MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT MOHLER-FARIA
BRIDGEWATER STATE COLLEGE YEARBOOK
Moving “Beyond the Walls of Bridgewater State College”

Dear friends,

Ever since my arrival on campus in the Fall of 1991, I have always thought of our college as a family – a family that is forever growing, constantly changing and continuously evolving. Together, we have faced the challenges that naturally go hand-in-hand with being a member of a large, diverse and dynamic family, and we’ve made the most of the opportunities to enrich our understanding of the world around us and to make a lasting, positive contribution to our society.

Bridgewater State College, as the flagship of the state college system, has become a model of excellence in Southeastern Massachusetts. As I noted in my inaugural address, our institution is and should continue to be a place where new ideas and novel approaches are embraced, where opinions are respected, and where learning experiences help us find value in each other as human beings.

Moving “beyond the walls of Bridgewater State College” means that we must do more than just set an example for others to follow. It means that we must actively lead the way. It means that we must use all of our gifts – our energy, enthusiasm, knowledge and spirit – to help guide our region down the path of excellence. It means that each of us needs to personally reach out and give something back to the people of Southeastern Massachusetts through mentoring and community service.

And perhaps most important of all, it means that we must continue to live by these high standards long after we have, ourselves, moved beyond the walls of Bridgewater State College.

Sincerely,

Dana Mohler-Faria
President
The 2003 Yearbook Staff proudly dedicates this year’s book to Dr. Glenn Miller, who died on July 27, 2002 from a battle with cancer. He was teaching all the way through the spring semester of 2002, even while going through treatments. Dr. Miller was part of the Earth Science and Geography Department since 1983. In his nineteen years at the college, he touched many lives in his students and faculty members. Faculty members that remember his first year here remember that he was impressive right at the beginning and knew that he was a great teacher. His students couldn’t agree more. Dr. Miller taught his students not only about geography, but about life. Trips taken with the geography clubs only further showed this. There was never a dull moment around the man.

Through his academic journeys, he always kept the faith in his rock group of choice the Rolling Stones. The first few hits of “Satisfaction” always brought a smile to his face and renewed sense of power of music to energize everyone around. His air guitar was never too far away either. Dr. Glenn Miller can be described by many to be a very dedicated man, or better yet, the professor that cared. The BSC community greatly misses Dr. Miller, especially the many staff and students whose lives he touched.

“He helped me discover not only geography, but helped me realize my life.”
- Former Student

“Dedicated to life.”
- President Dana Mohler-Faria

“Dr. Miller always had a smile and a big hello even if he was in a hurry.”
- Barbara Freeman

“Three words to describe Dr. Miller: Father. Teacher. Friend.”
- Bill McNulty

“I do believe that his love of geography now has him circling the globe in search of new territory.”
- Maisy McDarby-Stanovich
A Year to Remember

With the opening of new buildings around campus, and the first year of having President Dana Mohler-Faria, it can be a year to remember.

The East Campus Dining Facility opened, along with East Hall, and the Adrian Tinsley Athletic Center. East Hall now has 300 students that occupy the facility and therefore took many people off the waiting list for housing. With a suite style layout, and air conditioning, many students took full advantage of having the opportunity to move into the newest place on campus.

The East Campus Commons facility made it possible for the Shea/Durgin dining hall to close, and open this new one. The building also has Dunkin’ Donuts, and the newest Bookstore on campus.
The Tinsley Center will be the new home of the Department of Athletics and Recreation, as well as the Department of Movement Arts, Health Promotion and Leisure Studies. The facility houses classrooms as well as a Fitness Center equipped with state-of-the-art strength and cardiovascular equipment.

A year after the infamous day of September 11, the campus held a program to remember all of the heros that lost their lives that day. As the flags were raised to half-mast, students, administrators, faculty, public safety and elected officials from the town of Bridgewater all participated in the anniversary that touched all Americans. President Dana Mohler-Faria remembered how the tragic day renewed his spirit and how the next morning he found students around the flag pole praying. It was something that was unplanned, and showed how the community had come together. As we all remember back on the tragic day, we remember those who lost their lives, but need to remember how many people did survive the day, and are now around to share our memories with.
Student Life
To many students, Bridgewater State is considered their home for the years that they are here, so the town of Bridgewater is part of the experience of going to school in such a place.

It seems to be that the construction here on campus never seems to disappear.

One of the many streets that lead BSC students to the center of town.
Thanks to the help of the Firemen, when those 2 am alarms go off, these guys are quick to respond.

Pieces of art are all around campus showing the great potential of Bridgewater’s students.

The new courtyard between the Campus Center and the Library makes for a nice reading area between classes.

A view of Boyden Hall, but at a different angle that not all students might see.
A family walks through the center of town.

This cop makes sure that all students are safe from crime, and especially those cars.
A new addition of buildings, bus routes had to be changed, and brought out new routes, and new stops, well equipped with benches and a nice place to be when it's raining out.

The Campus Center Cafe provides resident and commuter students as well as staff members meals all day long.

With the new addition of buildings, landscape had to be added to make the campus look beautiful all throughout the campus.

Special Moments
Convocation

President Mohler-Faria’s first convocation of his Presidency was one to remember. The new College Marshall, Dr. Wayne Phillips was announced. Class President from 1983, Representative Peter J. Koutoujian was the feature speaker who spoke to the students with inspiration and his sometimes hysterical pep talk. He reminisced how he didn’t work as hard as he could have, but now years later, and with some luck, he went through law school and now is a Representative.

President Mohler-Faria then presented the medallions to honored faculty for twenty five years of service to Dr. Joel Litvin and Dr. Robert Frederick. President Mohler-Faria also acknowledged all faculty and staff present, which was the breaking Convocation tradition.

Class president, Rebecca Marshall left the day on a good note saying, “As we leave convocation, thank a member of the faculty or staff who touched your life in some way or made a difference. Let’s use this one chance [as seniors] to make BSC the best it can be.”
A little piece of history went down on campus on Friday, October 18, 2002. Dr. Dana Mohler-Faria, lifelong resident of Onset, Massachusetts, and an impressive 11 year campus resume, was officially inaugurated as the President of Bridgewater State College. Fittingly, with his 11 years of service to the Bridgewater campus and community, it can be seen as ironic that he has become the 11th President of the college. The lifelong friend of Mohler-Faria, Dr. Donald Monteiro took to the podium and let the audience know what sort of journey it has been for the new president, and how he received help along the way from his family and friends. Finally, when Mohler-Faria spoke, he stressed his "Journey to Excellence" by placing emphasis on nurturing what he referred to as BSC's three most precious resources, "Our community, our people, and our campus." All in all the new president stressed that this is not a journey he will make alone, "We will band together to find comfort and strength as we face the uncertainty of a future that lies before us." In closing, Mohler-Faria "happily accepted" the responsibilities of his office. "As or your native son, I come to serve you, not to be served by you...not to be ministered unto, but to minister."
State Representative David Flynn relayed his happiness for the new President and entrusted him with confidence with the care of BSC.

President Mohler-Faria rises to the podium to address faculty, staff, students and family.

BSC’s choir sings the school song to end the ceremony.

President Emertius Adrian Tinsley passes her medallion to President Mohler-Faria.

Christie Sears enjoys the day in the sun, all before going to one of her last classes of the semester.
Winter Commencement

This was the first commencement where the new president of the college, Dr. Dana Mohler-Faria, presided. This year’s winter commencement, held on January 31, featured for the first time ever at Bridgewater, the awarding of honorary degrees to a father and daughter. Dr. Beverly Daniel Tatum, president of Spelman College in Atlanta, GA, the commencement speaker, and native of the town of Bridgewater, was presented with an honorary Doctor of Intercultural Relations degree, while her father, Dr. Robert Daniel, professor emeritus at Bridgewater, who was the first African-American to be appointed to the full-time faculty of Bridgewater in 1959, received an honorary Doctor of Public Education degree. Dr. Tatum said that graduation is, “a time when people ask a lot of questions about future plans ... some graduates find these questions annoying because they don’t have a plan just yet. Others have an immediate answer.” She concluded her speech with “may each of you find for yourselves that place where your deep gladness meets the world’s deep need.” Student speaker, Kathryn Stone of Marshfield spoke on the lessons learned here at BSC. “We have learned invaluable lessons here, and these lessons will allow us to move on and become successful as teachers, scientists, managers, artists, historians and so much more. But we have also learned many valuable lessons of life. Bridgewater has prepared us to accept responsibility, embrace diversity and work with change.” Kathryn also urged her fellow graduates to “take these lessons out into the community and teach others. Know that wherever you go, and whatever you do, you can and will make a difference.”
Overcast skies and cool temperatures did not dampen the spirits of the more than 950 graduates who received undergraduate and graduate degrees during the 162nd Spring Commencement ceremonies. In President Dana Moler-Faria's first spring commencement, he defined the journey of excellence he has so often referred to during the first year of his presidency. "It's about learning from your mistakes, but never letting them suffocate the true champion inside of you."

Former Maryland Gov. Dr. Parris N. Glendening, told the graduates during his keynote address to consider the noble cause of public service and become this century's greatest generation.

David Lentini II of Bridgewater gave the student address in which he asked his classmates what they would like to say to the audience. Their collective response was thank you. "Thank you to the parents that believed in the value of an education and made sacrifices on their behalf. Thank you to the professors that challenged their mind and impassioned their spirit. so today, on behalf of the class of 2003, I would like to thank all the 'villagers' that helped raise these 'children'.

Space Shuttle Columbia

The seven STS-107 crew member take a break from their training regimen to pose for the traditional crew portrait. Seated in front are astronauts Rick D. Husband (left), mission commander; Kalpana Chawla, mission specialist; and William C. McCool, pilot. Standing are (from left) astronauts David M. Brown, Laurel B. Clark, and Michael P. Anderson, all mission specialists; and Ilan Ramon, payload specialist representing the Israeli Space Agency.

Trailing a twisting column of smoke, Space Shuttle Columbia hurtles toward space on mission STS-107. Following a flawless and uneventful countdown, liftoff occurred on time at 10:39 a.m. EST.

President George W. Bush addressed the crowd on the mall of the Johnson Space Center during the memorial for the memorial for the Columbia astronauts.
To Dr. Glenn Miller

Where to begin? I suppose where most BSC students begin when they talk about Dr. Miller. Human Geography, GS-11. Everyone ended up taking this course. "Stupid GER's", most students would grumble on their way to a class that had nothing to do with their major.

But once they got into Dr. Miller's classroom, this particular GER wasn't so bad. Some students, some with chosen majors, some 'undeclared' as I was, made the jump to the Earth Sciences and Geography department because they sat in Glenn Miller's classroom. Because they appreciated the sense of humor he brought to his lessons. Because you knew just to listen to him that he loved his career and his field of expertise.

Dr. Miller was, by his own admission, a 'visual learner'. He said he grasped an idea better and quicker if he had a vision to put to it. A picture or a video. And so it was that the Glenn Richard Miller came to be the sole reason that Xerox has stayed in business for so long. Many of us speculated that he owned a majority of stock in the company. There was a handout for everything.

I recall in the Human Geography course, he taught a lesson on how ideas spread over time and space, from one group of people to another. He used rock 'n' roll as an example. The sheet was a question and answer format. Where did this start? He listed a place. Who did it appeal to? He listed an age group. Further down the sheet a question asked 'was there any hindrance to the spread of this idea?' The response was 'Certainly, my parents.'

Halloween was a special time of year for Dr. Miller. In the fall of 1994 Halloween was the day before the class I had with him. He brought in his costume the next day to show everyone who had missed out. His costume was a black sweat suit with orange and yellow pieces of tape all over it. some solid lines, some dotted and there were small stuffed animals safety pinned all over it. He held this up with a smile on his face, very proud of his creation and waiting for someone to guess what it was he had dressed up as. After some mumbling among the students who were clearly confused by this sight, he announced to us, "I went as roadkill!" The year following, Dr. Miller walked into the classroom on Halloween dressed as a cow. A full udder, complete with udders hanging off the front and a horn between his head. After the initial laughter subsided, he announced to the class, "Today's lesson is beef teriyaki." Dr. Miller was many things, but a vegetarian was not one of them.

I would say my fondest memories of Dr. Miller are from our class trip to Chicago for the Association of American Geographers convention in March of 1995. The convention happened to fall during BSC's spring break. Since Dr. Miller had never missed a convention, he wanted his students to take the opportunity to experience one as well. He lobbied the administration to help subsidize the trip and he convinced the school to view this trip as an education one and therefore worth three credits toward graduation as if it were a regular semester-long course.

A group of us went to Ed Debevic's for lunch one day, the joke is that the wait staff is rude to everyone, it's their gimmich. Everyone is in costume... well, almost everyone. We notice a waitress who appeared to be about 8 months pregnant and our group debated back and forth whether she was really pregnant or it was a costume. As we were setting the bill our waitress was standing nearby speaking to the is-she-or-isn't-she pregnant waitress. Dr. Miller, being quite sure it was in fact a costume, spoke up.

Dr. Miller: "Excuse me, could you settle an argument for us?"
Our Waitress: "You wanna know if she's really pregnant, right?"
As Dr. Miller started to nod yes...
Other Waitress, with a snippy tone; "Which idiot thinks I'm not?"
OK, argument settled.

And of course, dinner at the Hard Rock Cafe. Having dinner and sharing laughs was all fine and well, but the highlight was after dinner checking out the memorabilia on display. One of my favorite pictures from the trip was taken that night. Drs Miller and Domingo, BSC's own Glimmer Twins, worshiping a statue of Mick Jagger.

I recall quirky little things about him, the word karaoke. He didn't say it kah-ree-o-kee. He said kuh-ro-kee. At first I didn't know what he was talking about. When a few of us tried to get him to adjust his pronunciation, we quickly found he was happy with his own.

It's strange. Obviously condolences should be offered to his family and friends, but there's another group I feel I should offer my sympathy to. All the students who passed through Bridgewater and didn't take the opportunity to sit in Dr. Miller's classroom and all the future BSC students who will never even get the chance. Pardon the cliche, but they don't know what they're missing.

I was never a straight A student, but regardless of what grade I got, I enjoyed every class I had with Dr. Miller and recommended him to everyone. I feel so lucky to have known him. I have only good memories of him, I will think of him fondly, and I will miss him terribly.
To Mary-Ellen Chartrand:
Dear Mary-Ellen,
We are so very proud of you and your accomplishments. There are two lasting requests that we hope to have given you—one is roots and the other is wings. Reach for the stars.

To Corinne Michelle Sirianos:
Dear SBH,
Alas, you've done well in this stage of your growth. You've made us very proud! The resources you've now acquired with your education will serve you well going forward. Now you must continue to soar and reach far beyond the dreams you now have. The piece you've become will somehow be woven into the very fabric of our society enhancing it in a very special way that only you could create. Again, I say 'Do Well!' With Love

To Benjamin Sable Katz:
We have given you roots, now spread your wings and soar with the eagles. We are proud of you, and the gentle, kind and intellectual man you have become, our hearts are filled to overflowing. May life take you on great adventures, and like ET, phone home! Love, Mom and Dad

To Andrew Carmine Fuccillo:
You did it Andy, Praise the Lord! Soccer 34, Football 5, Diving 3 4 5, Track 3 4 5, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, BSC Athlete of the Year 2003, "With God all is possible" Mark 10:27

To Jeff Brems:
Congratulations Jeff! All your hard work paid off. We know it was difficult to keep up with classes, play football, and work, but you did it. You are the first in our family to graduate from college and we are all very proud of you. Love, Dad, Mom, Terry and Andy
Without the help of many individuals, this book would not be possible. First and foremost, I would like to thank my staff. Lucy Cook and Erin Dominov, I appreciate all your hard work and dedication. Second, I would like to thank Norval Garnett of Jostens’ Publishing for your never-ending support and constant encouragement. I would also like to thank Caren Korin of Davor Photography for your time and effort. Third, I would like to thank the Comment, or more specifically Michael Long for his help on articles about activities around campus used throughout this book, and of course Pat Hogan who made coming to the office every day a delight. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank the Student Activities Office for all their support, especially Cindy Kane and Jim McKellar, your constant support and dedication to help me has not gone unnoticed.
A Letter From the Editor

For starters, this is probably the hardest page that was done in this entire book. There is never something perfect to say at just the right moment. You may think you know exactly what to say, and how to say it, and when to say it, but do you really know? For the last nine months, I’ve known that I would have to write this letter, but no ideas have ever flown to my head. Believe me, I wanted to fill this space with just more pictures, but I’m sure you all have you memories from all your friends that you would like to cherish too.

I would like to say, Congratulations to all the Seniors, and that we’ve made it, but alas, I’m not graduating until next year. But none the less, the Congratulations are for you! You’ve made it, and now you’re in the real world. Don’t forget your past, but don’t forget to look ahead to your future. Hopefully now you’re one step closer to achieving your eternal goal. Everyone in life needs goals, because without them, what are you trying to go for?

Always remember what brought you here today. Moving in freshman year with the 700 or so Freshman into the “Hill.” I’m sure you all have your horrid stories from that year. Wearing shower shoes wherever you went in the building, trying to get to class all the way on the other side of the campus in less than ten minutes, because when you were making your schedule, you had no idea where any of the buildings were. Remember all the late night talks with your friends, and all of the delivery orders you had. Remember that first college final you had, and how you felt afterwards. Remember about all the parking situations that has gone on through the last four years. There is so many other different situations that I’m sure run through your mind as your college career is coming to a close.

Now look ahead. You’ve taken your last final exam, no more parking problems (well at school anyways). You’re planning your life now, and plan well, and if things don’t work out to what you would like, you have every right to change your way, and go another direction. You have your friends and family there to support you in anything you want to do. Just look on how you’ve accomplished college! You’ve made progress in what you want to do with your life, just keep continuing on, and you’ll accomplish anything. No dream is too small to look for. If you have the courage to get this far, you surely have enough for the next step! You are now at the end of one of many journeys, and another gate is now opening to embark on. I hope the success you have today brings tomorrow’s achievements.

Once again, Congratulations to all you Seniors. Good luck in the real world, and I’ll see you all there soon!
