is a jolly girl. We hope that when Marg starts to teach it will be near Malden, so that she will not have to rush so to catch the "four o'clock" every Friday P. M. The best of luck, Margaret, in your future work, is our sincere wish for you.

GRACE MARJORIE SWIFT

725 North Main Street, Attleboro, Mass. Glee Club, '24-'27; House Board, '25-'26. Midge Swift with her rosy cheeks and boyish bob is the "Peck's Bad Boy" of B2. No other member of the class is capable of looking so serious at one time and yet so mischievous at another. Those who know her best realize how full of fun she is, and say they are indebted to her for many good laughs. Finally, Midge is blessed with a good appetite. A bit of something to eat is never amiss when Marjorie is around. The class wishes you all the success possible, Marjorie.
GRACE MARY SWIFT

30 Oregon Street, East Bridgewater, Mass. Grace Mary is one of the “Swifts” of our class. When the name “Miss Swift” is called the next question asked is “Which Miss Swift?” The enlightening reply comes back—“Miss Grace Swift”. The error is usually discovered after the burst of laughter following upon this answer—hence the Grace Mary. Grace is the sort of girl who is so very quiet that she is not discovered until much time, which could have been spent in close friendship, is lost. However, we value our fortunate acquaintance with her very highly. You are a splendid example to give to the teaching profession, Grace, and we wish you a great deal of luck.

CATHARINE THERESA TOBIN

15 Morrison Road, Braintree, Mass. Kay bestowed her presence upon our class after having been a student at B. U. for one year. With her bright eyes and innocent expression we know that she could work,—favorably,—upon the emotions of anyone. She is the possessor, indeed, of a delightful personality, which makes friends for her wherever she goes. Kay is one of the faithful and patient commuters of the class. We sincerely hope, Catherine, that you will be as successful in your teaching life as you have been while at school.

MARY KATHERINE TOOMEY

43 Freemont Street, Bridgewater, Mass. French Club, ’26-’27; Soccer Team, ’26. Mary is the personification of the old saying, “Still water runs deep.” She is very quiet and shy, but we have all recognized a depth of friendliness and sincerity in her, which many of the less retiring ones of the world lack. She is a student of high scholastic standing, owing to her conscientious diligence. She seems to possess every potentiality for becoming an excellent teacher. B2 feels sure you will find success, Mary, and wishes you the best of luck.
ALICE EVELYN VARTABEDIAN

4 Sargent Avenue, Somerville, Mass. Day Student Council, '26-'27; Library Club, '26-'27. At the end of her first year, upon moving to Somerville, Alice transferred to Salem Normal, but soon returned to dear old Bridgewater Normal, even though it necessitated commuting. She is one of B2's most conscientious members, for she has never been known to leave a task until it is completed. Besides attending to her regular studies, she spends every spare minute of her time working in the library. Keep to the same policy that you are following now, Alice, and you are bound to come out on top. Best of luck!

GENEVIEVE MACCARLIE WESTERVELT

111 Corning Street, Beverly, Mass. Girl Scouts, '24-'25; Baseball, '25; Dramatic Club, '25-'27; House Board, '27; Class Secretary, '26-'27. Gee is recognized as a student of unusual brilliancy, although by her participation in so many of the school activities she proves that she does not devote all of her time to studying. B2 wonders when she finds time for her excellent preparations, because no one ever finds her plugging very hard. Since the days when she first played hostess in Woodward 12, Gee's pleasant personality has made her many friends. Good luck, Genevieve.

MARY MARTHA WHALEN

81 Pine Street, Attleboro, Mass. Basketball, '24-'25; Soccer, '26; French Club, '24-'27; Orchestra, '24-'27. When any of her friends are in difficulty the first thought which comes into their minds is "Ask Mary". Mary is to be relied upon to do her utmost to assist any of her troubled associates. It is by this unselfish good-nature that she has won the sincere respect and gratitude of her classmates. Her keen sense of humor has been the enjoyment of her class on a great many occasions. We are confident that the personality which brought her so much success in school will help her to success in teaching. The best of luck, Mary.
BERTHA ALICE WINWARD

88 Ashland Avenue, Methuen, Mass. Girl Scouts, '24-'25; W. A. A., '24-'27; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25; Bowling, '26-'27; Dancing, '24-'27; Baseball Technique, '25. All the Woodward girls remember the dear little Dinah baby at the dorm party, who afterwards proved to be Bert. She is not so quiet as she is petite, and if you observe closely you will find that there is a very mischievous twinkle in her eyes, which contradicts the demure expression on her face. May you be most successful in your life as a teacher, Bertha, is the wish of your classmates for you.

MAUDE UPTON WOOD

Soccer, '26; Normal Hall Hockey Team, '26; W. A. A., '26-'27; Dancing, '25-'27; Basketball Technique, '27. Maude's athletic prowess speaks for itself adequately on the field, and her classmates are unanimous in praising her mental agility. It does not seem to matter to Maude whether the problem at hand is a soccer ball going the wrong way, or the finding of the area of a polygon; she attacks both with equal vigor and success. Neatness is one of her outstanding characteristics. B2 unites in wishing you a long life, Maude, in which to enjoy the friends, the success, and the happiness that must surely come to you.

EXTRACTS FROM A FRESHMAN'S DIARY.

At last! After all my waiting and longing I am at Normal School. I met a lot of new girls. The seniors don’t look so very teacherish, but I could easily pick out the new girls—they all appear a trifle scared. I know a lot of them, so I shan’t be lonesome. I don’t feel a bit homesick. I wonder what they are doing at home? It must be strange to be at home and not have me there.

Oh well, I’ll soon get this room to look like home. It certainly did look bare when we first came in, but the view from the window is beautiful. I am glad my roommates are both from my graduating class. Guess I’ll go to bed, because school begins tomorrow.

Sept. 21.
Oh how I wish I were home again! I don’t care a rap about teaching. The studies are all right, but the home lessons I never get done. Some of the girls are nice but the upper-classmen seem to think it’s their duty to step as hard as they can on the Freshmen. And that lecture we got tonight. I think it’s mean to be always down on us. And that firedrill last night almost scared the wits out of me. Why can’t they have it at a decent time, not when I’ve just got into bed? I don’t care if the old building does burn down. I wish it would, then I could go home.

Nov. 1.
We had a great time today. Our team beat the Junior III’s, so now we’re champs. I got two A’s today, besides. I was introduced to the nicest girl today. She lives over in Normal and invited me to visit her. I know a lot of upper-classmen now. They’re not half as strict as they were at first. Our house president is a peach. She’s a good hockey player too. Some of the girls were talking about going home this weekend, but gosh, I’d just as soon stay here.

B III Graduates

EVELYN ALEXANDRA AMBROSE

468 Hancock Street, Norfolk Downs, Mass. Day Student Council, '26-'27; W. A. A., '26-'27; Dancing Class, '25-'27.

"There buds the promise of celestial worth."—Young.

"Desperate" is a good student as her marks attest. She is industrious, energetic, willing, and dependable. Any event which is in her charge is sure to be a success, and her quality of leadership has often been recognized by her friends. Above all "Des" is good-natured and fun-loving. We hope that your future associates will love and enjoy you as much as we do, Evelyn.

HELEN GERTRUDE AVERY

"Ah, you flavor everything; you are the vanilla of society."—Smith.

Helen is our prize athletic girl, who impartially bestows her prowess on offence or defense. If all her talent were placed on one side, the contest would be too unequal. In everything she shows no favoritism. Her dormitory life is not altogether peaceful, because room 16, is too popular. Good luck, Helen, in your future life.

FRANCES ELEANOR BALDWIN

"By the work one knows the workman."—La Fontaine.

Here we have a girl who is extremely popular. She excels in studies and leads the class, (to be more nearly exact, the school), in sports. "Frankie" is quiet and unobtrusive, and at times we are hardly aware of her presence. We wish you the best of luck, Frances, in your teaching life.
RUTH VALBORG BERENSTEN

"Those about her from her shall read the perfect ways of honour."—Shakespeare.

Ruth is a girl who believes that school duties come first and social obligations second. She seems rather quiet and reserved but upon further acquaintance is found to be ready for a happy time. Ruth has been a faithful and efficient member of the dancing class, and every Tuesday morning could be found gracefully flitting around the "gym" in her blue gown. We hope that you will be as well-liked and as successful in your teaching life, Ruth, as you have been while at school.

AVIS ATWELL BLANCHARD

2 North Avenue, Attleboro, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'27; Basketball, '24-'26; Dormitory Council, '24-'25; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27; Class C Social Committee, '26; Vice-President Social Activities Committee, '26-'27; Class Representative, '24-'26; Garden Club, '24-'27; Hockey, '26; Orchestra, '24-'25; Secretary-Treasurer of Orchestra, '26-'27; Baseball, '25; Garden Club Social Committee, '27.

"Her ways were ways of pleasantness".

Although, from the above list of activities, you can see that Abe spends a great deal of time in outside activities, she is always proud of her report card, which proves that she studies hard, too. Good luck, Avis.

HANNAH MARIA BOWDEN

"Truths that wake, to perish never."—Wordsworth.

Hannah excels in all forms of athletic activity and no game is complete without her good work. She is a splendid student in all subjects, but in Geography, especially, she does very good work. Billy is always ready to help a classmate in need. The best wishes of the class go with you, Hannah, in your future work.
HARRIET CHAPMAN BURTON

131 Riverview Street, Brockton, Mass.

"He hath no power who hath no power to use."

At first Harry seemed a very quiet sort of girl, but after we knew her we found that she had a jolly disposition, which has added a great deal to the fun of B3. She is always ready for a good time, but never at the expense of her studies. We know that she always has her lessons prepared and carries off the honors in scholarship. Good luck, Harriet, may you receive the success and prosperity which you merit from your work here.

EUNICE JOSEPHINE CASS

1191 Warren Avenue, Brockton, Mass. Hockey, '24-'25; Mrs. Boydens Reception Committee, '26; Dancing Class, '26-'27.

"Still waters run deep."

Like Milton's pensive nun, Eunice is silent, steadfast, and demure. When she wasn't studying, she spent many spare hours in the bowling alleys, and it was with much fear that we stood back when she swung that wicked right arm. The proof of her scholastic ability is to be found in her excellent report cards. Do not forget your friends at B. N. S., Eunice, and remember that they are all wishing you success.

KATHERINE MUNRO CASWELL

"All I know is, that the facts I state
Are true as truth has ever been of late."—Byron.

Kay is one of our all-round girls. In every line of work, she participates with vigor and enthusiasm. Qualities of leadership are evident in Kay. We shall remember Kay as a thinker, a peruser of books, a good sportswoman, a leader, and a friend. May you have the happiest and most prosperous of lives, Katherine.
OLIVE COSTA

"I will do my best."

Those who have known Olive during her three years here, appreciate the responsibility imposed by an association based upon genuine sincerity and supreme generosity. She is very popular, not only in her own class, but throughout the entire school. Her unbounded initiative and ambition have made her a superior student in all of her subjects. For you, Olive, we wish the most successful future imaginable.

DOROTHY MARGARET CROSBY

104 Hazard Street, New Bedford, Mass. Glee Club, '24-'25; Dramatic Club, '25-'27; Secretary, '25-'26; Class Vice-President, '25-'26; President of Student Government Association, '26-'27.

"Look at her prizes all in a row, Surely a hint of fame." — Service.

Dot is the popular member of our class, who has been very prominent in the social life of the school. We have enjoyed her for the last three years because of her happy disposition, and charming personality. When one sees Dot one sees her two "roomies"—the inseparable trio. The class will miss this good friend and student next year. Good luck, Dorothy.

FRANCES ALBERTA DESMOND

"A will to success is half the fight".

Calm, clear-eyed Frances came to Normal three years ago, with a firm purpose to conquer. She soon won our friendship with her pleasant manner and her willingness to work. Who could ever imagine Fran disloyal to her school or her friends? She is a girl to whom B. N. S. can always point with pride as one of her graduates. We all wish you the best of luck, Frances, and happiness in your career.
DOROTHY ELIZABETH DUNLEVY

28 Frankton Avenue, Brockton, Mass.  W. A. A., '24-'26: Basketball, '24; Hockey, '24; NORMAL OFFERING STAFF, '25-'26; Chairman of Dancing, '26-'27; Class Representative, '26-'27.

"And a little child shall lead them."

Dot’s witty remarks and ready answers, both in and out of class have furnished many laughs. Dramatics is Dot’s sphere, and although she is a good student in all subjects, she excels in this. She is one of the most faithful advocates of the dancing class, and one of the most graceful, too. We certainly like you, Dorothy, and wish you a great deal of success.

RUTH ANASTASIA FLAVIN

35 Shore Street, Taunton, Mass.  Day Student Council, '25-'26; Day Student Social Committee, '25.

"There is no truer-hearted".—Tennyson.

Ruth possesses a great deal of scholastic ability, but in art work she is particularly proficient. She has a dauntless spirit which enables her to attack any problem, no matter how difficult. It is this willingness to work which has made her such a success at Normal School. Your many friends wish you happiness and prosperity in your future life, Ruth.

ELEANOR THIBEAULT FREDETTE

"She from whose lips divine persuasion flows."—Pope.

In whatever capacity Ellie serves, she serves well. As a leader she is very popular, because of the tact she employs in all of her undertakings. In this way she insures the cooperation of her associates. She receives splendid marks in all of her subjects, which proves that she is a good scholar, too. As class editor she wields a stern sceptre, but we love her just the same. Good luck, Eleanor.
MABEL IRENE GUIDABONI

143 Soule Street, Middleboro, Mass. Dancing Class, '26-'27; Day Student Council, '26-'27.

"Rich, not gaudy; For apparel oft proclaims the man."

Let us introduce to you, Mabel, one of our commuters. Mabel has won the esteem of our class not only for her conscientious study, but also for her constant sweet and agreeable manner. We have all admired Mabel's good-looking clothes and her graceful poise,—brought about no doubt, from her attendance at dancing class. Best of luck to you, Mabel, in all the years to come.

MILDRED LOUISE HOULIHAN

"In came Mrs. Tesziwig, one vast substantial smile."—Dickens.

This is "Hap", the girl with the lovely smile. She is the best all-round sport ever, always willing to sacrifice her own wishes to accommodate the desires of her friends. She is an athletic girl, too, as is evident by her participation in hockey and baseball. As far as her studies are concerned,—well, ask her about her excellent reports. Success, Mildred, is our wish for you.

CONSTANCE JULIA KEEGAN

289 Wahconah Street, Pittsfield, Mass. French Club, '24-'27; Normal House President, '26-'27; Hospitality Committee, '26; Hockey, '26. From the distant hills of Berkshire, our Connie came to Bridgewater. She has studied and played with a concentration and earnestness which has made her among those at the top of the list in studies and in sports. Under her leadership, Normal Hall has had a very happy year. She is firm and steady, a girl upon whom we would not be afraid to depend. Good luck, Constance, may you be very successful and happy.
NELLIE CECILIA KUWASKI

82 Ruth Street, New Bedford, Mass. French Club, '24-'27

"Night after night she sat and bleared her eyes with books."

Nellie is a very good scholar in all subjects, but her forte is French. In fact, she intends to be a teacher of French next year. The other subject in which she seems especially interested in, is Sports. If you could see her playing hockey, you would agree that interest is conducive to skill, because she certainly is adept. Well, Nellie, we wish you the best of luck next year, and every year, teaching your little pupils how to speak French.

MARGARET JEANNE MACDERMOTT

63 Quincy Avenue, Quincy, Mass. House Board, '26-'27; Student Council, '23-'24; Assistant Chairman of Student Council, '24; W. A. A., '23-'27; Baseball, '24-'26; Soccer, '26; Bowling, '26-'27; Basketball, '24-'25; Garden Club, '24-'27, Secretary-Treasurer, '25-'26, President, '26-'27; Chairman of Garden Club Social, '27; Open House Committee, '26; Nominating Committee of Class Officers, '27; Class C Social Committee, '26.

"In youth and beauty, wisdom is but rare."

Poetess, writer, literary critic, a most able leader, and a clever student,—are all ways of describing Marge. We know that her pupils next year will love her as much as we do this year. Best of luck, Margaret.

RUTH EVELYN MAYO

58 Church Street, East Weymouth, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'27; Garden Club, '24-'27.

"She is ever precise and promise keeping."—Shakespeare.

Ruth is one of our more quiet members, but one with whom we would dispense under no consideration. We can not help but admire her, for her steadiness, even disposition, and stability. She is a conscientious student and an ambitious worker, in addition to being a helpful classmate. You have our sincere wish for your success, Ruth, in your future life.
ADELE McLEAN

"So tender and true."

Delly is sincere, jolly, clever, and athletic. She is just the sort of person that we like to have around, because of her liveliness and originality. Next year we are going to miss this delightful classmate more than we like to think about, but our loss will be somebody else's gain, because some children are going to have a wonderful teacher. The best of luck, Adele, in your life as a teacher.

JENNIE LOUISE NUGENT

1033 North Main Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'25; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. If you ever saw Jennie in the Day Student's Room studying, you would certainly say that she can concentrate, because she appears oblivious to all sound and feeling. Her conscientious work has shown results, in the class room and on her reports. Jennie claims that soccer and tennis are her favorite sports, and we believe it, by the way that she plays. Wherever you go Jennie, the best wishes of your class will be with you.

VIVIENNE AGNES PICKETT

421 High Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27.

"I take for the flower of womankind."—Tennyson.

Vivienne is one of our most conscientious classmates. She is rather quiet,—as girls go,—but we love her just the same. If it is true that diligence and labor are rewarded by success, she will certainly reach the goal to which she is aspiring. We sincerely hope, Vivienne, that you will succeed in your new work as you have while at B. N. S.
MADELINE HOOD PLANT

"Would I were as steadfast as thou art."

Madeline has acquired a habit which most of the rest of us wish we could cultivate. This virtue is the one of always handing her work in on time. No matter how rushed she is by social activities she never neglects her studying. We envy her A's and B's; but by those athletic shoes that she wears we know that she spends some time in making a mark for herself in sports. We wish you the best of success in the future, Madeline.

DOROTHY ROSE POWELL

"Firm to resolve; patient to perform."

Dot can always be depended upon to do her bit, whatever comes along. She seems to possess just the right proportion of friendliness, courtesy, and frankness. Her ever-ready smile and quiet charm will be remembered by all of us, when we think in retrospect of the days spent here. Good luck, Dorothy, may your pupils appreciate you as much as we do.

CAROLINE WARD RICHARDSON

"If I can't be sorry, I might as well be glad."—Millay.

Carol is a very busy lady, when you take into consideration the amount of outside activities in which she is engaged in addition to all of her regular school work. She does not seem to mind it, however, because she never neglects one for the other. You are bound to be a success, Caroline, and we wish you luck.
CORNELIA HOWLAND ROGERS

"Gallant, graceful, gentle, tall."

Connie is the golden-haired, slender, dignified member of our class. She is an expert pianist and by her playing has imparted much enjoyment during her stay here. She has been very prominent in the musical activities of the school, and we have heard that she will be sorely missed, next year. The best of luck, Cornelia, and don't forget the many friends you have made here.

IRENE SCHOLASTICA RYAN

"Her heart is in her work."

Here is another very nice member of B3 who helped to make all classes the fun they were. Rene was one of the athletic members of the class who went out and succeeded on the field. She was also an active member of the Garden Club. We hope that next year in her teaching she will still continue to look on the bright side of life and see the humor in all situations. Good luck, Irene.

MARY ANGELA SHEA

19 Lyon Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'25; Library Club, '25-'26; Garden Club, '25-'26; Vice-President, Fall River-Bridgewater Club.

"Back and forth to town I go."—Pope.

Angela, a cheerful and happy companion, is the girl her classmates all admire. Her interest in outside activities and her excellent work have made her a valuable asset to the school. Although we hate to lose sight of you, we will try to remember that "the best of friends must part", and so we take this opportunity, Angela, to wish you the best of luck.
HELENA LAWTON STANLEY

"A lovely lady, garmented in light
From her own beauty."—Shelley.

We envy anyone who is listed among Helena's friends, for it is rumored that they are a select few. Helena is among the first in her class in scholastic ability,—ask Miss Roth! She has a sweet smile which makes friends for her with little effort, but she does not smile on everyone. We all like this reserved young lady, and we know that she will be very successful in both her professional and her social life. Best of luck, Helena.

History

On a bright September morning not so long ago, eighty-two future pedagogues gathered in the basement of Woodward Dormitory to begin their Normal School careers, and there, were divided into classes designated as Junior I, II, and III, respectively.

We found, as Juniors, that together with hours of studying came hours of pleasure. Among the most pleasant memories that we have are those of the day that we spent visiting the granite quarries in Quincy, the one on which we went to the museums in Boston, our sleigh-ride to Brockton one wintry evening, and the sing at which Junior II won.

In our work too, we found pleasure, as illustrated by the enthusiasm shown in working out the Pilgrim and Indian projects in Miss Moffitt's class, our interest in Training School, and all other scholastic activities.

We have been very athletic, as well, for many of our members have proved stars in Hockey, Basketball and Baseball.

To the rest of the school we extend every wish for happiness and prosperity.

The time will soon arrive
When the Senior Class must part
And each and every one of us
Our new careers must start.

Alice Sample
HELENA LOUISE ANDERSON

33 South Street, Hingham, Mass. Student Council, '25-'27; Class Representative, '25-'27; W. A. A., '25-'27; Girl Scouts, '25-'26; Hockey, '25; Hospitality Committee, '26-'27. Everyone admires this happy, fun-loving girl, who is the first person in all of our classes. Through her pleasing personality and friendly attitude she became the Class Representative, which office she has filled with ability for the two years that we have spent at Normal School. Helena has a great deal of "sticktoitiveness" in her, as we are sure that Mr. Doner would vouch. The best of luck, Helena, and may you always keep that agreeable personality which is such a great asset in life.

JOSEPHINE MARY BARNES

25 Dudley Street, New Bedford, Mass. Junior Sing Committee, '26. Jo is one of the most accommodating young ladies we have in our class. She makes lovely posters and is always willing to lend her artistic ability to those who need it. There is another reason for our liking Jo,—she is always the same. We all wonder if she could ever become angry, for we have never seen her without a pleasant smile. Love and best wishes to you, Josephine, and may you enjoy teaching even more than you have B. N. S.

AVIS ELEANOR BLACKWELL

83 Division Street, North Attleboro, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27. We seldom see Avis when she is not working quietly and busily. She does everything in such a silent and unassuming manner that we are startled at times in class at her excellent preparation. When Avis recites we all listen attentively to her sweet and soft voice. We like to have her called upon for this reason. Senior 1 wishes you great success and happiness, Avis, in your teaching life.
ROSE ELIZABETH BORGES

6 Pleasant Street, Dighton, Mass. Girl Scouts, '25-'27; W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25; Basketball, '25-'26; "Gym" Leader, '27. Rose has captured the hearts of the girls of Senior 1, with her sunny disposition and cheery smile. Rose is clever in every one of her studies, but she exhibits her unusual capability, especially, in her recitations in physiography class. We know that you will make an excellent and lovable teacher, Rose, and we wish you the best of luck.

GLORIA MARIE BOUCHER

549 South Almond Street, Fall River, Mass. Glee Club, '25-'27; W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25; Baseball, '26; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. "Glo's" smiling face, sparkling eyes, and boundless enthusiasm have endeared her to all of us. Gloria is very sympathetic, so whenever things are not running so smoothly as usual, we like to hunt her up, for a little consolation. She is very clever with her tongue, also, and is able to make many original and witty remarks. Happiness and success is our wish for you always, Gloria.

LEONORA JOSEPHINE BRADY

756 Second Street, Fall River, Mass. Vice-President of Senior Class, '27; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'26; Leader of Junior 1 Sing, '25. Leonora is one of the leaders in all of our classes, because of her superior knowledge. A jollier and more lovable girl would be a difficult person to find, for she has always a pleasant and bright remark to utter. We know your pupils will love you, Leonora, just as much as your class has, and we shall miss your cheery presence when we leave B. N. S.
DOROTHEA FRANCES BRUCE

64 Green Street, Fairhaven, Mass. Assistant Literary Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '26-'27. Dot is one of the brightest girls in Senior 1. When she recites the rest of us just sit back with open mouths and wonder where she acquired all the knowledge she possesses. Yet Dot has found time to win her way into the hearts of all her classmates, with her helpful and cheery manner. We shall remember Dot as an able student, a conscientious worker, and a good friend. We wish you the good luck you have earned, Dorothy.

HELEN FRANCES BURR

10 Water Street, Hingham, Mass. Girl Scouts, '25-'26; W. A. A., '25-'27; Glee Club, '25-'27; Choir, '26-'27; Woodward House Board, '25-'26; Hockey, '25. Helen is one of the most popular girls in our class. The proverbial saying that red hair denotes a temper is again given the lie. A nicer disposition than Helen's would be difficult to find. She can even smile while conducting the singing in chapel! May you shine in the profession of teaching, Helen, as you do at B. N. S.

ELEANOR VIRGINIA BUTLER

119 Harvard Street, Brockton, Mass. Hockey, '25. Eleanor is one of those unusually fortunate individuals, who are proficient in two rather difficult arts. In her case they happen to be, school-teaching and dancing. We have heard that while training, her pupils fairly worshipped their sweet teacher, but we do not wonder. She is also a student of ability and a poetess of some renown in our class. As one of the best liked girls in our class, Eleanor, we wish you to remember us, and our desire for your success.
ALICE MAE CARDOZA

63 North Street, Fairhaven, Mass. Hockey, '25; W. A. A., '25-'27. Al, with her black hair and snapping, black eyes, is one of the petite members of the class. She may be small, but she can reach high enough on the blackboard to put on excellent drawings. Al is very good at furnishing properties for our plays. Just ask her where the mustaches came from. Her scholastic ability is rivalled by her athletic prowess. In hockey, especially, she is skilled. Good luck, Alice, is our wish for you.

ALICE ELIZABETH CAREY

582 Cohannet Street, Taunton, Mass. Let me introduce you to another one of our commuters, Alice Carey. She is a regular passenger on the popular "Golden Chariot". Al is the girl with the professional attitude which the rest of us wish we could emulate. She is a splendid student, and an excellent friend to all of her associates. We wish you the success and good fortune in the future, Alice, which you have earned by your faithful work.

MARJORIE ELIZABETH CHACE

447 New Boston Road, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Baseball, '25; Hockey, '25; Basketball, '25-'27; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. Marg is a clever all-round student and athlete. Although rather shy about admitting it, she is fortunate in possessing the ability to write poetry. Her pleasant disposition has won her many friends among her classmates. We shall all miss you, Marjorie, but we are proud to present to the teaching profession a capable teacher. Good luck.
DORIS MILDRED CHAMBERLIN

300 Plymouth Street, Abington, Mass. Doris is the adept chauffeur of Senior 1. Her services were deeply appreciated when she filled her car beyond capacity in order to allow the entire class to enjoy the trip to Quincy. Doris, because of her splendid preparations, is always ready to volunteer a great deal of information in class discussions,—material that is both interesting and helpful. You have our sincere wishes for your future success Doris, because we, as classmates, know it is due you.

LEONA FRANCES CHAPPELL

17 Coram Street, Taunton, Mass. Leona is the most bashful girl in Senior 1. Regardless of the fact of her reticence, we grew to know her, which is another way of saying we began to admire her. She is a diligent student, a good sport and a splendid classmate. We wish you happiness and success in your future life, Leona, because you have earned it by your work at B. N. S.

MARGARET LOUISE CONNERTON

20 Freedom Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., ’25-’27; Dormitory Council, ’25-’26; Bowling, ’26; Fall River-Bridge- water Club. Peg is the care-free girl who seems to enjoy whatever she is doing. Her studies are a pleasure to her, she delights in all sorts of sports, and she seems to enjoy her classmates. Dancing, too, is an art at which she is skilled. With your ambition and boundless enthusiasm, Margaret, you are sure to be successful; therefore, the best of luck.
ANNA SEARS CORNISH

82 Pearl Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Captain of Basketball, '25; Hockey, '25; Baseball, '25; Varsity Basketball, '25. Anna is the tiny athlete of Senior 1. In spite of her size, few of the rest of us can rival her in basketball, soccer, hockey, skating, or dancing. In scholastic activities, too, she ranks high. Physiography class, especially, was a source of interest and enjoyment for her. We all wish you luck, Anna, and we know that you will enjoy teaching as well as you have life, here, at school.

LYDIA CORREIA

541 Lawton Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25; Basketball, '25-'26; Glee Club, '25-'27; Girl Scouts, '25-'27; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. Although her physical standing may be rather "short", she stands very high in the estimation of her classmates. She does not do so much talking as the average girl, yet when she does speak, it always proves worth the listening. Her excellent marks are a proof of her conscientious study. In short, she possesses all the qualities which make a true friend and sincere classmate. Good luck, Lydia.

DORIS MARY ELIZABETH DOUGLAS

190 Summer Street, New Bedford, Mass. Hockey, '25; Basketball, '25-'26; Dramatic Club, '25-'27; W. A. A., '25-'27; Class Reporter, NORMAL OFFERING, '25-'27. "Appearances are sometimes deceiving" is an old proverb with which we all agree, since we met Doris. Although this fair damsel appeared so quiet and shy, on further acquaintance she proved to be very lively. We have all enjoyed having her in dear old Senior 1 and we certainly appreciate the way she worked to send our NORMAL OFFERING material in on time. Her pleasant manner and helpfulness have won her many friends throughout the entire school. Senior 1 wishes you the best of luck, Doris, in your future undertaking.
ANNA MAY DRINKWATER

74 Union Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Anna is a very unassuming and likable sort of girl. She has a very sweet and pleasant nature, which has helped to endear her to us. She is never heard saying anything unkind about anyone, and we feel sure that she does not even think an uncomplimentary thing about a single person. She reserves all of her judgments, until the very end, both in class and out. Therefore, when she voices her opinion on any subject we are sure that it is a fair and unbiased one. We hope that you will be as successful in your chosen career, Anna, as you have been in your Normal School work.

ESTHER HUMPHREY FAIRCLOTH

64 Plymouth Street, North Abington, Mass. Whenever we think of Esther, we think of flaxen hair, blue eyes and pink cheeks. She possesses an ability for indulging in a charming sort of humor, which brightens many of our classes. She was never daunted by class discussions, however involved, and always contributed her carefully planned interpretation of the subject. Senior 1 wishes you the best of luck in your future profession, Esther.

DOROTHY IRENE FLOOD

99 Whitman Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Dot can always be discovered by her happy manner and joviality. She is a great admirer of blackboard drawings and can usually be found in Room 20 gazing at them with rapt attention. She is a student of unusual ability, because she possesses the happy faculty of being above the average in every subject. Senior 1 wishes you success and prosperity in your future life, Dorothy.
MARY ROSALIE GERVAIS

23 Cottage Street, Abington, Mass. Hockey, '25. Although Rosalie is only seventeen, we older members of the class find it a great deal of work to do as well in class as she does. She goes about in a quiet and inconspicuous way, but because of her unusual attractiveness, she does not pass unnoticed by the rest of the school. With her pleasant temperament and teaching ability she will make a good pedagogue. You have our sincere wish for your success, Rosalie.

PAULINE AGNES GULA

15 Second Street, Taunton, Mass. Pauline is the modest little girl in our class. We never hear her talk about herself, but we hear many nice things about her from other people. She has a splendid sense of humor, as you would agree if you could hear some of the funny happenings of outside training that she relates. As a fine co-operative worker and student, she is unsurpassed. Senior 1 hopes she will enjoy teaching as much as she did training. Good luck and best wishes, Pauline.

DORIS GERTRUDE RIDLON

Hobart Street, Hingham, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25-'26. "Laugh and the world laughs with you", is an old, old saying and is certainly true in Doris' case. Jolly? Well I should say so,—full of life to the "nth" degree. No one could feel unhappy with Doris around to "drive dull care away". Doris was one of our best students in Physiology, a subject in which we hope her pupils may be as interested as she is. May you always be as cheerful and happy and successful as you are now, Doris, is our wish for you.
ELVA MARIE SHEA

398 Plain Street, Rockland, Mass. Elva is a happy, laughing, joyous girl, with never a care in the world. Her laughter is contagious, for when we see her “grinning away” we have to smile with her. Elva spends her time studying and making friends. Who can utilize time to better advantage? We shall miss her companionship when our B. N. S. days are left behind. May success, happiness and prosperity be your lot, Elva, is our sincere wish for you.

Senior II

RUTH HANNAFORD

21 Holmes Street, Brockton, Mass. Hockey, '26; Soccer, '26; Basketball, '26. Ruthie is the class chauffeur, for she has had her Ford as a companion in many a blowout. But to be serious, as Ruthie seldom is, Senior 2 would have missed this first girl in the alphabet. She is a conscientious student, as her marks give evidence, although she never appears rushed with work. We know that you will be a success, Ruth, as you have demonstrated to us the ability of which you are capable.

MARGARET CECELIA HAYES

113 Linden Street, Whitman, Mass. Class Representative, '25-'27; Day Student Council, '25-'26; Basketball, '25-'26; Hockey, '26-'27. Mardie is one of the most popular girls in Senior 2. Her pleasant smile and happy disposition have made for her innumerable friends throughout the entire student body. As a class representative we considered her all that could be desired, proved by the fact that she was unanimously elected for a second year. She has shown herself to be a good student and a sincere friend in our two years together. Best of luck, Margaret.
MARY ALICE HAYES

847 Washington Street, Whitman, Mass. Leader of Junior Sing, '26; Day Student Social Committee, '25; Soccer, '26; Class Treasurer, '26-'27. Al may come third in the list of her class, but she is nearer first in the hearts of her classmates. She has a great deal of musical ability, and for this reason was given the honor of conducting Junior 2, at the Junior Sing, when we won the baton. Because of her financial prowess she was elected the treasurer of our class, this year. All through life we hope that you retain the success and power of making friends that you have had while here, Mary.

CHRISTINE ELLEN HIGGINS

56 Jenkins Avenue, Whitman, Mass. Christine is an unassuming and conscientious girl, admired by the whole class. Although her manner is reserved, there is a great deal of friendliness in her attitude, which makes her a favorite among her classmates. She possesses a great deal of character, which makes her an interesting girl with whom to associate. We wish you the best of luck, Christine, in your teaching life.

FRANCES AVERY HOWLAND

23 Bay Street, New Bedford, Mass. Frances is a very good all-round student, but Reading seems to be her special forte. She certainly did make us envious when she demonstrated her superior skill in dramatization. Frances is not only fond of study, but she is also a great lover of sports and other enjoyments. With your happy disposition, and kindly personality, we feel sure that you will be a success in your profession, Frances.
DORIS MAY HULSMAN

23 Fairview Street, Middleboro, Mass. Glee Club, '25-'27; W. A. A., '25-'26. Doris is a girl upon whom one can always depend. She has ideas on all subjects, the expounding of which has saved the rest of us many times in class. She is capable of a great deal of concentration, so is able to prepare her lessons in a minimum of time. We like her for her intelligence, cleverness, and willingness to help her friends. Good luck, Doris.

SYLVIA IMMERMAN

14 Exeter Street, Taunton, Mass. Sylvia is one of the very nicest girls in our class, because of her agreeable nature, good sense of humor, willingness to be of assistance, and friendliness. We admire her, too, for her intelligence and self-possession. May you have the best of luck in your future life, Sylvia, and don't forget your friends at Normal School.

DORIS ELIZABETH INGALLS

Haverhill, Mass. Doris is one of the most industrious girls in Senior II. "Always busy—never idle" is undoubtedly her motto, and she certainly practices it in school and out of school. She is also quite famous in Senior 2 for her artistic ability and ingenuity. Remember the hours we spent in making one drawing for Blackboard, while Doris spent twenty minutes and had a nearly perfect reproduction. Three cheers for Miss Ingalls! Good luck, Doris.
RUTH ELEANOR JOHNSON

31 Arthur Street, Quincy, Mass. Bowling, '26; Division Basketball, '26; Baseball, '26; Day Student Social Committee; Hockey, '27; Social Activities Committee, '27. Ruth's cheerful disposition and charming manner have won for her many friends at B. N. S. She is ambitious, dependable and sincere in everything she does. Because of these qualities, Ruthie was one of our most popular commuters. A splendid student, an excellent athlete, and the best scout ever, characterize Ruthie in the opinion of Senior II. The best of luck and happiness to you always, Ruth.

MARGARITA MARY JONES

42 Iron Hill Street, Weymouth, Mass. Baseball, '26; Junior Sing Committee, '26; Open House Committee, '26. Margarita is one of the quietest girls in the Senior class, but it is just that unassuming attitude which has endeared her to her classmates. She has a most sunny disposition, for no matter how adversely things may go, she still retains her pleasant demeanor. We know you will be successful, Margarita, and we wish you all the luck in the world.

FLORENCE CONVERSE KILLAM

302 Titicut Street, State Farm, Mass. I wonder why everyone likes Florence! It is because of her genial disposition, friendliness, and sweet personality. A more accomplished student would be hard to find. You will be missed by the rest of your class next year, Florence, but we all wish you the greatest success in the world.
HELEN PATRICIA KINNIERY

104 Butler Street, New Bedford, Mass. Baseball, '26. Who always comes to class prepared? Who always has her note-books up to date? Helen is the girl. She is an unusually conscientious student. In fact we never knew her to pass in a note-book or any other assignment, late. Just as soon as Friday comes we see Helen, suit-case in hand, homeward bound. Never mind, Helen, we did the same ourselves. With all of your scholastic ability and tact, we know that you will be an excellent teacher, and we extend to you, Helen, our sincere wishes for your success.

MARY BARBARA MAHONEY

28 Anawan Street, Taunton, Mass. Barb is a good sport, as she is always ready to join in any sort of fun, or carry out any plan which may be suggested. She is rather modest about her artistic ability, which she cleverly displayed in our drawing courses. She is a faithful student in all courses, and has deserved the success which she has achieved at B. N. S. Good luck to you, Barbara.

MARY FRANCES MAHONEY

192 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass. What would Senior 2 ever have done without Frances? The dictionary would describe Frances as gay, jovial, lithe, jocund, vivacious, intelligent, clever, and oh, ever so many other applicable adjectives. Put all of these together and it will give you a mental image of Frances. She attracts all of her friends by her lovely, curly hair and laughing eyes. Fran always comes to school with her lessons well prepared, so is able to recite in a laudable manner in class. Fran has "a way" with all people, including children, so we are sure she will succeed in her profession. Good luck, Frances.
LAURA GENEVIEVE McDERMOTT

66 Rutland Square, Brockton, Mass. Gen is a fine student, good sport, and a worth-while classmate. Although she is quiet she is good company, as the commuters of Senior 2 know. She has done justice to our class in every respect, both in study and in sport. Capable in so many lines, we are positive she will have a successful future. May you receive happiness and prosperity in your teaching career, Genevieve.

MARY MARGARET McGrath

74 Forest Street, Fall River, Mass. Basketball, '26; Baseball, '26; Hockey, '26; Soccer, '27. Mary is one of the girls who belongs to that corking, good crowd from Fall River. Her jolly disposition has made her personality one of great attractiveness. She is a good sport both in and out of school, as all who know her best will attest. We will never forget her favorite expression, or at least the one in which she indulged most often, “You can’t make me sore!” All of your classmates wish you the very best of luck, Mary.

MARY ALICE MEUSE

694 Commercial Street, East Weymouth, Mass. Another charming Mary in the class! This Mary is a rather quiet young lady, but the most agreeable person anyone would care to meet. She is our star athlete. Last year she was our star baseball player, as well as a member of the basketball and hockey teams. Senior 2 wishes you the greatest of success in teaching, Mary, because we know that you deserve it.
AGNES ELIZABETH MOREY

59 Cook Street, East Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27; Baseball, '26-'27; Captain, Baseball, '26; Basketball, '26; Soccer, '26; Hockey, '26; Captain, Tennis, '26. Agnes is happy-go-lucky and in for fun. Nothing in the world seems to bother her. However, underneath her carefree exterior, is a mind serious enough to serve her for a great deal of hard study. She is an excellent athlete, one of the best in the class. She is a very versatile person, her ability enabling her to do credit to her school in many lines. Good luck, Agnes, may you always be happy and successful.

DOROTHEA ADELAIDE MURPHY

29 West Street, West Bridgewater, Mass. Dot is one of the most popular members of our class. She is clever in a number of lines, but in dramatics or story telling she is at her height. However, she can express herself in other than scholastic ways, too. You should see her on the athletic field, and then you would know what we mean. If you should happen to be looking for a good sport, just find Dot, and we will guarantee that she will meet with all requirements. We all wish you a great deal of happiness, Dorothea.

GRACE GENEVIEVE MURPHY

200 Ash Street, New Bedford, Mass. Chapel Program Committee, '26. Grace has been a valuable asset to Senior II in many ways. She is unusually intelligent, a splendid worker, and also a very charming girl. In her art work, especially, she exhibits unusual talent. Her class will remember her as the agreeable and helpful student, who was so very clever. We wish you the best of luck, Grace, in your future life.
FLORENCE MARIA NORLANDER

328 Austin Street, New Bedford, Mass. Florence is a wonderful friend to have. Refreshingly frank and sincere, we know that we will hear the truth when her opinion is consulted. She has gained a reputation for herself as a fine student because of the superior quality of her work, for the last two years. She is ambitious, too, for she intends to continue her studies in other fields. To you, Florence, we offer our heart-felt wishes for your success in life, upon leaving B. N. S.

ASTRID NYQUIST

North Easton, Mass. Senior 2 started its second year of life at B. N. S. in an exciting manner, as we entered model school for the first six weeks. We heard rumors of a new girl in our class, and when we returned to our regular class work we all met Astrid. She soon proved herself to be a great worker and classmate. Her lessons are always well-prepared, her recitations always show an intelligent understanding of the subject, and her manner and attitude toward the rest of the class is very agreeable and pleasing. With your determination, you are bound to be a success. Good luck, Astrid.

MADELINE O'NEIL

41 Twelfth Street, Fall River, Mass. Soccer, '26; Basketball, '26; Hockey, '26; Day Student Council, '26-'27. Madeline is about the quietest and happiest girl in Senior 2. She is always smiling, never seeming to consider homework a burden. When any of the rest of us are unprepared, we turn to Madeline, as she always assists us. Madeline is sure to succeed as a teacher, because of her loving patience with children. The best of luck, Madeline. May you always be as happy as you are now.
MARY LOUISE O'NEIL

3247 North Main Street, Fall River, Mass. Mary is a very amiable girl and is as a consequence, very popular with the rest of her class. She is a clever all-round student, possessing a great deal of originality. Not only is she a brilliant scholar, but she is also a dancer of skill, a pastime in which she indulges, when her time is not taken up with studies. Best wishes, Mary, for a successful and happy future.

ELSIE PERRY

10 Mechanic Street, Mattapoisett, Mass. Glee Club, '25-'26; Girl Scouts, '25-'26; W. A. A., '25-'26; Hockey, '25-'26; Basketball, '26; Baseball, '26; Soccer, '26. Although Elsie is one of the smallest girls in our class, she is also one of the brightest. She has made herself prominent in the outside activities of the school, especially in the athletic organizations. She is a splendid student, one of whom the class is proud. The greatest of success, happiness, and prosperity, Elsie, is our wish for you.

LOUISE ELIZABETH PETRUCCHELLI

825 Broad Street, Weymouth, Mass. Louise is one of the most agreeable girls in Senior 2. We always felt a secret ambition to emulate her extraordinary neatness, but as yet we haven't succeeded very well. She is fond of her studies, as evidenced by her good work in class, but there is something else that she loves. This is dancing, and her attendance at the scout dances confirms our statement. However, she has attained a high degree of skill in both her studying and her dancing. Best of luck, Louise.
AGNES MAE PICARD

2 Obery Street, Plymouth, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27; Hockey, '26; Basketball, '26; Baseball, '26; Captain of Tennis, '27; Captain of Soccer, '27; Woodward Dormitory Council, '27. Agnes is our enthusiastic, gay, and popular member. In her class work she is conscientious, and ingenious, showing a genuine liking for study. She is a splendid athlete, as shown by her wonderful record on the field and in the "gym". She is very desirable as a friend because of her sincerity. With her ambition and "pep" we are sure she will climb to the top of the ladder. Good luck, Agnes.

Senior III

CATHERINE MILLER CLARK

15 Caledonia Avenue, Quincy, Mass. Glee Club, '26-'27; K. P. Class Treasurer, '25-'26. Do you know that nice-looking girl with the long hair in Senior III? Of course we do, that is "Kay". Kay entered our class this year and we have been very happy to have her with us. She is quiet and attentive, yet she is always ready for fun when the opportunity presents itself. The best of luck, Kay.

GRACE LOUISE HOWARD

212 High Street, Taunton, Mass. Grace entered school as a member of D2, but after a short time she decided to join us. Since entering our class she has proved herself to be a great asset. Many of us less fortunate mortals would have suffered were it not for the assistance of Grace's artistic touch in the completion of our blackboard drawings. We feel sure that her diligence and personality will win for her an enviable position in her profession.
MARGARET CATHERINE O’REILLY

807 North Montello Street, Brockton, Mass. Peg started her career at school as a member of Junior 2, but she evidently liked Senior 3 so well that she decided to join us the second term of our senior year. Although she is rather quiet, we soon became acquainted, and then we were so glad she had become a member of our class. We are so glad to have been friends of yours, Peg, and we wish you all the success possible.

WINIFRED BOSS POLLARD

416 Danforth Street, Taunton, Mass. Day Student Council, '25-'26; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, '26-'27. Win is the good sportsman of Senior 3. No matter how much hard work she has to do, she performs it graciously with a smile. We have the feeling that when she begins to teach she is going to captivate her pupils as she has captivated us. Happiness and prosperity, Win, is our wish for you throughout life.

SYLVIA PRATT

91 Broad Street, Bridgewater, Mass. Hockey, '25-'26; Division Basketball, '26; Captain, '27; Track, Captain, '26; Swimming, '26; Glee Club, '27; W. A. A., '26-'27; Class Representative, '26. Although Bridgewater is only a small town it certainly turned out something exceptional when it produced Sil. As Class Representative last year she proved herself capable and worthy of the office. She does everything in a superior manner, whether it is in sports or studies. Success and good luck in all your undertakings, Sylvia.
ILMI PUSKALA

41 Copeland Street, Quincy, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25-'26; Basketball, '25-'26; Tennis, '26. Ilmi is the girl who was always ready to help any member of her class at any time she was asked. In music, especially, she was proficient and we found her willing to share her knowledge on all occasions. If her enjoyment of Training School was a sample of the happiness she will find when teaching, her life will surely be a "path of roses".

GENEVA MAGDELENE REED

97 Elliot Street, Brockton, Mass. Day Students Council, '26-'27. Geneva's sunny disposition and charming manner have made her one of the most popular members of Senior 3. She has a wonderful sense of humor, the kind that the rest of us wish we could cultivate at times. She is not only adept in a scholastic way, but she is also a dancer of ability. If we were to take a popular vote on who the "best sport" in Senior 3 was, we would wager that Geneva's name would be very near the top. The best of luck, Geneva, all through life.

GRACE KATHRYN REED

48 Park Street, Fall River, Mass. Grace began her life at Normal as a commuter, but after living at the dormitory during her six weeks in Model School, she decided to remain for the rest of the time. Grace was very conscientious and could always be depended upon to do more than was required of her. It was she who showed so much originality in her papers in History of Education, and this ability seemed to be adapted to all of her studies. Best wishes for a successful career.
MARIE HELEN RIIHIMAKI

31 Nightingale Avenue, Quincy, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Basketball '25-'27; Hockey '25. Helen is the tiny member of the "Quincy Trio". What knowledge this girl has not, Senior III need not expect to possess. Helen may seem timid and quiet, but—you should see that girl hit a home run, "shoot" a basket, or hit a pass up the field and between the goal posts! Remarkable feats are not uncommon from Helen, either in sports or studies. Accept our sincere wishes, Helen, for your success.

GRACE JOANNA MONICA RIORDAN

323 Belmont Street, Brockton, Mass. W. A. A., '25. Secrets will always be found out! We have always wondered where Grace acquired her excellent pronunciation, but at last the truth became known. She teaches elocution. Her happy-go-lucky nature and industry have made a combination, the charm of which, few can resist. The sincere good wishes of your classmates go with you, Grace, for we know you are going to succeed.

KATHERINE ALICE ROGERS

493 Central Street, East Bridgewater, Mass. Kay is a girl of great musical ability. She is one of Senior 3's most conscientious members, as evidenced by her always carefully prepared lessons. She is willing to co-operate with the class in all undertakings, doing her best for the benefit of the group. May you enjoy success in your summer courses at La Salle and happiness in your life as a teacher.
ALICE HEWINS SAMPLE

60 Park Avenue, Bridgewater, Mass. Class Secretary, '27; W. A. A., '26-'27; Basketball, '26; Captain, '27; Hockey, '25; Division Basketball, Captain, '26; Tennis Captain, '26-'27. Al is certainly a good "sample" of the best in Bridgewater. Nothing ever goes wrong with Al, because her motto is "Never trouble trouble until trouble troubles you." One can always find her by looking for Sylvia Pratt. They are inseparable. Although Al can giggle, she can also be quite serious, as shown by her professional manner in Training School. We know that Alice is going to be one of the best of teachers.

CELIA SANDER

44 Somerset Avenue, Taunton, Mass. Cilla was absent from our class for a long time, so you can imagine how we welcomed her when she came back again. Our class is always glad to have someone who is cheery and good-natured, like Cilla, for a member. She is one of the cleverest girls in our class, being one of those rare creatures called an "all-round scholar". In your work as a teacher, Celia, we wish you as much success as you attained as a student.

EULA SHAW

73 Laureston Street, Brockton, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'26. Eula is a pleasant, agreeable girl, who seems to attract every one with whom she comes in contact. We all envied her extreme neatness, as few of the rest of us have ever been able to acquire it. She is a meticulous scholar in subject matter, appearance and punctuality. We all wish you good luck, Eula, in your teaching.
CATHARINE CONSTANCE SHEA

540 Robeson Street, Fall River, Mass. Class President, '27; Class Representative, '26; Student Council, '26; Hospitality Committee, '26; Chairman Junior Sing, '26; Garden Club, '26-'27; Library Club, '27; W. A. A., '26-'27; Fall River-Bridgewater Club; Fockey, '26-'27; Basketball, '26-'27; Bowling, '27. Hail to the president of the Seniors! She has been a noble worker, an active sportsman and a true friend to her whole class. Senior 3 is very proud of you, Catherine, and we sincerely hope that your future will be as bright as your past has been.

MARGUERITE LAURETTA SHEA

81 Almy Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '26; Library Club, '26; Hockey, '26; Baseball, '26. Marguerite is one of the famous Sheas of Senior 3. Although she appears to be very calm and shy, those of us that know her well can tell you that she is lively and full of fun. Her brilliant sense of humor has made her noted among her classmates as a wit. She has been active in sports and in the field of literature, especially, since her stay here. We shall miss you next year, Marguerite, but we wish you the best of success.

MARGARET SHERRY

192 Middleboro Avenue, East Taunton, Mass. Day Student Council, '26-'27. Margaret is her name, but few of us know it; to us she is "Sis". This Titian-haired girl of the sweet smile and unobtrusive manner, has found few to equal her in scholarship. In sports, also, she has shown her ability, as any member of her "gym." class will tell you. May you enjoy the best of luck, Sis.
EDNA MAY SMITH

76 Turner Street, Brockton, Mass. Edna is one of the most attractive girls in Senior 3. Combined with her physical attributes is a mind, which always proved a source of admiration for the rest of us. She is the classmate who liked to "discuss" things. After two years of conscientious study we hope you receive the success that you deserve, Edna.

MILICENT VAUSE SMITH

264 Barnaby Street, Fall River, Mass. Millie is the baby of Senior 111. Although she is a very quiet, demure, tiny maid, her neighbors in Normal Hall report that she has played more than one trick on them. Millie is a dependable girl, always ready in class with well prepared lessons. We wish you the best of luck in teaching, Milicent.

GENEVIEVE FRANCES SULLIVAN

196 Rodman Street, Fall River, Mass. Dormitory Council, '27; W. A. A., '25-'27; Hockey, '25; Basketball, '26; Baseball, '26; Bowling, '27; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. Gen is the all-round, jolly, good sport of Senior 3. She has a host of friends, not only in her own class, but also throughout the entire school. In "gym", especially, she excels. Gen is the girl who received the highest score in the school, last year, in gymnastics work. Worlds of happiness, Genevieve, in your future work.
ROSE EILEEN SULLIVAN

391 South Main Street, Randolph, Mass. Day Student Council, '25-'27. Rose has won many friends, here at Normal School, with her pleasant and happy disposition. As a student and class mate she could always be relied upon to co-operate with her associates. Rose combines work and play in a way that the rest of us would like to do. May you enjoy life in the future as you have in the past, Rose, and may you find a great deal of success in your profession.

GLADYS MARY SWEENEY

99 Mount Prospect Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26; Class Basketball, '26; Hockey, '26. "Glad" was not with us a very long time before it was discovered that she possessed a voice of unusual sweetness. Consequently, it will not surprise us to hear some day that Gladys is cultivating her voice abroad. Then we will say,—"We used to know her",—with a great deal of pride. We always saw her working as a true sport, in class, on the field and in play. Best wishes, Gladys.

FRANCES COTTER TERRY

10 Darling Street, Nantucket, Mass. Frances evidently thought very highly of our school, because she came from "far over the sea" to be with us. If you do not believe it, ask her what a distance it seems when she is going home for a vacation. She accomplishes a great deal in a quiet and unassuming manner. With your former experience as a teacher, Frances, and the excellent training that you have received at B. N. S., we do not doubt your success in future years.
HELEN WORDSWORTH TERRY

10 Darling Street, Nantucket, Mass. "It is just one Terry after another". But if Nantucket can show us anybody finer we should like to see them! Helen may be the quietest of the family in the classroom, but not so in the "dorm". Ask any of her neighbors! If you cannot find Helen in her room, just drop in at Casey's and you will be sure to see her there. We wish you the very best of luck, Helen, in your career as a school teacher.

LOUISE MAE TOTMAN

942 Union Street, Rockland, Mass. W. A. A., '27; Day Student Council, '27. Louise always received our admiration, especially, for the way in which she seemed to understand the most intricate points in psychology. We still marvel about it. Her jovial laugh made many situations bordering upon dullness, bright. To you, Louise, we extend our thanks for much enjoyment and we hope that you will be rewarded with a great deal of success.

ESTHER ROSE VISCO

420 Main Street, South Weymouth, Mass. This faithful and conscientious little worker of Senior 3, is the girl who despite everything returned home every week end. We will never forget her brilliant recitations in Mr. Arnold's classes. With her great knowledge of history and civics we would not be surprised to hear that she is given a seat in the State Legislature. Keep up the good work, Esther, and we know that you will be successful.
MAYBELLE WALLACE

3286 North Main Street, Fall River, Mass. Hockey, '25; W. A. A., '25-'26; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. Maybelle's greatest weakness is a desire for candy, but as a worthy member of W. A. A. she could satiate this appetite in the ten minute period immediately following lunch, only. Consequently she could be seen making a mad rush for the "dorm." after each lunch and dinner. You proved an excellent student and friend, Jackie, and we wish you the best luck in the world.

ADELAIDE LOUISE WHITMAN

73 Taunton Avenue, Norton, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Bowling, '26; Captain of Bowling, '26-'27. Although Billie looks quiet, you can see by the above activities that her life here, at school, has been a busy one. Her "school-girl complexion" is the kind that has been acquired by indulging in healthy exercise. Good luck to you, Adelaide, we know that you will be a credit to the school that produced you.

LYDIA SELINA YOUNG

674 King Philip Street, Fall River, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27; Basketball, '26-'27, Captain Class Team, '26; Hockey, '26; Bowling, '26; Scouts, '26-'27; Fall River-Bridgewater Club. Lyd is one of B. N. S.'s best all-round athletes. She is the only one in our class who has earned the W. A. A. and B. N. S. letters and she is now working hard for the pin. After she has completed her always carefully prepared lessons she indulges in her favorite pastime,—hiking. We all feel sure that your future as a school-teacher will be very successful, Lydia.
LUCY ZANOTTI

2 Jenness Street, Quincy, Mass. W. A. A., ’25-’26; Hockey, ’26; Tennis, ’26; Basketball, ’26-’27; Baseball, ’26; Class Editor, NORMAL OFFERING, ’26. Lou belongs to that well-known triumvirate which comes from Quincy. She is both an in-door and an out-of-door girl, as may be proved by her active membership of W. A. A., and by her success as a scholar. Wherever you go, you will carry with you our sincere wishes for a happy future, Lucy.

WHAT YOUR PEN MAY BE THINKING

Ho hum! Monday morning, time to go to school again. Here I go into the bag; my mistress always throws me in disgustedly. What a reward for faithful service! Well, I have nothing to do until the history lecture first period,—then I’ll be overworked. I never saw such a life. Nothing but work and no play! I’ll be worn out with writing, and drinking bad ink.

Test next period, I must be good. I ought to know the questions: I’ve written enough about them in class. But my mistress will push me into writing something wrong. For heaven’s sake! What is she grasping me so hard for? Ah! I know. The teacher has forgotten to give the assignment, and it’s time for the bell. I suppose everyone is afraid she’ll remember it.

What’s that I hear? Someone wants to borrow me for next period? I hate to go with that girl, for she always forgets to bring me home. And, do you know, she sticks me in her mouth. Such a disgusting habit. Some day I’m going to scratch her.

Lunch time. Here’s my mistress powdering her nose in front of the mirror before she even thinks of lunch. I wish she’d hurry up; this is the noon I hear all the week-end gossip. Oh, she went out with John Friday and Saturday nights. I wish he’d change his name. I’m sick of hearing it and writing to it.

Well, we’re going to Lit now, to pass in that paper I wrote last night. I like this class. It’s interesting, and I don’t usually have to work. Oh, dear! This chair arm isn’t a bit comfortable. Maybe if I fall off, my mistress will put me in her lap, and I can snuggle down for a good nap.

Why, where’s everybody gone? I guess I’ve been forgotten again. Well, here comes my mistress looking for me. She looks sad, too. I guess she really loves me, after all.

Helen M. Barry
KP I—History

Just a few short years ago thirteen trembling KP’s found their way to chapel and bashfully began their acquaintance as a class. Our number was further increased by three girls whom we were glad to welcome.

One of the first things we did was to hold a class meeting, and we made such a good choice of class representative, that we have never felt the need of a change.

Being such a small class we have constantly suffered the indignity, to state it conservatively, of being over-looked. We have steadfastly refused to accept this attitude and consequently not a week goes by that you do not see a group of KP’s striving for recognition somewhere. It may be in their studies, for their program is at best an uncertain affair and constantly in need of some change.

Our class has not neglected the athletic side of school life, although perhaps it is best to draw a sheltering veil over the results of our endeavors in that line.

The KP’s cannot complain that their three years have lacked variety, but finally, this spring, we find ourselves united once more, giving us one more pleasant memory to take into our new life.

Ruth Hamblin

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

I think that Bridgewater has an up-and-coming spirit. With few exceptions, the girls go into things with lots of enthusiasm. In athletics, for instance, crowds of girls play hockey or go on organized hikes, just because they love the competition and the joy of doing something. Above all, the girls here are good sports, whether they win or lose.

HARRIET ELVIRA BLISS

434 Broadway, North Attleboro, Mass. Girl Scouts, '24-'25; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25; W. A. A., '24-'27; Class President, '25-'26; Bowling, '25-'27; Student Council, '26-'27. Harry is one of the nicest girls in our class. She is one of the most popular, too, as shown by the fact that she was our class president. Harry reminds one of a doll, with her big, blue eyes; long, black lashes; and her straight, dark hair. Regardless of obstacles, she can always manage to have a good time, both in school and outside. She does not neglect her studies either, for she has kept her average high. We hope you will be always as successful and happy as you are now, Harriet.

CAROLYN LOUISE CARPENTER

225 Main Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27; Carol is a practical girl with a strong sense of humor,—the two best possible assets for a teacher to possess. When any crisis arrives she deals with it calmly and advises wisely. Carol has saved the day many times by showing us the funny side of the situation. She has always proved a true friend by her willingness to help. If you want to know whether or not Carol is going to be a success, just ask Miss Wells to tell you of the splendid work done by this KP at the Prospect kindergarten. Good luck, Carolyn.

MILDRED BAXTER CURTIS

415 Broad Street, Portsmouth, N. H. W. A. A., '24-'27; Garden Club, '25-'27; NORMAL OFFERING STAFF, '26; Open House Committee, '26. Rusty is the KP with the Titian hair—hence the name. She is the artist of the class and what we would have done without her is too terrible to contemplate. Rusty is also very original in both her thoughts and actions. Furthermore she deserves the title of the "wittiest in the class". Remember your KP classmates, Mildred, when you are enjoying the success we know awaits you.
ALICE LOUISE DOHERTY

270 Allen Street, New Bedford, Mass.  Glee Club, '26-'27.  Al is one of the quieter members of our class, but she is a good friend to all.  We did not realize when Al sang our kindergarten songs so blithely that she would soon be one of the honored members of the Glee Club.  New Bedford acts as a magnet, for her, and there is rarely a Friday afternoon but Alice is seen with her week-end case packed and in readiness for her happy return home.  Your classmates wish you the very best of good fortune always, Alice, and a school in your beloved home town next year.

OLIVE NYE FULLER

62 Botolph Street, Atlantic, Mass.  W. A. A., '24-'27; Student Council, '24-'27; NORMAL OFFERING STAFF, '25; Garden Club, '25-'27; Secretary of Garden Club, '26; Glee Club, '24-'27; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25.  To Dodo, our most popular classmate, we wish the best of luck and success.  For three years she has served us faithfully in that most difficult of offices, class representative.  During that time she has always kept the good will of the class and cheerfully taken the blame for their many escapades.  Is that not a record to be proud of?  Dodo, our loyal friend, is one of the reasons we hate to leave Normal School.  Good luck, Olive.

RUTH VIVIAN HAMBLIN

43 Niles Street, Abington, Mass.  W. A. A., '24-'27; Garden Club, '25-'27; Class Secretary-Treasurer, '25-'27; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25; Basketball, '24; Bowling, '26.  Rufus has been called the "sweetest" member of our class, but to this virtue should be added many more.  She is always ready when it comes to helping others.  As for KP sports, she is the one who has urged us on to have teams of our own.  Rufus had the honor, which few others can claim, of earning her W. A. A. pin her second year at school.  Her faithful work in the kindergarten is a proof that she will be a successful teacher.  The other twelve of us wish you good luck always, Ruth.
ALICE VAN GASKEN HARDING

Pine Island Road, Mattapoisett, Mass. W. A. A., '25-'27; Bowling, '25-'27; Baseball, '25. Enter our curly haired baby, Al. She is our happy-go-lucky member, with the host of admirers. We will wager the "kiddies" love her, too. However, we that know her best, know that there is a more serious side than all this to Al. She has her fun and plenty of it, but is always willing to lend a helping hand, and has never failed to do her part for the KP class. Our class would not have been complete without you, Alice, and we all wish you just the best of luck, always.

VERA MAE LAWSON

67 Mount Prospect Street, Bridgewater, Mass. W. A. A., '26-'27. Vera came from South Easton, but she felt the call of Normal School so much during our first year that she moved to Bridgewater. And weren't we glad to have her come, because when we go to visit her she has the loveliest impromptu parties! Vee is a good sport and a strong supporter of the class honor. She is very successful with the children, and they all, at some time, develop a "crush" on Miss Lawson. We are glad to have you as a friend, Vera, and wish you happiness and success, always.

ALICE LEMAIRE

719 Bay Street, Taunton, Mass. We don't see so much of Al as we wish we could, because she commutes to Taunton every day. Then again, Al makes trips up to the Brockton "Y" now and then, for a dip in the pool, and she finds it very refreshing after classes all day. Al is the dependable girl in our class, the one we are always sure will help us out. If you are as successful in teaching as you have been in your school work, Alice, and we know you will be, your life will be a happy one.
OLIVE GRACE MOULTON

21 West Weir Street, Taunton, Mass. Class President, '26-'27; NORMAL OFFERING STAFF, '27; Hockey, '24; Baseball, '25; W. A. A., '24-'27; Dramatic Club, '26-'27; Scouts, '24-'25; Garden Club, '25-'26. Here we have Polly, the most jovial member of the KP class. Though week-ends in Taunton have attractions for her, she considers school life loads of fun. Besides preparing her school work in a very admirable way, she finds time to be prominent in many of the outside activities of the school. Do not forget us, Olive, and remember we are always hoping for your success.

CHARLOTTE MAY RANDALL

Depot Street, South Easton, Mass. Charlie is the comparatively boisterous name that has been attached to our shy and demure Charlotte. Charlie is never loud, in speech or manner. She enjoys herself and gives pleasure to those around her in a quiet and unassuming way. She is always ready to lend a helping hand and no task seems too difficult for her to undertake. The class extends best wishes, Charlotte, for your happiness and success.

GEORGIA FRANCES WHITING

North Eastham, Mass. In our class composed of girls from far and near, Georgia is our member from charming Cape Cod. She is not the self-centered kind, but the moderate, patient sort, whose motto might be,—"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again". We know that by your never-ceasing effort and ambition, Georgia, you are going to reach the top of the ladder.
VIRGINIA ROSAMOND WILKINS

24 Wentworth Road, Melrose, Mass. W. A. A., '24-'27; Hockey, '24; Bowling, '25; Glee Club, '25-'27; See that tall, slender girl, standing at the window, oblivious of us mortals? She is our Jinny. Perhaps she is fascinated by the glory of the sunset, or the first signs of spring,—for Jinny is fond of nature and the out-of-doors. Her love of nature has led her to hike until she knows every nook and cranny of Great Hill and all the lesser hills in Bridgewater. If one is in need of sympathy, assistance or advice, Jinny is the one to consult. May you find success and good-will wherever you go, Virginia, because you deserve it.

GOD SPEAKS (A CHANT)

It cowers, dust-ridden, repulsive! What can there be of beauty in this shaggy thing called man?
I had born within me at the first glow of the new star that primal beauty, sorrow. Because I was not aware of its birth, I felt no pain. I had sought joy in beauty—I found sorrow.
In the dim years I had believed Life might be lived well, nor has my trust been lessened in the darkness of the new evil that wipes out the old good—yet has no new good for its place.
In my darkness I did not idly wait for light to come. I sought to find a pathway through it. I still seek.
In my belief I have given all. The partial power that earth would give I spurned. There must be more to gain.
Each year I see new men come forth and to each one I whisper, "What matter, O my brother, if you die? Your son must live." But neither hear and both condemn me.
Because, once, in an absent mood. I was aware of a sweet strain I never heard again yet always listen for—my ears have long been deafened to the streets, to the laughter in the halls, the petulance of the urchin, the harshness of the more unfortunate, or less—(which would you?).
My nights have been made days, to join day and day, for mankind.
Always before me has been Something—Something—to which I lifted my eyes, if, perchance, in the march they lost the way.
I am inexorable, pitiless, all-sacrificing.
I am eternal, the worst, the best.
I am God—or, am I Man?

Beatrice Cooke B1
It was certainly a changed scene that appeared before us when we arrived at Bridge-water, September 15, 1926, to begin our second year at B. N. S. The ugly ruins from the old school building and dormitories had been carried away and there, before our delighted eyes, stood two new and beautiful edifices, the splendidly equipped Training School, and our beloved school building.

The year brought our class two new members from North Adams Normal School, which now makes us seventeen strong.

From the beginning we have been divided, part of the class being in Training School, while the rest attended regular classes. Nevertheless we found the opportunity to elect our class officers, which are as follows:—Helen Ayers, president; Betty Clark, Vice-president; and Elizabeth Brown, secretary-treasurer.

KP III—History

Twenty strong, we, the largest KP3 class to be enrolled, entered Bridgewater Normal School. I say “twenty”, but to be absolutely truthful, there were sixteen KP’s and four juniors. Then one girl was forced to leave because of illness, which left nineteen.

We have made ourselves known in various activities. We wanted hockey, but alas, our number were too few. Consequently, those who wished to, joined a Junior team, and distinguished themselves,—as KP’s always do.

One morning we were all sorry to lose a few minutes of psychology while an election was held, after which we had a class representative—Mary Gorman.

We hope to keep on, as we have begun, making ourselves one of the best classes the school has ever known.

History

Class C has done it! Done what? Why, proved that the adage "United we stand; divided we fall" is partly wrong. How? Why easily. All this year some division of Class C has been out training, yet see what Class C has done for itself!

In September, C1 did not return to Normal, but started trying its powers, personality, and what not on the lucky pupils of various schools, and enjoyed the work thoroughly.

Meanwhile the rest of the class was busy. It plunged into geography, composition, and literature. It made maps of all countries and spent hours on reference work and lectures. But even this deluge of work could not stop them. Class C developed a hockey team that almost won the championship.

Class C1 returned at the beginning of the second term. Again the daily grind began, sprinkled with enough free periods to make life interesting and prevent anyone’s envying C2 out training. The sport of the season,—basketball, called many. The Head of Basketball was a C, and furthermore, the championship of Baseball was won by the C team. It was not surprising that the C's were the principal participants at the Basketball Spread.

As for the last semester of the school year,—we were left without C3. In spite of this, C1 and C2 managed to live up to the high scholastic standing of the class, rounding out a year of happiness and success.

History

"Come, choose your road, and, away, my lad", so said a spirit to us as we left for Bridgewater Normal School early in September. Some of us had heard the call, and thinking that our road was in the teaching profession we went away.

Many of us were rather bewildered at the vast extent of our future home. There were vast unknown areas of books crammed full of knowledge to be applied to our benumbed brains.

The first week brought nothing but longing for home and a faint pang of regret at leaving high school.

The second week left us with an idea of what the following days were to bring! biology, physiography, drawing,—study, more study, and still more.

Clubs and social activities as well as class work eased our pangs of home-sickness. There were the Scouts, W. A. A., TC, Dramatic Club, and Glee Clubs to join.

After three terms of Normal School life we have come to the conclusion that Bridgewater is a great place.

We are anxiously awaiting the time when the C's will move to new territory so that we may assume their dignity.

History

We shall never forget our first day at Bridgewater Normal School! How to distinguish one building from another was the first problem that confronted us, and it was a difficult one you may be sure. Then we had the horrible task of trying to puzzle out our programs, and after a few unsuccessful attempts succeeded. After a few weeks, however, all of our problems gradually worked themselves out, and we settled ourselves for a year of work.

The three Junior classes have participated in all of the sports of the school. In hockey Junior 3 defeated the two other Junior classes, but in turn was defeated by the D class in the final game. Junior 2 was successful in basketball, winning all but two games. The joy of playing the game has in all cases compensated for any defeats with which we met.

Our debut in chapel will never be forgotten, by either the terrified participants or the amused audience. The subject of the performance was the teaching of a rote song, and all who saw it professed a liking for the work of the actresses. However, our histrionic ability is a well-known fact about the school because of our dramatization, in the reading classes, of Hiawatha. Every day for quite some time we could be seen about the school building and campus burdened with Indian blankets and other paraphernalia of a similar nature. As an absolute fact, we became weary from answering the eternal question asked by the upper classmen, "Are you dramatizing Hiawatha?"

We have been very happy as Juniors but we are looking forward to a year of joyous fulfilment of ideals as Seniors.

Woodward Hall

House President . . . . . . . . ELEANOR FARRELL
House Vice-President . . . . . . . NATALIE TURNER
Secretary-Treasurer . . . . . . . WINIFRED BOOTH

Life at Woodward begins, for the newcomers at least, in a sight-seeing tour. After walking the empty corridors and peering into room after room originally decorated with one (1) bureau, one (1) bookcase, one (1) “shindig”, one (1) table, two (2) or three (3) beds and the same number of chairs, the entering people choose those which they most admire and settle down as best they can in the restricted area of dormitory life.

Days and weeks pass. And out of a group of girls whose interests are widely divergent, there gradually emerges a homogeneous aggregation whose common purpose is the pursuit of happiness, and incidentally, knowledge.

As the dormitory enjoys the squad system, introduced last year, few house meetings are called. For those assemblies the three squads unlucky enough to have drawn the bad penny, or whatever it is they do draw, put on a performance generally greeted with great hilarity.

On one occasion we were allowed to see ourselves as others see us, the occupants of a Rubberneck wagon. “Pike’s Peak or Bust” was the luring slogan on the vehicle. Revolving umbrellas served as wheels. Noises usually associated with the bursting of toy balloons and the collapsing of the left rear “wheel” gave the semblance of a puncture. The raucous voices were next raised in protest against the sudden lack of gas, replenished by the imaginary contents of a can labelled Enthusiasm.

On another occasion we gazed with true small-town amazement at “Wild Nell of the Prairie” a good old “mellerdrammer”. To be sure scenery, horses, canoes were mostly in our mind’s eye (see Mr. Hunt), but the characters played with great feeling the different parts: Lady Vere de Vere (gentlemen still prefer blondes); Handsome Harry (the boyish bob has its uses); Sitting Bull, his squaw, and Chief Stick-in-the-Mud, the deep dark villains; and Wild Nell, the real bad-land cut-up who went west with a silver paper cutter in her heart. The prize winning performance, though not intended as such, was a fire drill staged, in vulgar parlance, at 11.00 P. M. At the end of three deafening minutes, girls struggled down stairways with blurred eyes and impolite yawns while the gong kept up its infernal clamor. One girl opened wide her windows, left her room in darkness and her door shut in exact reversal of the rules of a fire drill. Perhaps they all believe in keeping the home fires burning at any cost.

Winifred Booth

Normal Hall

President . . . . . . . . CONSTANCE KEEGAN
Vice-President . . . . . . . . MARY BAIR
Secretary-Treasurer . . . . . . . ANNA REYNOLDS

Although we are a rather small family here in Normal Hall, we have managed to enjoy, among ourselves, many happy events which we try to chronicle.

As is customary every year, Normal and Woodward Hall competed in the Inter-Dorm Sing held late in the month of May, 1926. Everyone remembers that starry night with the flaring torches—the night Normal Hall won the banner, to keep it another year within her walls.

\{ 103 \}
In November of 1926, the annual reception given in honor of Mrs. Boyden, wife of Principal Boyden, was held in Normal Reception room, after which "open house" was held until dinner time.

Normal Hall next held an eerie, old-fashioned Hallowe'en party, and then a few weeks later a Christmas party. Of course we had a Christmas tree, and even Santa Claus came. We will never forget the looks of astonishment on some faces when Santa refused to give a certain girl her present because she could not tell him of two good things she had done this year. Again another thoroughly good party ended with refreshments—cookies, ice cream, nuts and candy.

Space demands that we say no more of the fun and the activities, with their ever increasing feeling of good fellowship which is manifest in the social life of our dormitory.

"To Normal Hall we pledge ourselves, our love, our steadfast loyalty."

Anna Reynolds

All of us who have had the opportunity of living in Gates House are very fortunate. We have enjoyed every minute since that Sunday in September when Miss Hall, our "house-mother," welcomed us back. This year there were eighteen girls living in Gates House.

At our first house meeting, our president, Ruth Swift, explained the privileges and duties that befell us as residents. Most of the duties were agreeable ones, and all of the privileges were pleasant.

The end of the first term brought a few changes. We were very sorry to lose Elizabeth Hathaway through illness.

Besides the girls in the house we have such a family of dolls and animals! Romeo, Munty, Tommy Lad and Ikey, are characters whose fortunes concern us greatly. No one will ever forget our delightful Christmas party, either.

There has been a real atmosphere of home in Gates House, all the year, and we know that those who make their home here after us will grow to love it as we do.

HALL OF FAME

(A special report to the Normal Offering, 2050 A. D.)

It is with great pleasure that your reporter presents to you the following article covering the Hall of Fame. That the readers of this magazine may follow the subject more intelligently, it may be well to speak of its location and inhabitants.

The Hall is located on an obscure star about fifty miles due south of Mars, and is named after Russell Marshall, the famous explorer, who made his first stop there during his famous trans-universal flight back in 1950, just a century ago. He took with him, if you will pardon our editorial pride, our present editor's great grandfather, Joe Condon.

Father Time graciously received your reporter and appointed as his chief guide Bob Kiley. Mr. Kiley was engaged in reading a ponderous volume of the latest ideas in electrocuting atoms and naturally rather resented Father Time's interruption. He led us to a room with many little projections, which formed "browsing corners." There were many people arguing, chatting, or joking in each corner. Here Mr. Kiley utterly abandoned his charge and resumed his study.

Your reporter then approached a person in whom all citizens of Bridgewater feel an interest: the one-time principal of our present school, Mr. Arthur C. Boyden. Mr. Boyden introduced us to the gentleman in a toga with whom he had been speaking. It was Phidias, reputed architect of the Parthenon.

Just at that moment a loud babble arose at a far end of the Hall and we immediately rushed to see what was happening. Grouped about Chopin's piano were several famous musicians, among whom were Dvorak, Mendelsohn, Beethoven and Marcella Smith; and with them were a number of noted psychologists, most prominent of whom were Judd, Thorndike and Mr. Hunt, a former instructor in our school. In answer to our inquiries we learned that Mr. Hunt had just finished a recital of twentieth century jazz. When the audience departed Mr. Hunt smilingly opened the interview.
1927 NORMAL OFFERING

"Dr. Thorndike did it," he said. "After a countless number of treatments my musical synapses responded and my natural music capacity was allowed to develop." "But," he sighed, "I have failed to respond to treatment for memory lapses as applied by Kilpatrick and Kay Tobin, two of our best psychologists. Not to this day can I recall the number of my car back in 1926."

At this moment Elwin Kerr approached. At the sight of him, your reporter remembered the financial muddle of the accounts of the present school store and so asked Bunny for his advice.

"Go back to my policy," said Mr. Kerr, "cash and nothing but."

He was going to elaborate, but just then we saw Eleanor Farrell, the wonder-sculptress of late fame, and immediately asked her for an interview.

"I got my start in plastercine, at Bridgewater Normal," said Miss Farrell, "but the real thing was the bust of Miss Roth. For fifty years the world did not recognize it, but at last her fifteenth cousin bought it from my brother’s heirs and presented it to the history department of Bridgewater Normal School.

Space does not permit the giving of more detailed accounts of further interviews with the great, but a partial list of those who granted your reporter’s request for a few statements are as follows:

Mr. Durgin—author of "New Math. Made Easy for Genius."

Hannah Bowden—who established a new gym. system, neither formal or informal.

Marie Hayes—who, as editor, ran "College Humor" on a paying basis.

Dick Jason—who passed the law requiring all teachers to be able to do deep-knee bending without falling over.

Agnes Morey—who so well impersonated Miss Burnell that she ran the Training School for a whole day.

(Editor’s Note: The reporter forgot to say that nearly all the class of 1927, of B. N. S., are either in the Hall of Fame or are on the waiting list.)

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

To a freshman, the spirit of Bridgewater is even more vivid than to upper-classmen who are so well acquainted that they don’t stop to analyze their feeling. On my first trip to Bridgewater, I noticed the spirit of eagerness. The manner in which classmates greeted each other impressed me. My first impression was that they thought more of good times than they did of their studies; but after knowing them better, I found this was not true. More displayed than at the high school, is a spirit of helpful cooperation. The students are not afraid to share with each other.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

President: DOROTHY CROSBY
Vice-President: MARCELLA SMITH
Secretary: HELEN AVERY
Treasurer: EVANGELINE COURTNEY

The object of the Student Government Association is to regulate all those matters that pertain to the student life of this school, which do not come under the direct jurisdiction of the faculty; to further in every way the spirit of unity, co-operation, and altruism; and to be a medium by which the social and ethical standards of the school can be made and kept high.

The two branches of this association are the Dormitory Council and the Student Council. The Dormitory Council is that branch of the Student Government Association which regulates the problems of dormitory life. It consists of the four officers of the association together with the president, vice-president, junior representative and head proctors of each dormitory.

A few weeks after school opened last September, our president, Josephine Giberti, called a meeting of the day students and divided them into groups, according to their towns or cities. Two councillors were elected from each group, who met with Miss Giberti every two weeks and discussed day student affairs.

With the opening of the athletic season, the day students began to show their mettle. Some were to be found on practically every championship team.

At the beginning of the year the day students' room was a drab affair. Although spacious and comfortable, it lacked the cheery and hospitable appearance that color always lends to a room. With the assistance of the Art Department, gay curtains were hung in the windows, making an attractive and inviting place in which to study and rest.

On January 24, 1927, the Day Student Social was held in the gymnasium. Everyone co-operated and made this party a great success both socially and financially.

These are just a few illustrations of the spirit manifested by the day students of this school. We are all trying to do our part to make the school justly proud of us.

To future day students we extend the wish that you will be as happy and successful as we have been.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Secretary  . . . . . . . . . . GRACE FORREST
The Social Activities Committee had a very successful year. The members have endeavored to keep this year's standard of social life as high as in past years.

The first event was the acquaintance social, an affair which affords opportunity for old and new students to become acquainted and to start the formation of friendship bonds with which our school life is filled. Later, one of the most delightful affairs was the reception and tea for Mrs. Boyden. These events were followed by Wednesday evening socials, by Friday evening socials given by various clubs and classes of the school, and by basketball games on Saturday nights.

Our new auditorium has given us the opportunity to have interesting lectures and entertainments.

The Social Activities Committee thanks the members of the student body for their cooperation, and extends its best wishes to next year's members.

The Dramatic Club of 1926-'27 has been especially fortunate, for to us was given the honor of presenting the first play on the new stage of the Horace Mann Auditorium.

We chose for our fall play Madaliene Lucette Riley’s “Mice and Men” and set earnestly to work on it. It was with keen disappointment that we received the news that the stage would not be properly equipped for a performance before the first of the year. All rehearsals were postponed.

In the meanwhile, in order to keep busy, we gave a social in the gymnasium Friday, December 17, 1926. After Christmas, rehearsals were once more started for “Mice and Men” and continued without any further delay.

The play was given Friday, February 11, 1927 before the largest and most enthusiastic audience that it has ever been the privilege of the club to play before.

The spring play was Shakespere’s “Much Ado About Nothing”, which closed the activities of the club for this year.

Miss Adelaide Moffitt, our Directress, has brought us through a red letter year when those of us who know her and love her best, realize that what she did for us this year, she did in spite of added personal worry; and we appreciate her unselfishness.

À l’assemblée, le 11 janvier, on présenta une séance typique et des fables dramatisées.

Dans l’école, la fin de l’année apporte les adieux inévitables et un peu de tristesse. On peut s’y attendre. Mais les membres de cercle français auront toujours des souvenirs inspirants d’une année profitable “bien qu’ils soient loin d’ici.”

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

Bridgewater Normal School is said to have an outstanding characteristic called “Bridge- water Spirit.” Just what it is, is not yet fully clear to my mind, but I can say the following: The impression one gets in assembly is the spirit of unity—the school working together with such ease that it seems like one individual. The effect is so great that the spirit of unity spreads among the graduates.

The Members of the Library Club of 1926 and 1927 have had a most enjoyable year together. Our year started with the initiation of twelve faithful and hard-working girls.

At the beginning of the year it was decided that a definite standard for reading would be decided upon. Two lists from which we were to read were chosen, namely, the state list and twenty books from a list of modern fiction. Furthermore, the Library Club has under its special supervision, the "Browsing Corner" or the "Cora A. Newton Collection" in the library, which was started through the efforts of its graduate members. The Club was also instrumental in having Mildred Bass Anderton present the play entitled "Cousin Kate" on the evening of December 10, 1926, in the Horace Mann Auditorium. Then, too, the Library Club presented two programs in chapel.

On the night of November 4, 1926, the club was informally entertained by Miss Carter, Miss Hill, and Miss Rogers. These are a few of the happenings that made it a happy year for us.

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

The spirit of cooperation is exceedingly strong here. With the Student Government over all, and the different divisions of the students working with it, an easy, happy, yet business-like attitude prevails. It is noticeable that the officers are only too glad to accept any suggestions and criticisms.

T. C. proved to be such a popular club this year that we were forced to have a long waiting list. Our initiation made a very appropriate beginning for a successful year.

A most enjoyable Valentine Social was held on February 4, 1927. For this occasion, the gymnasium was attractively decorated with cupids, hearts and potted plants.

We are now working on the plans for the plantings around our new buildings. We have been enjoying this form of activity, very much. The club has also been instrumental in presenting exercises in chapel. We presented a debate, the subject of which was, “Should the trees in the Bridgewater Common be cut down and new ones planted?” The affirmative won.

Altogether T. C. has had a very successful year.

LITTLE RED MARKS

Is there anything that can make so great an impression on one’s mind, so upset the serenity of any earnest student, as little red marks? Just after a hearty lunch, when everyone is happy, and everything is right with the world, for instance. Absolutely nothing could disturb our peaceful contented bliss. True is the old saying, “Ignorance is bliss”. But woe be to the blissful ignoramus who suddenly awakes to the realization that before him is a perfectly neat, attractive, in fact, rather important looking document which he very well remembers compiling himself. This happened to me.

Mine was no piece of work to be scoffed at: nearly a whole evening I spent on it. An editor wouldn’t turn that article down, if he knew his business. The very way my name is signed is an art. Here! What are these peculiar red marks on the margin? A small “p” at the beginning of nearly every line. My paper is ruined.

What mean these red atrocities? I will ask the author of them. I do this . . . . Slowly, sorrowfully, solemnly, sadly, with faltering, dragging steps, I return to my chair.

The teacher is saying, “Don’t be discouraged if your first paper is not a success.”

Oh, no! We are not discouraged. We cannot feel. Even the deep sarcasm of that remark leaves us unscathed. We must all die sometime, some quickly, some lingeringly! No, I am not discouraged: but how I wish the Dean would let us go to the movies tonight.

GLEE CLUB

-124-
The Glee Club was fortunate in discovering much musical ability among the incoming students, a number of whom were soon incorporated into our ranks with an appropriate reception.

Our intensive work began when we were honored with an invitation to sing at the dedicatory exercises of the new school building.

A series of three fine concerts in Brockton, also one by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Plymouth Memorial Hall were attended by the Glee Club. In accordance with established custom, members of the Glee Club sang carols at the Christmas dinner, and also led the student body in serenading our principal, Mr. Boyden.

With the commencement of daily chapel exercises, a choir composed of twenty, with alternating substitutes, was formed from the Glee Club to lead in singing.

The annual concert offered a pleasing entertainment.

Musical numbers rendered at Baccalaureate and for Graduation Day exercises, completed the activities of the Glee Club, whose success, in large measure, we attribute to the untiring efforts of our director, Miss Rand.

Dorothy Mitchell

The girls attending Bridgewater Normal School usually enter it with the feeling that they are here in earnest preparation for their life career. In many other schools, the students have no definite goal in view, and so their interests have time to wander in various directions.

Mollie Oliker

Did you ever see, hear of, or feel the “Spirit of Bridgewater”? Of course you must have, because it is always appearing here and there in all places and on all occasions. The spirit is the spirit of Loyalty. The interest of every pupil here is centered upon his school. The school comes first. The pupils support it, and are loyal to it in every way.

This year has been a busy and successful one for the Girl Scout troop. At our regular Thursday evening meetings we made plans for many interesting things, among them being—a trip to the Brockton Fair, arrangements for the always popular Scout Dance, and two sandwich sales. All projects proved enjoyable and profitable. In addition to this the troop devoted one meeting, before Christmas, to the addressing of envelopes for the Anti-Tuberculosis League. Furthermore, the scouts took charge of one morning’s chapel exercises.

These and other events of the past year show that the scout movement is becoming an increasingly important factor in the school.

ON COFFEE FRAPS

Coffee Fraps are my favorite form of refreshment. I always order them when I have the chance, and when someone else is ordering, a Coffee Frap always appears before me, which shows that my friends know my taste.

In the first place, I love to watch a Coffee Frap being made,—first the round scoop full of ice cream—then the milk and syrup, that slides down the inside of the tall glass, and lands with a soft plop on the ice cream. These are just the essential preliminaries: the main point of interest to me is the little machine that so thoroughly mixes the ice cream and liquid. It starts off with a whirr and a gurgle. It is hard work to get through the ice cream, but after that it is plain sailing. I grow so impatient waiting for the process to be over that I wonder if the man has forgotten that my precious Coffee Frap is being churned. But finally he takes it off, and pours the foaming mass into my waiting glass. My mouth begins to water, and almost too hurriedly I reach for the straws. Invariably they are way down at the farther end of the soda fountain. I secure one, plunge it into the Frap, and take one long draught. How the cold, delicious liquid refreshes my throat! To my mind, it is second to none. Of course the number of calories is not small: but somehow I can always find a reason to sacrifice a few extra pounds for my favorite drink.

The program first presented in chapel by W. A. A. consisted of a splendid talk on the organization's principles and activities by its president, Frances Baldwin. Part of the talk is as follows:
There are two sides to any organization: the ideal, or that which the members hope to see it eventually, and the practical, or that which others see it now. A good many of you who are here, are members and know just what the Women’s Athletic Association stands for. Perhaps those who are not members have an idea of it from what you have seen of its activities. Yet our activities are only the means through which we work to attain the standards set by members of W. A. A.

Our purpose as expressed in our Constitution, is to promote a high physical efficiency in every girl, and to give every girl the opportunity of learning and enjoying our sports and recreations, always keeping in mind, however, while we enjoy our games for the pleasure we get from them, yet we should work for something more than pleasure.

There are four things that a girl must have before she is considered worthy of being allowed to wear the final award of W. A. A., the wearing of which proves that she may rightly be considered a type of the ideal W. A. A. member. These four things are,—Service, Sportsmanship, Scholarship, and Stability,—called the four S’s.
It is easier to say that we must have these qualities than it is to attain them, for they are not acquired by working steadily for an hour, or a week, or a term. We cannot play the game for an hour and then say, "Now I've such and such an amount of Sportsmanship," nor can we say after working on a committee, "That's so much more toward my being of service." These four qualities are gained little by little, unconsciously. A girl, knowing the standards set by W. A. A. sets her own standards and in all her work endeavors to live up to them. W. A. A. offers her the activities in which these qualities are more easily seen.

These are some of the things that every member of W. A. A. is working for—through all her sports and activities, every minute of the time from the day she joins until she graduates. By that time, if she has really attained the standards of W. A. A., she has made the practical side measure up to the ideal side, always working so that W. A. A. will be doing bigger and better things, and using her own sportsmanship, scholarship, and stability for serving in bigger and better ways, making real the pledge she took on becoming a member: "I pledge allegiance to my health and to the strength for which it stands; strength of body, mind and spirit, the three in one for service to God, country, and humanity.

Many activities have been carried on this year. Class B emerged as champions from an especially successful hockey season. The class basketball champion was Class C. The fast Red and White game proved a victory for the White team, as it did last year. Bowling attracted more girls than ever before, during the winter. The baseball diamonds were centers of activity in the spring months, while tennis had its place in the spring as well as the fall. Health and hikes were ever present during the year. One forward step taken by W. A. A. was the sending of a delegate to Cornell to attend the National Athletic Conference of American College Women. It is expected that many helpful suggestions as to the solution of problems met during the year will be a result of representative attendance at this conference.

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

I've felt it, we've all felt it: but what is it? I think it is the striving of everyone for high ideals. The school itself stands for high ideals, and all its pupils do, too. Each one is looking toward the future, and there is a certain eagerness about each to be able to come up to his own ideal and that of the school. We are all proud to say, "I go to Bridgewater." The spirit of Bridgewater must be the spirit of idealism.

BASEBALL SEASON 1926

Officers: Manager, Carl H. Porter-Shirley; Captain, Robert Hiatt.

The Team: Catchers, John Murphy and Thomas Gilmore; Pitchers, Robert Hiatt, Robert Osborn, and Frederick Doll; First Base, Albert Murphy; Second Base, Albert Reilley; Third Base, Leo Healy; Shortstops, Michael Lankalis and Elwood Denham; Rightfield, Lawrence Campbell; Centerfield, Arthur McCarthy; Leftfield, Gerald O'Donnell.

The Schedule: Cushing Academy, lost, 5-0; Dean Academy, lost, 12-4; Northeastern University, lost, 16-10; New Bedford Textile, won, 2-3; Huntington School, lost, 7-4; Fitchburg Normal School, won, 6-7; Burdett College (home game), lost, 6-2; Brockton High School, won, 6-8; Moses' Brown, won, 2-7.

The first few games were defeats but most of the remaining ones were worthy victories. New Bedford Textile was a most exciting home game and its victory gave the teams great encouragement. A few weeks later they defeated their keenest rival, Fitchburg Normal School. The season ended with a victory at Moses Brown and the old adage "a poor beginning, a good ending," was applicable.

TENNIS SEASON 1926

Officers: Manager, Albert Murphy; Captain, Carl Porter-Shirley.

The Team: Carl Porter-Shirley, Robert Kiley, Robert Osborn, Albert Murphy and Albert Reilly.

The Schedule: Thayer Academy at Bridgewater, lost, 2-1; New Bedford Textile at Bridgewater, lost, 3-0; and Fitchburg Normal at Fitchburg, won, 1-2.

The schedule was not a long one and there was only one victory; yet that victory gave Bridgewater the Normal Championship of the state, since Fitchburg had previously defeated Salem.

SOCCER SEASON 1926

Officers: Manager, Percy Churchill; Captain, Robert Newbury.

The Schedule: Northeastern University, tie, 1-1; Amherst College, lost, 9-0; Middleboro A. C., tie, 0-0; Harvard College, tie 2-2; Brown University, lost, 3-0; Tabor Academy, (home game) won, 2-8; Middleboro A. C., (home game) won 0-2; Bristol Agricultural School (home game) won, 0-2; Tabor Academy, lost, 3-2.
With one exception the opening games resulted in neither victories nor defeats. The remaining ones were mostly victories and determined for the team a successful season.

Basketball Season 1926-1927

Officers: Manager, Elwin Kerr: Captain, Robert Kiley.

Points from goals; Kiley, 128: Shaw, 98: Reilly, 58: Lankalis, 35: Tanner, 18: Porter-Shirley, 11: Mantyla, 3: Graves, 3: O'Connell, 2: Hill, 1. New Bedford Textile and the last six games, with the exception of Salem Normal, were home games.
The first few games of the season were not so encouraging, but the team kept on going, and they came out highly victorious in the end, winning the last six consecutive games. Thus a majority of the games played were in favor of Normal.

The Athletic activities have been well managed and coached and their results have been very gratifying. Many men have earned letters in one or more sports. They are as follows; Baseball; Hiatt, Porter-Shirley, Osborn, John Murphy, Albert Murphy, Reilley, McCarthy, O’Donnell, Healy, Lankalis, Denham, Campbell, and Doll. Soccer; Newbury, Tanner, Altier, Belcher, Porter-Shirley, Churchill, Shaw, Hill, Jennes, Genaitis, Purdon, Webb and Longmore. Tennis; Kiley, Porter-Shirley, Osborn and Murphy. Basketball; Kiley, Porter-Shirley, Lankalis, Kerr, Reilley, Hill, Mantyla, O’Connell, and Shaw. Carl H. Porter-Shirley deserves honorable mention as being the only man in the history of the Normal School ever to receive letters in five different athletic activities. He earned four during the last year and one in football two years ago.

The Normal Athletic Association has had a very prosperous year. The Annual Dance in February was a decided success both financially and socially, and we wish to extend our appreciation to all who helped to make it so. We are especially indebted to Dean John Kelly and Mr. Frank Crozier, Director of Physical Education, who have ever been ready and willing to help us in every possible way.

THE SPIRIT OF BRIDGEWATER

The many ways in which the entering classes are treated as the equals of the upper classes are shown in sports and other amusements. All are called upon to help. The freshmen get the feeling of independence, and the ability to carry on things themselves,—to show what they are made of.

The students are made to feel that they are wanted. None is left out. In some schools only a certain number carry on everything. The others are on-lookers. This does not create interest, for the on-lookers are not going to support things from the outside: they want to have something to do with the inner parts of a project. In many schools where the cry is “We have no support for our activities,” if the other side of the thing could be considered, the condition could be remedied, and a proper spirit of equality could be aroused.

School Days in England

"Schooldays, schooldays, dear old golden rule days,
Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic
Taught to the tune of the hickory stick."

Though the last line applies but figuratively to most American grammar schools, it is taken literally in English elementary schools. Not to the extent pictured in Dickens' works is the cane used, but often enough to leave a lasting impression. However, since I do not wish you to feel that the schoolmaster always has the cane ready I had better tell more about the English schools.

My first introduction to school life took place in Nelson, a small town of Lancashire, in the northwestern part of England. There were two kinds of schools there, "Board" corresponding to American public, and "R. C." or parochial. Children might enter school when they were three years old and were compelled to go at the age of five.

The first class was known as the Babies' Class, and, with the following "Second Class" and "First Class", formed the kindergarten department. Here we were taught to read and write. We learned our A' B' C's by chanting.

"There was an old woman who lived in a shoe
She had so many children she didn't know what to do.
There was Annie A and Bobbie B,
Fat and chubby Charlie C,
Dolly D and Elsie E
Fannie F and Gertie G."

and so on through the whole alphabet. We learned to count by wooden beads strung on wires in a little wooden frame, and we formed letters in sand placed on our desks. Even in these low grades the cane was freely used.

Standard I was the next class we entered. Here we were taught reading, writing, arithmetic, history, English, singing (by rote) and sewing. We were quite advanced in the latter art and progressed far enough to make petticoats with the skirts pleated into the bodice.

Standard II and III were in the same room. We continued the same subjects as in Standard I and added geography to our list. The learning of poetry was stressed and each pupil memorized several poems. Tennyson's "Passing of Arthur" was assigned in parts so that by rising one after the other we could recite the whole poem. In this grade also we learned to knit tam o'shanter and make paper patterns. We waded through long division and were introduced to the metric system of weights and measures. Arithmetic in England is more complicated than in the United States. Here it is easy to work in dollars and cents, far easier than to reckon twelve pence to a shilling, twenty shillings to a pound, twenty-one shillings to a guinea, and to cope with threepenny bits, sixpences, shillings, florins, half crowns, crowns, half-sovereigns, half-guineas, sovereigns and guineas in determining what coins a shopman would give in change. Of course the task was rendered easier than it sounds by our daily use of the money.

To enter Standard IV we had to transfer to another school. Here we were taught history, geography, arithmetic, science, English, singing, and sewing. Our science was chiefly experimental, and we learned to make wood stain, furniture polish, shoe polish and soft soap.
One day we each brought a pair of shoes to school and had a shoe shining contest. The winner received a penny. Here I might describe our usual school dress. The girls wore "frocks" usually of dark material, and over these, light pinafores or "pinnies". The boys wore short trousers something like the soccer pants at the knee and held up by braces. On top they wore "jerseys" or waistcoats and coats and round white celluloid collars which had to be washed frequently. Both wore woolen stockings, in the majority of cases not reaching up to the knee, and clogs. These latter had leather tops and wooden soles with irons something like horseshoes on soles and heels. Brass toe plates and fastenings completed them. You may shudder at the idea of wearing them, but I assure you they were both warm and comfortable. Shoes were worn only on Sundays and holidays.

Vacations are always important in school life, so I must not neglect them. We had two weeks vacation at Christmas and Easter, a week at "The Feast", or Whitsuntide, and one month, July, in the summer. Then we also had occasional days, "Empire Day", the king's birthday and examination days. We did not have regular examinations as we do here, but at regular intervals we would dress in our "Sunday best" and prepare for a visit from the inspector. Upon his arrival the girls would curtsey and the boys pull their forelocks at the same time wishing him "Good morning". He would then proceed to ask various questions which we would answer to the best of our ability. If we were successful we received half-holiday, but if we failed to reflect credit on our teachers the cane was retrieved from its hiding place, where it reposed during his visit, and we spent the day in study. And now I am back again to Standard IV.

English was stressed more than any other subject. We memorized Tennyson's "Lady of Shallott", Byron's "The Eve of Waterloo", "Hamlet's Soliloquy" and "Wolsey's Farewell". We also started to read more serious books. The only one I remember is "Children of the New Forest."

In sewing class we were taught to darn stockings and mend other articles of clothing. Once a week during school hours we went to the baths and were taught how to swim and dive, while after school we had the opportunity to learn how to play tennis. Our history stopped in this standard.

At this time also we had "copybooks". They contained lines of proverbs and quotations. Under each written line were two or three empty lines which we filled with imitations of the first line. We did much work in transcribing and changing poetry to prose. We also wrote many compositions.

In Standards V, VI and VII, which were highest, we continued along the same lines. When we finished Standard VII, if we had enough money, we went on to higher schools, but the greater majority went to work.

A few differences that I have neglected to mention are the use of slates instead of paper throughout the grades, the absence of examinations, and the fact that we never knew our marks and no report cards were given out.

To compare grades let me state that when a pupil transfers from an English school to an American he is usually placed one grade higher and in one case I heard of, the child went from Standard V to Grade VIII and graduated in due course.

Though English elementary schools may outrank American, the fact remains that English children have not the same opportunity for higher education that children in America have.

School in Scotland

I have been asked to write about school in Scotland, but, to tell the truth, I know very little about it, and even that little is fragmentary and hazy, for I was torn from my native heath (that word heath is put in merely for effect; Gourock is a comfortable little town with properly paved streets and substantial stone houses)—where had I got to? oh yes—at the tender age of nine. Here we are describing Gourock when we ought to be deep in the educational system of Scotland.

I was introduced to the above mentioned system at the age of five in a suburb of Glasgow. The school building was of stone (practically everything in Scotland is built of stone), surrounded by a high iron fence. The first class I was placed in was taught by the headmistress, who is head of all the women teachers in a school; the headmaster is head over the whole school—the principal, in other words. I do not remember whether there are two or three of these early classes, nor do I remember their exact names, but they are designated the threepenny class or the sixpenny class, depending on the cost of the reading book used. Be it noted now that books and all other school supplies are bought by the pupils.

School began at nine and ended at three for us, but not until four for the older pupils. The girls’ playground was separated from the boys’ by a high stone wall. In the girls’ playground was a long shed with one side open; here we played in wet weather. Probably there was a similar shed in the boys’ yard, but I never saw over the wall. The very little boys played in the girls’ yard because the big boys were too rough. At recess-time one of the teachers played the piano in the school hall, when any girl who had brought her skipping-ropes might go in and skip in time to the music. Another teacher helped the children to keep in rhythm. Most of the time I was in this school there were two teachers in the class—young women familiarly known as “P. T’s” (pupil teachers).

Of the curriculum I remember little except the drawing and the sewing. The sewing was on a pillow-case, which I was making by hand, but this was not finished, for my family moved to Gourock at this time. However, before we take up the Gourock school, I wish to mention a very pleasant custom I remember in this, my “baby” school. In the winter the teacher asked us how many children wished to take bulbs. A little later, when the hyacinth bulbs arrived, they were distributed to the children who had ordered them, and the children were given a little instruction on the proper care of hyacinths. The bulbs were taken home. On an appointed day, the plants, now in bloom, were brought back to school and prizes awarded for the best.

Gourock is a small town about thirty miles from Glasgow. The school I attended here looked pretty much the same as my “baby” school, except that the stone window ledges were all grooved where pupils had sharpened their slate pencils. To sharpen a slate pencil one placed the side of the pencil, near one end, against the angle of the window-sill and rubbed the pencil back and forth—a push and pull motion, not from side to side.

When I entered this school I was placed in the first standard. We sat two at a desk, boys on one side of the room, girls on the other. The strap was very much in evidence. If one came late, without adequate excuse, or whispered too much, or did very poor work, he or she (oh, yes, girls, too) was called to the front of the room and one or two whacks administered on outstretched palm. I think that I was introduced to long division in this standard. All arithmetic, and some other lessons too, I think, were done on slates. Each pupil had a slate which, when not in use, stood in a slit in the back part of the desk, just at the back of the groove for pencils.
In the second standard I learned to knit. One hour each afternoon was devoted to either sewing or knitting. The first thing we made was a muffler. Next we learned to use steel needles. On these we made wristers at first, for practise, then stockings. In music there was a great deal of drill in do, re, me. Whenever there was to be a drawing lesson, we were told what flowers to bring, and I can well remember going one noon to the florists to buy two or three daffodils for the afternoon’s lesson. By this time we had two drawing books, one for crayon work and the other for pencil.

In the third standard we began the study of geography, history, and the catechism. Instead of a geography text book, each pupil had an atlas. Our history readers covered the material in a series of simple, connected stories, well illustrated by attractive colored pictures. The catechism lesson came first in the morning. The catechism used is the shorter one of the Church of Scotland. So much a part of the school equipment is the catechism that there is printed a school edition with the multiplication tables on the back cover. In the upper grades the study of the Bible is taken up, and a Bible is as much a school book as the reader or the history.

Examinations are more terrible to the student in Scotland than they are here, for the examinations are not conducted by the regular teacher, but by two inspectors, men from the board of education.

Up through the third standard all my teachers were women, but had I continued in the Scottish school system, I should have had men teachers from the fourth standard on.

Among the things which I remember best are the copy-books, or notebooks, in which we did our written home-work. They were thin books with shiny colored covers—red, blue, green, or black. The fine white paper was ruled in the usual manner for penmanship, but the note-books for arithmetic, or sums, as the Scotch pupil would say, were ruled off in squares—one figure in a square. Nobody could be careless or untidy when writing in such a note-book!

The little I have been able to tell you about school in Scotland may give you the impression that school over there is very different from school over here, but I did not find it so. I fitted into the American schools almost as if I had never known any others.

HOW CLASS A IS SPOKEN TO

Make a course of study.
If you are persons of average intelligence?
Hundredths means percent.
Adapt yourself to your situation.
Are you theoretically here or really present?
Here come the old ladies!’
What are your objectives?
Has the last bell rung yet?
The Moral Value of Assembly

When a cherished friend has been away for two years and then returns, how eagerly we greet him!

At first we are so completely happy that we can do nothing but admire in silent awe. Then our pent up emotion speaks forth in praise, gratitude, and thanks for the safe return of him whom we love. We do not wish to miss anything which he has to tell us, so great is our respect for him; we are not content to have him among us and not be able to share his company, lest we lose something which he has brought home to show or to tell us. We speak of his worth to others, of what he has added to his storehouse of experiences since he has been away; and we are anxious to draw others under his influence that they may profit by his adventures. Whatever happens, this man never passes a day without making someone happy; his is the eternal privilege of benefiting humanity.

Although the man will die in time, his work will remain after him, a constructive shaft to the memory of an altruistic nature. His loving spirit will shine among us, a guide to our wayward earthly habits, forever helping, checking and leading us on to the realizations of that most desirable goal—that of complete living.

Somewhat analagous to the life of this man from the time that he returns from his travels, is the history of our assembly exercises from the dread day two years ago, when further assemblies were made almost impossible by the well-known tragedy of the fire, until the present, when it is our privilege to meet daily in one of the most beautiful auditoriums in the state, the Horace Mann Auditorium.

How eagerly we awaited the notice which told us that the longed-for day had come;—the school was to meet, for the first regular assembly exercises in two years, in the new auditorium!

There were few of the upper classmen, at least, who did not feel a sense of perfect harmony once more present in our school life, as those first assembly exercises took place. At last we had returned to that normal state so much desired for two years. The tribute was one of deep silence, the perfect recognition of an invaluable endowment.

So we have gone, day after day, not wishing to lose anything that the assembly might give us, and not content to have it there without sharing in all its benefits, social, intellectual, and moral. We have met, through this instrument, many of our schoolmates whom otherwise we would not know because of the difference of classes or for some similar reason; we have discussed here our petty troubles and neglects; and here we have made friendships which, in years to come, will ever point back to the assembly as their birthplace.

So enthusiastic are we about our assembly, that we speak of it to others, hoping to bring them to a realization of the true worth of such a power for good. As these friends learn, by daily contact with the assembly, how much they are gaining both spiritually and materially, their praise of the assembly is joined to that of those who led them to the source of their gain. Thus the assembly steadily grows older,—each day imparting more and more of the worthwhile things to its community of students who remain constant to its enveloping and discriminating teachings.

The Horace Mann Auditorium itself, like its predecessor, will some day become a unified part of the materials of which it is made, but its spirit will go down through the ages, a beacon to those who have been faithful to the “one increasing purpose” toward which it constantly tends,—that of teaching complete living.

Our School

It is new. Yes, and even the Seniors realize that they have yet to feel at home in its rooms and corridors through which the ring of hammers still echoes as the workmen finish the chapel in the right wing. It is new in beam and pillar, and freshly painted halls. Among many explorers of the new building we see some faces already touched with a tender love for their new school because they loved the old. To us, who loved it all, from its smallest brick to its living motto, "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister," that old brick building still stands as our school of yesterday.

Many young people have left its walls to live its motto and to spread its ideals while teaching. To them Bridgewater Normal School still means a towering brick building with granite steps and pillars, with picture-lined walls and much worn stairs. Long years ago when those treads were new and other seniors explored the halls of their new building, could they feel the ghost of their old school hovering over them and guiding their steps through the unfamiliar corridors of the new, as we do?

No one can foretell the future of this new school. Yet, as we love its past in our school of yesterday, we shall love its present in our school of today and endeavor to make its future worthy of the pride of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The Family Has Scarlet Fever

It isn't as if we hadn't had our share of sickness. Measles, whooping cough, mumps,—nearly the whole category of ordinary youthful diseases came in large doses to our huge family. In later years, when we asked what we had had, mother said that we had all had everything, she was sure.

When the oldest boy, who was in high school, became sick with scarlet fever, he became responsible for one of our pleasantest family memories. Three-fourths of the children were in grammar school, and it was thrilling to be called out of the grade and told to go home because John was ill. It didn't occur to us to feel particularly anxious, for we took it for granted that whatever he had must be as negligible as all our previous sicknesses. Of course the house was quarantined, but not even a quarantine card can keep nine healthy children confined to one house. After mother had given up trying to restrain us, we enjoyed ourselves tremendously, playing throughout the neighborhood while less fortunate children were in school. Tiring of ordinary games, we stealthily went to the attic and climbed from attic window to eel roof to main roof, where we had a lovely time sliding in a stooping position from ridgepole to chimney. A neighbor whom we thought meddlesome telephoned to mother, who stopped our fun for fear of the roof's leaking. We substituted a less thrilling game of tent-making out of chairs and blankets in the parlor, sanctum sanctorum to most families.

We were having such a lovely time that only the conditions of the premature lifting of the quarantine consoled us. A few yards in back of the house was a white clapboarded, square building called "the shop", where father stored lumber and kept his carpenter's tools.
It was cleaned, a hole made in the roof for a stove pipe, and fixed up as a bedroom-living-room, with even a telephone installed. When John moved into the shop, we went back to school, envying him—as all the boys in the neighborhood did—his unique home.

Seven years later mother regretted that John’s hadn’t been a family sickness. In the fall when the smallest boy came down with diphtheria, we were all thankful that the quarantine would be short. A few weeks later, when a girl came down with combined diphtheria and scarlet fever, she was sent to a contagion hospital by a loving but determined family. Upon her return after six weeks of exile, as luck would have it, within a week three sisters contracted scarlet fever and followed each other to the hospital. When the boys showed symptoms, mother resigned herself to the inevitable, sent for the girls, and settled down for the winter.

It was in such a time that we found how many friends we had. There wasn’t a day that there was not left at the door some contribution of magazines, games, or food. Once there were left some delicious raised doughnuts together with a note in almost illegible writing, which mother interpreted as “Do not give to the children.” When they were all eaten by the well part of the family, we deciphered out “Will not hurt the children.” Another disappointment was a bottle of “delicious Elderberry wine” which turned out to be the most poisonous tasting stuff we thought existed. But there were some pleasant surprises. A neighbor who was thought close asked what kind of fruit we liked, for she wanted to buy us some. We purposely named the most expensive kind, grapefruit, and laughingly predicted her return empty-handed or with a few less costly fruit, with some excuse. She left at the door several dozen grapefruit, a whole cratefull.

That winter was a particularly severe one; for weeks the snow was three feet deep under a thick crust. The boys particularly moaned that “just the winter we have a lot of snow, we can’t enjoy it.” Towards the end of our quarantine, when mother was busy in the front rooms downstairs, all six shut-ins put on rubbers over their bedroom slippers and coats over their bathrobes and played outdoors like small children. The neighbors were shocked, but we didn’t care: the fun was more than worth any scolding, and mother’s wasn’t very harsh.

Even a scarlet fever quarantine isn’t interminable, so we eventually returned to school to make up our work. Were we entirely sorry for our absence? Not entirely.

WHAT WE FRESHMEN WONDER ABOUT

1. How old the A’s are.
2. The genius exhibited in the blackboard drawings.
3. The men of the school.
4. Whom Miss Rand winks at during chapel.
5. How many of us Mr. Hunt has discovered to be feeble-minded.
7. Where the upper classmen got all the advice they are willing to give us.

A STORMCLOUD PICTURE

Clouds in squally masses are in clouds of faded violet.

The sky is close,
And draped over earth
In flounces of gray dun.
The air radiates the drabness of the sky—
Blankets the trees—
Filters about the herbage—
And changes the rivers;
It adds a touch of the unknown to the obvious.

A moment everything is drear with dreariness.

Then slender rays streak through folded clouds;
Long silver swords with metallic keenness
Cut the haze.

A fire streak in the East
Yawns and gleams
A moment
Prophesying
Light!

NOSTALGIA

When spring comes back across the far blue hills,
And city-streets are full with dust again,
Somewhere, I know—and knowledge may be pain—
Half-hidden paths are bright with daffodils,
And little winds are blowing back their frills,
Revealing chalice sunlight in the rain,
Still silver—slanting down a hawthorne lane.
Somehow I know the pulse of April thrills.

Each dawn, across the smoky din of night,
A stream of traffic floods the city street.
But somewhere in the early morning light,
The winds of home are blowing clean and sweet.
Somewhere, I know, are yellow daffodils,
When spring comes back across the far blue hills.

SMILING

They say if you smile you’ll have wrinkles,
But why on earth should you care?
’Cause smiling makes everyone happy,
And dull days grow brighter and fair.

A smile is a gay bit of sunshine,
On anyone’s face it can grow;
So why, if you’re happy, stop smiling?
Grouches have wrinkles, you know.

And lines made by smiles are real lovely,
They mirror a life worthwhile—
A life full of sunlight for others to see;
It’s a fine thing to smile; so, smile!

QUIET AS A DREAM

Where the spreading willow droops,
And the sudden robin stoops;
All is as it was before
Beauty drawn from life’s full store.

Nothing changed, though years have passed,
Since I saw and marvelled last,
It’s the same calm wonder spot.
It seems
Enchanted, quiet as a dream!

CANDLES

We had the candles lit last night
And loveliness held sway;
For fairy shadows leaped about Fantastically gay.

A softly mellowed radiance
Flickered and smiled at us;
Our candles showered coziness,
Were eerily luminous.

Our terraced candelabra stood
In the window broad and bay,
While out of doors another one
Winked back in a fairy way.

A pair of jolly red ones
Stood guard near the telephone;
In the stairway draft they blinked and smiled,
Gay fireflies of our own.

RACHEL S. MARSDEN.

THE TUG OF WAR
(With apologies to The Charge Of The Light Brigade)

Half an inch, half an inch,
Half an inch onward,
All into the campus pond
Slid the eight (hundred).

"Hold!" cried the man in front
The only answer was a grunt.
Into the campus pond
Slid the eight (hundred).

"Hold!" cried the man in front
Was there no answering grunt?
Down slid the man in front
Then the crowd thundered.
Their's not to make reply,
Their's not to reason why,
Their's but to do or die!
Into the campus pond
Slid the eight (hundred).

Soft slime to right of them,
Black mud to left of them,
Water in front of them
Eddied and floundered.
Stormed at with slime and dirt,
Bravely they showed their worth
Into the campus pond
Slid the eight (hundred).

SYMPATHY

I looked at a row of birches,
Columns of mercury,
They knew that I was weary,
So they waved to me.

I sat by a stream of water
Prancing on to the sea;
It discerned my solitude,
So it sang to me.

I looked at the bright and silv'ry moon,
As it lay in its onyx sea;
It knew that I was lonesome,
So it smiled at me.

M. O'BRIEN, '28

MOON MADNESS

I've learned the moon's own madness
And found its witching art;
I've grasped its silver coldness
And held it to my heart.

Oh! you will be unhappy
When talking love to me;
For I've the moon's own coldness,
No warmth doth come from me.

For once my heart was loving
And warm and unafraid,
But blasts of winter taught me
And woe and pain allayed.

Oh, now the winds of winter
Are not more cold than I,
For I've the moon's own silver—
Oh God! I must not cry.

ELEANOR FREDETTE, B.

CERTAINTY

Deep in my heart, I know the day must dawn
When we have found the newest and the oldest ways;
When every fragile-threaded dream is gone,
And all our far to-morrows are but yesterdays.

Then through the mist,—across the wind-swept space—
Shall come one flame of glory for a moment's span,
And we shall know each other, face to face,
And we shall learn to live again—where Life began.

MARGARET DUNHAM, '28.
IN THE DUSK OF DEATH

In the dusk of death, I shall dream old dreams,— dreams I had forgotten.
I shall hoard fleeting moments when I have known Beauty; when tense heavy strings have been played in harmony to some proud eternal symphony.
I shall remember little things I have learned to know,
— old books, brown-spotted and musty; white clouds grazing in a high summer heaven. And words: I shall mouth them smoothly, words that sting, words that are terrible with beauty, and words that are sleek to the touch.
I shall remember only useless things—things that have no worth: the falling of a leaf thru the thin air of autumn: hills that doze beneath a haze of blue: the sleek, quivering skins of swift brown horses waiting in the sunlight: the warm, full friendliness of homemade bread: and new-ploughed fields, heavy with the smell of earth, waiting for completion.
I shall have forgotten in that dusk of death, old wars, old crimes, and theories; dreams that were stifled with strong hands; the suffering of all broken men.
I shall have forgotten then, old wars and empty words; and who the winner was in the end.

In the dusk of death, I shall hold only Beauty. I shall dream old dreams.

A VISIT TO FAIRYLAND

I once sailed up a fairy river in a fairy barque,
Past moon-misty mountains in the silver dark,
By shining castles and fountains of pearl
Where tiny red sailboats their white sails unfurl.

There were tiny tin soldiers with coats of bright blue,
Who saluted our ship as she sailed into view,
They never would bother with fighting at all
But practiced at marching and standing quite tall.
But somehow I’d time to stay only for tea—
(There were crackers and milk, and some cookies for me)
So I told the wee fairy I’d come back once more,
But I’ve searched, and I’ve searched, but I’ve not found the door.

MARJORIE CHACE, Sr. 1

THE PLAY THEATER IN THE OLD BARN

The stage is covered with dust,
Everything is brown with rust.
Our pretty curtain is old and worn,
And our costumes are faded and torn.

Where is our audience that thrilled
And hallooed when the villain was killed,
And wept when our heroine cried,
And our hero valiantly died?

There are our make-believe wings,
A wig, an old bag, a few costumes and things,
But our actors have all gone their ways—
Forgot is the theater of childhood days.

DOROTHY RIDDELL.

MOON MAGIC

Pale yellow maiden of the Orient—
Enshrouded in veils of golden web—
What magic you possess!

I saw your silv’ry ray
Clothe the rigid pine in cloak of gray.
Then melt dimly—away.

I saw you streak a blue-black lake
With a daub of molten gold;
Then slowly glide in your heavenly wake,
Like a pale enchantress cold.

The sharp outlines of the boulders
Felt the magic of your gaze;
I saw them slowly disappear
Beneath a sheet of haze.

No stony heart of human kind
Can withstand when you smile—
Oh, tell me, Oriental Maid
The secret of your guile.

MICHAEL O’BRIEN.
Miss W-r-i-k (in geography class) "The farmers co-operated together."
Mr. S-n-o-t; "Supposing they co-operated some other way than together."

In library class; "How are things arranged when they are arranged alphabetically?"
Ruth F.—"Chronologically."

Incensed girl to Mike O'Brien, who has lost her place in a book. "Do you want me on your neck!"
Mike, beaming. "I'd be delighted!"

Miss R-t-h-e; "Oak tag is useful for many purposes."
Mr. D-r-in; "What kind of game is that?"

Mr. D-r-in, the first day of school to inquisitive "A's" who have been gazing at him through the oval glass in his door.
"Quit peekin'!"

Miss P-c-e-t; (in geography class) "What bureaus did the Department of Agriculture establish?"
Miss T-y-n; "One of entomology, and I think one for insects."

Hamlet in Modern Speech

Note: Since it has of late been in the literary fashion to serve celebrated personages, like Helen of Troy and George Washington, in up-to-date manners and morals, we have thought it no harm to contribute our humble offering, by translating Hamlet into strictly modern speech.

Act I

SCENE I
Two guards, Marcellus, and Horatio, seated on a platform before the castle.
1st Guard—Say, old bean, am I seeing things?
2nd Guard—Whatcha see?
1st Guard—So help me Hannah! It's a spook!
Horatio—I tole yuh to lay off that moonshine.
Marcellus—And so did I.
1st G.—Sure it's a spook. There she blows.
2nd G.—Good Grief, it is!
Mar.—Let's ask him what he's snooping around here for.
Hor. (to Ghost)—What's your trouble? Holy mackerel! He's wented.

SCENE II
Hamlet in room of castle. Enter Horatio and Marcellus.
Mar.—Say, Ham, we saw a spook that looked like your governor.
Ham.—Aw, you're full of balloon juice.
Mar.—Don't yuh believe yours truly?

I wonder what an "A" class student thinks of?

After Briggs

Inspired by Mr. Bond's talks on concentration.

1927 NORMAL OFFERING

154
Ham.—Never mind. Where did you lamp him?
Hor.—Outside the castle.
Ham.—Well, don’t let that give yuh gray hair. Come on, let’s hit the hay.
Mar, & Hor.—Righto!
Ham.—Say, let’s see the spook to-morrow night. You game?
Hor. & Mar.—Sure!

SCENE III
A room in Polonius’ house. Enter Laertes and Ophelia.
Laer.—Well, good-by, ‘Phelia, old girl. Guess I’ll have to vamoose. Say, listen. Don’t let that guy Hamlet try to play Romeo. He’s an awful sheik.
Oph.—Thanks for the info. I’ll watch my step.

Enter Polonius
Laer.—So-long, old topper, I’m on my way.
Pol.—Hold your horses. Let this sink in. First, don’t go with people that have reps, for I won’t bail you out. Last but not least, don’t spend all your money, because you’re going to get no more. All right, you can beat it now.

SCENE IV
The platform. Enter Hamlet, Horatio, and Marcellus.
Ham.—Mar, old chap, what time does your Ingersoll read?
Mar.—Looks like twelve.
Hor.—Well, it’s about time the spook ambled along.
Ham.—Sure you’re not kidding me?
Mar.—For the love of Mike! Don’t yuh believe me?

Enter Ghost
Ham.—Am I seeing things?
Hor.—Now were we kidding you?
Ham.—I say, old bean, whatcha gotta say? Why don’t you spit it out?

Ghost starts to go, beckoning Hamlet.
Ham.—Well, if you insist.

Follows the Ghost
Mar. & Hor.—Don’t go! Stick here!
Ham.—Aw, shut up. He’s got something to tell yours truly.
Hor.—Well, let him go. I tole yuh he was nuts.
Mar.—Let’s follow him.
Ham. (to Ghost)—Where do you think you’re going?
Gh.—It’s about time I went to roost.
Ham.—Honest?
Gh.—Sure. I’m your old man’s ghost. Now listen here, kid. My brother bumped me off. I expect you to do likewise to him.
Ham.—Shake on that, old bean.
Gh.—Naw. Swear!
Ham.—Sure thing.
Hor.—What yuh been doing?
Ham.—Go chase yourself. Do yuh think I’m batty enough to tell you? Forget it. I say forget this spooky business, or I won’t be responsible. See?

This concludes ACT I. If the demand warrants, other portions of the play will be translated at some future time. Inez Murphy

Freshmen may use the following to advantage in the rhetoric grammar test;—

You see a beautiful girl walking down the street. She is singular, you are nominative. You walk across to her, exchanging to verbal, and it becomes dative. If she is not objective you walk home together. Her mother is accusative, you become imperative. You talk of the future, she changes to the objective. You kiss her and she becomes masculine. Her father becomes present, things become tense, and you become a past participle.

A Scotchman stepped up to a bar and asked for a drink of his favorite whiskey. As he raised his glass to his lips he closed his eyes and drank, apparently in a rapture of joy. A friend standing next to him asked him why he had closed his eyes. The Scotchman replied; "Hoot, mon! When I see me favorite Scotch, me mouth waters, an' I dinna like to doloot me licker."
