Merry Christmas & Happy New Year

Alice B. Beal, Training Director, To Leave
For New Position As Elementary Supervisor

Bridgewater congratulates one of its most popular instructors, Miss Alice B. Beal, supervisor of training, on her recent appointment to the office of State Supervisor of Elementary Education. While Bridgewater deeply regrets her leaving, it takes pride in the fact that one of its graduates has achieved such distinction in the field of education.

After graduating from Bridgewater in 1916, Miss Beal attended New York University, Teachers College at Columbia University, and Harvard. She received her master's degree, cum laude, from Boston University, School of Education.

Miss Beal is well-qualified for her new position, having taught in the public schools of Quincy, where she was master's assistant, and in Haverhill, where she was supervisor of grades five through eight. For twelve years she has been director of training at the

Chellis Modern Dance Group To Have Bridgewater Recital

W. A. A. makes history with the first social event in the New Year, when Miss Pauline Chellis and her dance group present a Modern Dance Recital Friday evening January 5, in the Horace Mann Auditorium. The faculty and student body are invited to this evening recital. Miss Chellis will also give demonstrations at 3:30 in the gymnasium, in which students may participate.

Miss Chellis, one of the foremost exponents of the Modern Dance, instructs classes ranging from young children to college students. During the past fifteen years she has toured extensively in New England with her concert group. She will be assisted at the piano by Miss Louise Doucot.

Candidates Are Selected For Freshman Class Offices

Since it is felt that by this time the freshmen have had sufficient time to become acquainted, nominations were recently made for the offices of the class.

Robert Berenson, John Henry Fitzgerald, and Joseph Killory are competing for the presidency. The office of secretary is filled by the office of the secretary, James Lynch, and John MacNeil, and Margaret Smith, are running for treasurer.

Robert Berenson, Madeline Baker, Mary McCarthy, and Joan Snow are running for vice president.

Tenth Biennial Mardi Gras To Feature Contributions From France To America

Prior to its Exposition in 1937, New York had its World's Fair in 1933, and Bridgewater will favor the world with another grand spectacle in 1940, the year of the one-hundredth birthday of the college, and the year of the tenth anniversary of the Mardi Gras celebrations at Bridgewater.

"A Centennial Exposition" is the title chosen to feature this gala affair which will take place on the evening of January 12 in the Albert Gardner Boyden gymnasium, when students will revel in a completely transformed gymnasium from eight until twelve o'clock.

The modern theme will be brought out in the decorations, in the costumes, and in the costumes. A number of prizes will be offered for superlative costumes, one for the most grotesque, the most authentic costume of 1890, the most decorative costume, the costume best depicting a French contribution, and the best group of costumes of characters taken from a recent movie. A grand prize will be given to the faculty member who appears in the most glamorous costume. Attention, Dr., Hill of Yale University, you, who think teachers should have more glamour!

Helen Swift, Alice Bubriski, Helen Freeman Smith, Charles Haley, and Ellwood Jeppesen of Men's Glee Club will also sing. General dancing will follow.

The committee in charge includes Miss Rand, music; Miss Nye, decorations; Miss Beal, hospitality; and Miss Lindquist, refreshments. Miss Katherine Packard is general chairman.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE
From President Kelly to Faculty and Students

In this joyous season of peace, good will toward men, let us rejoice and be grateful for the privilege which is ours to speak sincerely words of good cheer. Day by day, year by year, let us keep before us the debt we owe those patriots whose foresight and good sense has made possible a government and a nation which generously interprets the fullest meaning of the words good will, fellowship and peace.

This Christmas, may the significance of that great event of nearly two thousand years ago, the birth of the Christ Child—the re-birth of Faith, Hope and Charity, give heart to the oppressor and courage to the oppressed; may the whole world be moved nearer to the ideal of "peace on earth, good will to men".

To the faculty and students of this college may I wish to you and yours a truly Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Glee Club Broadcasts Carol Concert from WEEI

Sixty spirited voices of the B. T. C. Women's Glee Club were heard over station WEEI on Tuesday, December 12, at 4:15, singing beloved Christmas carols, old and new.

This was Bridgewater's fourth consecutive Christmas contribution over the radio, the first having been conducted at WBB and in the remaining three from studios WEEI. Miss Frieda Rand directed the selections with Esther Kelley assisting at the piano. Students at the college were enabled to listen to the broadcast through a radio placed in the Horace Mann Auditorium.

Faculty Entertains Students At English Christmas Party In Boydren Gym Tonight

Faculty members will entertain student guests with an old English menu play at the Christmas party of the lord and lady of the manor, President and Mrs. Kelly, at the manor house, formerly Boydren Gymnasium, tonight at 8:00 p.m.

In place of the usual Christmas banquet at Tiltingham, the party has been arranged by the Faculty Interest Committee, the members of which are Miss Beal, Miss Caldwell, Miss Rogers, Miss Packard, and Mr. Tyndall. The theme will revolve around the Christmas festivities in an old English manor.

The play, "St. George and the Dragon", will feature Miss Carter, Miss Graves, Miss Packard, Miss Mahoney, Mr. Davoren, Mr. Meier, Mr. McGurken, and girls from the Dramatic Club. The Women's Glee Club will repeat their broadcast of carols; Bob Read, Freeman Smith, Charles Haley, and Ellwood Jeppesen of Men's Glee Club will also sing. General dancing will follow.

The committee in charge includes Miss Rand, music; Miss Nye, decorations; Miss Beal, hospitality; and Miss Lindquist, refreshments. Miss Katherine Packard is general chairman.

Christmas Chapel Program To Feature Choric Drama

Choric speaking and choric drama will highlight the annual Christmas production of the Dramatic club in charge tomorrow morning. The program, toward which the Women's Glee Club is contributing much this year, will consist of two dramas, "The Six Green Singers" by Eleanor, and "The Quest Eternal" by Margaret Waldemar, and Christmas poems chanted by a robed verse choir. The entire production is under the direction of Mr. Ruth L. Low.

Students participating in the dramas are Marion Hall, Joan Lindsey, Ann King, Mary DeCoste, Estelle MacKay, Eleanor Mullin, Marion Kelley, Rita McGinnis, Helen Swift, Alice Babinski, Winfred Sweeney, Mary Connolly, Donald Merrill, John Stella, Charles Haley, Frederick Martin, William Cooper, and Edward Barry.

Verse choir members include Evelyn Allen, Ruth Stone, Mary Latham Adeen Warton, Lora von Bergen, Lilian Warren, Norma Hudley, Gertrude Topham, Lilian Russell, Eileen Byrne, Mary Larkin, Margarette Hallacy, Mary Ryan, Liette Morin, and Helen

BRIEDGElVAR'S HERITAGE

"This year we observe the Centennial of the founding of the Bridgewater Normal School. The xenity with which we have kept the faith of the founding fathers is evidenced by your zeal and your co-operation with the faculty of this college, in preserving those ideals, traditions, and service to humanity characteristic of Bridgewater.

"The steady, uninterrupted march of progress and advancement, during the past one hundred years, the transition from a one-year normal school to a two-, three-, and four-year school, grown from the seed of that same great-granting college, a graduate school, and extension service, the ten a city with founding fathers is evinced by your presence, your service, your sacrifice, the tears and smiles of those who love Bridgewater and all that it represents."

The foregoing words are excerpted from the address of welcome spoken by President Kelly to the alumni of Bridgewater at their recent reunion. They express the great deal which many of us at Bridgewater fail to realize. We are self-satisfied and take for granted many things which cost our predecessors dearly.

Let us appreciate exactly what they did for us and hope that we, under-grades may contribute toward the great heritage which they bequeathed us, and that, at least, we shall never do anything, without keeping the memory of our elders before our eyes.

"Today, and during this Centennial year, let us rejoice and send forth from our hearts a prayer of thanksgiving to Him Whom the Teacher of teachers for his guidance. Let us look back with hope to the years ahead, hope that the graduates of this college will have the same the master and the many of her graduates who have gone far in the educational world.

"America. It is our home!"

MONEHGON ISLE

A low hung rock against the sky, Salt-laden winds, a sea gull's cry. A stately pine defied to bend, A bushel trial which knows no end.

The rushing seas reach out and touch The rugged, jagged crags. And over it all as veil of green, The yew trail saga and drags. A rugged coast was smooth by time, Withstanding every trial.

A work of God to Earth was giv'n In this Monheggon Isle.

National Guard Units Attract Bridgewater Men

The National Guard has attracted to its ranks many of our prominent students. From Battery B, Brockton, are enlisted: Corporals: William Skulley, Leonard Wickich, and John Dowd, a major, of the band; Private First Class, Martin Kollody; and Privates: Richard Rocha, and Quintin Dunn; and from Battery F, Taunton, Corporals: Lee Fleming.

The National Guard became a re-serve organization of the army by an act of Congress in 1920. Before this time it was a state guard. In its present status it never at all but maintains equipment and pay from the federal government. And in the state.

The men are subject to call for service at any time.

Seniors Offer Assortment Of Christmas Cards For Convenience of Buyers

I searched the stationary stores. I found nothing around in the grocery of givings. Yes, I was in my annual dither over that nerve-wracking problem of what to send in the form of cards. Finally, it came to me:

"Why should I send out legs and hands— and be stopped on, too? Why not to pick up any card and show around by the usual wild crowd (of women) who plunder the Christmas counters?

In peace and quiet I wandered up to the rotunda one noon and behold the most attractive display of cards. I found the inexpensive, beautifully designed Christmas cards that any store, shop, or house-to-house agent had offered me.

Under the capable leadership of Anna Maness, a senior, a very successful drive was carried on and she reported that the drive had been a success.

Congratulations to Anna and her committee for giving us an opportunity to purchase cards which enhance the interests of the nation's pride! All our friends who receive them will smarten up!"

B. T. C. Journalists To Head State Publications Group

At the recent conference at Fitchburg held by the Massachusetts State Teachers College Publications Associations, Dave Levenson, editor of Campus Comment, was elected president of the organization for 1940, Margarette Hallincly, feature reporter of Campus Comment, was elected secretary, and Mary Larkin, group reporter, was chosen to represent Bridgewater on a board for Censorship Criterions.

It was decided to hold the next conference of the press group at Bridgewater next spring. Plans are already in hand for this meeting.

At the conference there were approximately one hundred and eighty representatives, representing Bridgewater, Fitchburg, Framingham, and Salem. Delegates from Bridgewater were Mary Casey, Margarette Hallincly, Laucle Hardy, Dave Levenson, Margaret McHugh, and Katherine Tiernan.

Co-Ed Scores Stag Line

According to a letter writer who interviewed an automobile owner who would like to go to them, but it would hurt his feelings to go to their con-cit. When do you think that they will smarten up?"

Long-Lost Verses of "America"

The attention of all Americans should be called to the following verses of the popular song "America," written by W. B. Yeats and sung at Newton Center, Massachusetts in 1833.

Those last two stanzas were never published until two years ago. They have the potential to shape the nation's future. Educators, in particular, should consider the following verses as a guiding principle for our schools.

YULETIDE-1940

Warms, armaments, rentals, tariffs! Yet the blest of all, and from afar, and from all that has been won since the war. Brother fights brother. Non-conformists are bom. Strife is the order of the day.

And yet the white star mountains in the skies, Church and home prepare for the Babe. The celestial chorus rises in glorious song on earth.

These are the two seemingly irreconcilable aspects of this particular Christmas season. But must the sanctity and beauty of the Christmas season and spirit give way to the madness and turmoil and insanity of war? After all, strife is on the outside; inside we see an ever-burning radiance steadily increasing in brilliancy as we trace through the centuries.

Three Wise Men came bearing gifts that first Christmas. A manger was the bounding lines of the observance then; but millions rejoice on our modern Christmas. The world is too small to confine our joy today. Have we made progress? Are not these wars and threats of wars more accidents, mere falls from grace? Have we not a Day which transcends all in utter sublimity of ideal and hope?

Christmas is far above worldly pettiness. Its sanctifying influence is felt in no long junction of the world. It knows no barriers, it is universal. And the choicest warring Europe is as nothing when compared with the unity of brotherly love expressed at Yuletide.

"Now we speak of giving—give. Our Christmas is no longer a time of giving only to friends; we have expanded our scope to include our unknown neighbors. Church, Community Chest, Red Cross, and tuberculosis associations all are part of our year-round gift list.

But at Christmas especially we are asked to aid the laboring work being carried on without fanfare by the National Tuberculosis Association, by purchasing seals. This has become an inseparable part of the season. To us the doubled-barred cross of the seal, this year designed by Robert Kent, is as much a symbol of Christmas as the evergreen of Santa Claus.

Let us not forget the old Habraic belief that the highest form of charity is to do good to another to help him. The worth of the drive to sell these seals can only be appreciated from the motto of the Anti-Tuberculosis groups:

"It aids the ill and protects the well."

So let us all do our part and use them around every Christmas mail.
Grass Plot Is Streamlined, Gets New Lease On Life

Settle back in your arm chair, reach for a sweet, and harken to a tale of one who loved, lost, and won again.

One upon a time there was a seedy little miss nursing a broken heart out in back of the Administration Building. Poor little Miss Grass Plot was fading away because she loved a big handsome fellow, Driveway. But he turned his back on her. Never a brute who used to hold her in his arms and lift her feet.

Little Miss Grass Plot was getting desperate.

"What shall I do?" she thought, running brown with anguish. "How can I win back my big, strong, beautiful fellow, Driveway who has done me dirt? Look at the amputing making eyes at that

Seedy little Miss Grass Plot plotted and plotted but she couldn't find a way to do it until one sunny day she saw a light. "Eureka!" she exclaimed. "I've found it! I'll write to Mr. Durgin, I'll be the one to tell me how to win back my lovey?dumpling and help our love to grow again!"

So she sat right down and wrote:

Mr. Durgin,

I am fairly young, have a bright complexion, stand up straight, and I am a woman-watcher, a misanthropist and a traitor, but I am a man who has lived in a world of women. I know what a healthy, lovely lover should do.

Please write and help me.

Signed,

Mr. Durgin's heart ached for poor Little Miss Grass Plot. But Mr. Durgin knew all the answers. He knew what a healthy, lovely lover should do. Please write and help me.

Pupils of Training School Plan Yuletide Activities

Students in the advanced state of being in college are not the only ones working hard now at having a Christmas fun and making provisions for our December 25. Our little neighborhoods across the street in the Training School are even busier than those during the Thanksgiving holidays by Miss Margaret McHugh of Woodward Hall.

According to this document, the Training School brings forth one outstanding fact: from kindergartens to sixth grade every child is doing his best to prepare to give pleasure to some one else on December 25.

To visit a Training School brings forth another outstanding fact: from kindergartens to sixth grade every child is doing his best to prepare to give pleasure to some one else on December 25.

To start with the youngest children and work up, Miss Marks' kindergartens is showing the way by making gifts for parents. Two of the many gifts are tiny waste baskets for mother's desk and pomander balls, which, upon inquiry, were found to be oranges stuck with spices, so as to resemble a brown pomander, tied with a ribbon to be hung in mother's linen closets for a delightful odor. There is also to be a party for the parents next week, a Christmas pageant and story of the kind that all the children will listen to. Miss Marks will be in charge.

Next we come to Miss Roger's first grade where the children are making Christmas cards with cut outs. Miss Smith's first grade is also making gifts, forming a fireplace out of real bricks. Children have formed committees to trim their own tree and also to mail the cards to Miss Flaherty in Santa Claus, an answer to which from the North Pole is expected by the children by Christmas.

We come to Miss Grass Plot's fourth where the children are making presents for their parents, while Miss McHugh and her partner, evidently truthfully, report that their moments may prevail on her to give an exhibition in the gym some afternoon.

Train commuters looking enviously at the last and all by the many dancing couples, sometimes showing pinnacles, many of whom impatiently bowed in recognition of her skill.

"The step starts conventionally with a hop, then a dash, with tricky quick-change step. The high spot of the new step was reached when Miss McHugh brought in a third-dimensional elegance of movement. We quote: "The step begins with a quick bounce off the floor, resorting to a closer contact with the dance floor itself, with its movement still unimpeded."

Dear Santa Claus,

How are you this Christmas? Have you made any toys and have you enough for everyone?

You are Santa Claus, you have been good to me. Every child works hard in school and tries to help his dear mother at home.

We will go to bed early on Christmas Eve, and we hope you will fill up our stockings.

We love you Santa Claus and a merry Christmas to you from...

Grass Plot Is Streamlined, Gets New Lease On Life

This Is B. T. C. Where: "Centennial plaza" or "Mardi Gras" are mentioned in at least every other conversation. "Who are those pretty girls?" "They are the cheerleaders." "They are the cheerleaders," etc., is heard everywhere. Miss Rand should buy a complete set of her records. After all, they can't be a dignified professor in the College of Musical Knowledge!... Little Morton's friends. They are the same until Mardi Gras takes place.... Dave Levenson recalls the special parking system for the enormous amount of papers and notes he carries in his pockets.

Snapshots in Class:

Miss Low: "Please bring your composition books to class tomorrow, together with your essays and papers so that you should be able to review intelligently. Also pack lunches, paper and ink." (Voice from the back of the room, "When do we move in?!"

Bernard: "If a man and a woman dance with each other, is it a woman-watcher, a misanthropist and a traitor, but I am a man who has lived in a world of women. I know what a healthy, lovely lover should do.

So he sat right down and wrote:

Faculty Members Indulge In Outside Activities

That the faculty of B. T. C. is a versatile group and does not limit its activities to the Bridgewater campus is brought to our attention daily. Many of them have taken up several dramatic, educational, and civic groups, as well as to the teachers' organizations bound with the affairs of Bridgewater.

Miss E. Irene Graves, instructor of the natural sciences, has been invited to address a seminar group on the teaching of biology at Brown University tomorrow.

"The Evolution of Shipbuilding in Southern New England," is the subject of a series of articles by Mr. Paul Huffington of the B. T. C. geography department and Mr. J. Nelson Cliffrord. Mr. Huffington's articles appeared in the March issue of the "Economic Geography" magazine. Later to appear in book form, the series is part of a project the authors are doing for credits toward their Ph. D. degrees, and will consist of regional and type studies of shipbuilding in New England.

Faculty, Students Prepare For Long Christmas Recess

By December 16 the campus will be practically deserted. Even now elaborate plans and discussions among the faculty and among students concerning holiday plans are being made. Miss Caldwell is probably going farther away for her holidays than anyone else, as she plans to leave as soon as the last class bell rings for Glen Ellyn, Illinois, a beautiful suburb of Chicago, where her home is.

Another faculty member who is planning an interesting vacation is Mr. McEly. He will spend Christmas at his home in Whitman and then leave for Tuoro, Massachusetts, where his family has a camp, "to shoot anything that runs or flies." (Under Massachusetts gaming laws that is narrowed down almost to rabbits.)

Miss Poppe will spend Christmas with relatives in Braintree. Later on in her vacation she plans to go to her nephews and nieces home in Bridgewater. Miss Bradford has decided to spend her vacation working on Marxie Grant. Miss Mahoney plans to return to her home in Winchester for the holidays season.

Among the students, holiday vacation plans are quite interesting and as varied. Dorothy Coffman is going to Philadelphia and then to Maryland to tell all men he's glad to be alive, and where with silent prayer the wife holds the shore. Miss Louise Miller, a sophomore at Emerson College, presented a reading of Suzanne Glaspell's "Suppressed Desires" in chapel Tuesday, December 12.

S. C. A. Frolic Brings Capacity Crowd To Boyden Gymnasium

Icy winter invaded the Albert C. Gardner Boyden Gymnasium at the S. C. A. Frolic Formal, Friday night, December eighth, when King Winter reigned supreme in a unique assortment of silver and turquoise icicles. More than one hundred couples swayed to the smooth rhythms of Billie Burke's orchestra from nine to one o'clock. The receiving line was headed by Barbara Taylor, president of S. C. A. and her escort. Patrons and patronesses included President and Mrs. John C. Kelly, Miss S. Elizabeth Pope, Mr. and Miss George Durgin, Miss Louise Borden, and Miss Katherine Packard.

General chairman of the dance was Irna Wall, first vice president of S. C. A. Committee heads were: decorations, Ruth Lawrence; refreshments, Arlene Wessman; hospitality, Eunice Mackey; programs, Dave Levenson; publicity, Phyllis Pry; orchestra, Winslow Taylor; and clean-up, Nicholas Megas.

Exhibits In Boyden Hall To Trace Stages of Growth In Progress of Bridgewater

The valuable relics of early Bridgewater Normal School displayed in the lobby of Boyden Hall are not a few articles gathered at random, but rather the result of a methodical collection. Each year a few books, papers of notes, catalogue, and pictures have been put aside in a vault.

Vince McCeney, history instructor, who is in charge of the exhibit, has assorted these articles into definite periods. At present the subject of the exhibit is "Bridgewater Normal School between 1860 and 1861," and includes old tintypes, lectures of Marshall Conant, and books, many of which to us seem quite humorous. The next exhibit is to be "Bridgewater in the Civil War." Some alumni have added to the content of the vault from their personal efforts. Just as these articles have been collected for the last one hundred years, so articles will be collected in the future. Any event of great note which occurs during our college days will probably be preserved for future students to behold with the same feeling of awe as we experience when we look at these articles of the past.

S. C. A. Head Sends Greetings

It is still ten days before December 23rd; however the Christmas spirit has already prevailed over our campus through the various activities which have taken place these past weeks.

By means of our Christmas fund with the President and Student Council, the campus has become a Santa Claus to the underclassmen. Miss Caldwell headed the upperclassmen who directed the affairs. Other chairmen of committee included Helen Swift, hospitality; Margarette Savaria, decorations; Esther Boyden, food; Agnes Richardson, publicity; Alice Richardson, decorations, and Vernon West, clean-up.

Where one can smell the pungent trailying, and hear the soft low sigh of spruce and pine, and watch the gull soar white against bright blue, and taste the cool moist breeze so refreshing to the lungs.

Sends Greetings

To every member of the faculty and to every student, I sincerely wish "the merriest Christmas and a happy vacation." When we return to college it will be another year. Let each of us resolve to do his part to make the new year the most outstanding since 1840.

Barbara Taylor, President of S. C. A.
Social Science Trends
Is Theme of Third Program
Of Centennial Observances

"Present Trends in Social Science" are the focus of the third program of social science activities planned by the University's Department of Social Science.

Some students who participated in the program said that they found the lectures to be interesting and informative. Others commented that they found the discussions to be thought-provoking and challenging.

Marriage Takes Two Women
From Ranks of Junior Class

The recent marriage of two students from the junior class has raised questions about the role of women in society.

"It is odd that both of these young ladies should be members of the Class of 1944!" said one of the students. "Maybe the women in the other classes are holding out on us."

Some students believe that the marriage may be a sign of changing attitudes towards women's roles in society.

"Emperor Jones" Is Staged
By N. E. Repertory Theatre

Under the sponsorship of the Lecture Fund Committee, "Emperor Jones", one of the most outstanding plays by Eugene O'Neill, was staged by the New England Repertory Theatre in the Horace Mann Auditorium on December 5.

The role of Brutus Jones, Emperor, was portrayed by Frank Silvers, a native of the West Indies where the action of the play takes place. Edwin Burr Pettet, director of the drama and head of the New England Repertory group enacted the part of Sinbad, cockney trader in the islands.

Minnie Schack, who played the parts of Jeff and the witch doctor, is a native of the Republic of Liberia. A graduate of M. I. T. in 1923, Mr. Schack is now modeling for the Museum of Art and conducting a lecture tour.

Some students found the performance to be captivating and engaging. Others commented that they found the play to be a fresh and relevant exploration of the issues it addresses.

THE WEEKENDERS

If extra-curricular activities contribute to the development of the well-rounded individual, why wouldn't stimulating and enjoyable weekends?

During the Thanksgiving recess, Bridgewater students engaged in a variety of activities. Dancing over the week-end were Florence Harris at the Intercollegiate Orchestra at the University. The Huffington's Christmas fair, which gives the student body an opportunity to provide economic geography at Clark University, with Dr. Joseph L. Arnold presiding as chairman. This is one of a series of conferences being held in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of our college.

After a greeting by President John J. Kelly, three prominent men in the field of sociological science will address the conference group. Roy W. Hatch, head of the Social Science Department, State Teachers College, Mount Holyoke College, and Wilda L. Arnold presenting the address. The concluding address is to be given by Hurice Kidger of Newton High School. Secretary and treasurer of the New England History Teachers' Association, Dr. Roy W. Hatch, head of the Social Science Department, State Teachers College, Mount Holyoke College, and Wilda L. Arnold presenting the address.

Quick programs are popular on the radio, in assemblies, and even in the classroom. Here's one in writing. The general question to be answered is: What goes on in the gym for girls this term? Let's go ask the hands of indoor sports.

First Margery Wright, head of Ex-Ceters: "Who said bowling wasn't as popular among the women as among the men at B. T. C? Remember how hard we were getting a mere twelve out of fifty for it last year? Well, about 10 B. T. C. girls captained by Margaret Maynor may be seen every Thursday afternoon strutting downtown toward the bowling alley. One hundred and ninety-five is the highest score on one string so far—how many can beat it?"

Our intramural tournament fans have a hard time finding periods when the gym is free. It had been suggested that some time be set aside for the playing of popular games. This suggestion may be quite rewarding, freshmen reflecting the sentiment of the times—Bombers, Tigers, and Zebras. That will swell team spirit...

Shifting Scenes

Shifting Scenes: after the Christmas furlough, if we are present on the Legion Field track, the 1940 track team will be under the able tutelage of Coach Jan Kimball. Jan Kimball was noncommittal at the time of the Christmas furlough. Jan was queried about his plans for the future, they were far from downhearted. They have can be converted into a game-winner.

Intramural Basketballers Ready To Start Tournament

After a short period of organization, plans have been completed for a tournament involving the basketball players of the college.

At present, five full teams of basketballers are on hand. The tournament will be held at the Northern Arizona College Basketball Gymnasium, January 4th.
