The grounds in front of Boyden Hall are always a sight to see.

Many events, including all student plays and dance recitals, are held in the Campus Center Auditorium.

DiNardo Hall is one of many residence halls on campus.

The tree-lined path in front of Boyden Hall is one of many scenic passages around campus.
Bristo, the college mascot, stands guard in front of Kelly Gymnasium before being damaged and removed from his long-time post.
Over the summer, construction started on the new Office of Student Involvement and Leadership as well as the Office of Multicultural Affairs. The staff moved into their new quarters in the fall.

This view of the Conant Science Building was photographed from the Campus Center.

Tillinghast Hall houses one of the three cafeterias on campus as well as faculty offices.

The Program Committee advertises for one of the many events held on campus.

The college proudly displays the American flag.
There are so many buildings on campus. Can you find your way around to all of them?
Can you guess whose feet these are? Yup, they’re Brisco’s before the mascot was damaged.

Boyden Hall has many classrooms and the President’s office. On many nights, you can see President Mohler-Faria working late.

Parking is always an issue at BSC. These signs do not help the situation.

We have beautiful landscape all around campus. This tree being Scott Hall provides shade on summer days.

The west side of campus has a basketball court for student recreation.
On summer nights, students dip their hands through the water to cool off.
There is a building behind all those trees, and it's Pope Hall.

Boyden Hall, with its large columns, is photographed often.

The windows invite all to see the entire front hall of the Campus Center Auditorium where many plays and dances are held.

The Adrian Rondileau Campus Center houses the Office of Student Involvement and Leadership as well as the Commuter Cafe.

The newly painted crosswalk helps solve some of the resident parking problems.
Dear friends,

I was very excited to learn that our students had selected the theme of “Piecing Together the Future” for the 2004 yearbook. Throughout my long career in higher education, I have always maintained that the college learning experience should be one that helps students to not only find value in one another as human beings, but to appreciate the many gifts and responsibilities that come with living in a free society.

As Bridgewater State College’s president, I am very proud of all of our students for their enduring commitment to community service, their participation in student government, their contribution to a vibrant campus life, their athletic prowess and sense of sportsmanship, and their many artistic and cultural expressions. What’s even more inspiring to me personally is that our students dedicate themselves to these endeavors while never losing sight of their studies and their families.

This yearbook chronicles the life of the senior class from opening day to graduation. Contained in the words and pictures on the pages that follow is the story of a group of individuals who have come together and remained focused on their mission of growing into a new generation of leaders. I am very confident that BSC has prepared them exceptionally well for the world of the 21st century.

Many years from now, when these same students are looking back on their long careers and the unique contributions they’ve made to our world, I can only hope that they’ll remember Bridgewater State College as the place in which they first “pieced together” that bright future.

Sincerely,

Dana Mohler-Faria
President
On any given day, students are playing basketball next to the tennis courts.
Students coming back for more education still get involved on campus. Whenever there is an outside event, WBIM is our music source.

Playing Frisbee barefoot is what this student likes doing best.

Adam Farina rolls up some cotton candy for the next customer.

The Comment editor, Jennifer Cunningham, is all smiles while trying to draft writers for the newspaper.
Eager for their next class to start, these students wait outside Harrington Hall.
An old pastime, Hacky Sack, is still played around campus.

Everyone is all smiles at the Homecoming football game.

Trying to figure out the last question to their take-home math exam, these students look to their calculators for help.

Gamma Phi Beta girls are all about school spirit.

Jen Nickerson and Kristy Myers smile as their Theta Phi Alpha sister is named Homecoming Queen.
All dressed up, and nowhere for this Club to go!
These girls are ready to join in the parade around town!

And who might this fine gentleman be?

Taking a trip around campus, this Cat in the Hat has an easy job!

All dressed up and nowhere to go, what are this mermaid and fish to do?

This group gets together for one last pep talk.
Special Moments
Special Moments
The Convocation ceremony was the first event symbolizing the senior students’ transition to the next year. Students were challenged to seize their opportunities from everyday actions by speaker Suzanne Condon. Ms. Condon also shared her hopeful process of writing a term paper offered powerful training for life after graduation. "The skill sets required in this particular scenario are risk assessment, risk communication, and consequence management," which all apply in her daily job in reviewing public health issues related to environmental pollution.

Following Ms. Condon’s speech, Student Trustee Traci Atkinson, ’04, told her fellow students to hold on to the good times at Bridgewater State College and use them as stepping stones for the future. She also said, "It's great to be so close to the finish line, but make sure you take advantage of the few precious months we have left here."

The Chairman of the Board of Trustees, David B. Jenkins, spoke about receiving a diploma, saying, “it’s not a membership card to a better lifestyle, but rather an expression of your commitment to take an active role as a thinking member of society.”

Finally, President Dana Mohler-Faria concluded the ceremony with “the only thing we ask is that when you arrive at the place you want to be, you take a second look back at how you got there. You’ll undoubtedly see many different stepping stones representing the various waypoints of your journey. We hope that ours - the time you spent at Bridgewater - is one that figures prominently in your moment of reflection.”

More than 500 undergraduate and graduate degrees were awarded at the 18th annual Winter Commencement exercises, held January 30th, in the Adrian Rondileau Campus Center Auditorium. The keynote speaker, BSC alumnus Dr. David A. Sousa, '60, described how the college prepared him for a career studying the human brain at work and its implications for the teaching profession. He also expressed how his graduation from BSC was especially meaningful, because he was the first from his family to attend college. He also shared some memories of BSC, including his assignment to drive Dean Ellen Shea's car to pick up poet Robert Frost in Cambridge and bring him to campus for a convocation speech. Dr. Sousa concluded his speech by asking the first-generation college graduates to stand for applause. "Here's the most important thing Bridgewater taught me. Where you come from is not as important as where you're going, and although I deeply appreciate the honors that Bridgewater has given to me, the honors are really for those whom I represent."

President Dana Mohler-Faria told the graduates they were entering a world that holds potential for magnificence but is increasingly marred by danger and deceit. "But don't despair. The only way to overcome the challenges of our world is to keep pushing back the walls of that comfort zone. Don't let them collapse on you by remaining motionless in the center of your own universe. Be quick to engage with people who are not like you. Participate in activities that are unfamiliar. Take the risk of approaching your environment in an entirely new way. Seize the opportunity to understand alternative ways of thinking. Get to really know your fellow man. And realize that the power of change lies in your hands."

Ms. Katherine Bolcome was the chosen student speaker, and she discussed her experiences at BSC. "Together we scraped snow off our cars using cookie sheets and dust pans in last year's and this year's blizzards, lit candles in memory of our beloved mascot, Bristaco, and came together to share screams of 'Cowboy Up.' At the same time, we survived the tragedies of September 11 together, mourned the deaths of close friends, and came to terms with defining moments as we realized the injustices of this world. And when you think you've reached difficult times, make yet another choice, the most important choice: to take the better way."
Springfest
Cloudy skies and cool temperatures did not dampen the spirits of the more than 960 graduates at Bridgewater State College’s 163rd Spring Commencement ceremonies held Saturday, May 22. The graduates, who hail from 186 communities in Massachusetts and nine states, were congratulated on their success by administrators, faculty, friends and family. The theme that resonated throughout the ceremony was creating a ‘commitment to community.’

Dr. Dana Mohler-Faria, president of Bridgewater State College, addressed the graduates with his “Tale of Two Students,” which looked at the very different life experiences of two students and the common thread they have come share as Bridgewater State College graduates. He reminded the graduates the important role education plays in a meaningful society. “On a spot not far from where I stand today, Horace Mann, the founder of this college once said ‘Education, beyond all other devices of human organization, is the great equalizer of the conditions of men’.”

The theme of ‘commitment to community’ continued in the keynote address given by Dr. Sonia Nieto, a professor of education at the University of Massachusetts Amherst and a teacher for 35 years, who told graduates to “love beyond your own four walls.”

“I believe we’re burdened in this day and age with a dreadful focus on ‘me-ism’—a focus that’s self defeating and that may ultimately rob our society of its sense of community,” said Dr. Nieto. “Love, in its more honorable and unselfish sense, means loving not only ourselves and our families, but also our neighbors, our environment, our nation and our world—to help make them the best they can be.”

Mr. Admar Semedo of Brockton, in his student address, encouraged graduates to make a positive difference in the lives of others.

“Each one of us has our own vision of what the world and especially our society should look like, but few of us have the resolve to do something about it. The change you wish to see can only happen if you take the initiative to make that change yourself,” said Mr. Semedo. “I urge you to go into the world and do your full duty as a productive citizen of our democracy. If you uphold your obligation to society by voting... by committing yourself to public service... and by improving your community... your duty to society will be fulfilled.”

Residence Life
Twonewfriends show just how to relax on a nice spring day.

Staff photographer Andrea Patton is all smiles with her roommates, Anna Takahama and Theresa Wood, when her work is finally done.

These three students show that living in a forced triple isn't always so hard.

Amber Brake, Mark Eberle, Sam Arena and Andrew Slazenik relax after taking their first college exam.
Ann Magg, Carly Chamberlain and Jennifer Poitras chat away in the hall. Hmm...I wonder what they could be talking about? Hmm...

Lauren Konich is hard at work and trying to get her studies done so she can have some free time.

Megan Duffy proudly displays her new straw hat while roommate Lindsay Rich smiles approvingly.

Brandon Phinney plays his newest X-Box game while his girlfriend Jen Giguere watches him in awe.

These two students play poker games and drink Diet Coke to get rid of some of their stress.
Amanda, Nicole, Jessica, Bonnie and Danielle all show that when living next to each other, there is never a dull moment.

Jen Holcomb just woke up from a really good dream.

Randall Bartsch is very comfortable watching TV on that big old couch.

These two roommates, Jenn Hemenway and Lindsey Steele pose for a photo before heading off to class.
Leng Ly tries to get all her work done before going to a sorority event.

Mike O'Donnell is happy to get a break from writing his longest research paper.

Kadian Phillips rests for a minute after practicing her newest dance moves.

Nap time! Lindsay Rean, Anna Brang and Kerry Alvsey wind down after a long day.
Melissa Punto, Courtney Talbot, and Jessica Doyle are all smiles after a successful PC event!

David Larocque is happy because he has found the real Santa—Douglas Glenn Dalrymple!

Daniel James guards his door so nobody can see his messy room.
RA Amy Beckerman smiles because her floor is finally quiet at night!

Surprise! Jessica Hemingway is always happy to have visitors.

Rae Beth Anderson and Katie Whyte huddle together at a computer to surf the net.

It's nice that this couple can relax on the couch after a long day.
Wow! Look at all those pictures on the wall! Sheila Kane and Katie Boeteher must not have liked the bland white walls.

Alyssa Cooke stands guard by her door in one of those wandering males enter her room.

Katie Mattes and Sarah Lane are on their way out the door to go work out at the gym.
Laura Coffin is heads out the door to go clubbing in Boston!

Jessica Wentworth and Cathy Goulet want to show everyone how they love living together.

Jennifer Anderson and Megan Cote proudly show off their crazy lamp and a very artistic room.

Karisa Browne displays her artwork on her door.

Awww...look at those curtains. They make the room look like the residents' home away from home.
These students are quite happy after the Red Sox beat the Yankees!

Getting a little practice in before a game, these lacrosse players enjoy a beautiful day.

Andrea Cabral gets ready to head off to work.
After their room is finally clean, Lisa Letroneau and Jen Mottora can smile knowing that they can go out tonight.

Paul Lallier and Chris Denden rest after a long one-on-one game of basketball.

These students get ready to go out for a long run to get in shape and release some stress.
Katie Burke and Jen Baron head out to go a big concert in Boston.

Davey Eton concentrates on his PlayStation racing game.

Shelby Wellington and Jenn Walsh go to visit their sisters.

Greg Brillon looks up from his latest research assignment.

These DiNardo students like to go look outside on a nice day.

Sheri Folsom talks on the phone with her boyfriend.

Jen Hamilton grins as she completed her final online quiz.
SRA John Pine helps RA Chris Mettle with his floor project.

Lindsay Hanson and Kristy Myers are happy knowing that their final year is almost done.

Justin Campbell gets ready to go to track practice.

Micha Martin tries to finish her paper that is due in less than an hour.

Alii Surette is relieved knowing that she has taken her last test of the year.
Adam Stoddard watches what's going on in the apartments.

Kevin Ouellet will be climbing into his bed for a nice long nap.

Justin Gorman researches flight info for his spring break trip... ...while his suitemate, Brian Sweeney, can't wait for the vacation!
Tomomi Nakamura finishes her last drawing assignment.

Campus Police Officer Gordon Delmonte interacts with all the residents.

Over the weekend of December 6th and 7th, as much as 30 inches of snow fell in the area. Boston measured its snowfall at 16.9 inches, Providence 17 inches. In Beverly, 32 inches of snow were recorded.

Early on, there was some debate as to whether or not the first big storm of the season was a blizzard. According the U.S. Weather Service, a blizzard is characterized as a severe storm with strong winds, heavy snowfall and extremely cold for a duration of at least three hours.” It defines the strong winds as having to be of 35 mph. Based on these qualifications, the storm we all endured was, in many places, an official blizzard.

“"To have something like this in early December," said Rob Gilman, director of the New England Weather Service on December 6th," when you combine the amount of precipitation, the strength of winds and the duration of the event -- that would be once in 50 years." While now -- nearly a week later -- some meteorologists would the debate the statement, many would not. In any case, a margin of error in snow forecasting is to be expected.

According to weather.com, snow forecasting, while better than it used to be, is one of the toughest challenges facing meteorologists.

Bridgewater State College students were sure to celebrate after Adam Vinatieri put one through the uprights for the Patriot’s second Super Bowl victory in three years. More than 300 students gathered around the Miles-DiNardo courtyard. Chief of Police David Tillinghast stated, “the crowd was boisterous, but law-abiding at first.”

However, later on, several members of the crowd set off fireworks. Some in the crowd were bothered by the hustle and a “fistfight broke out among 25 individuals or so.” The chief also noted that alcohol was a definite factor in these incidences. No one required medical attention after the celebration, according to reports, and the majority of the crowd was dispersed almost immediately after police arrived at the scene. Also occurring after the Patriot’s win was an alleged assault and theft of a Tom Brady life-size cutout, resulting in one person being taken into protective custody for alcohol incapacitation.
Massachusetts bans gay marriage, approves civil unions
By Danielle Brown

The Massachusetts Legislature approved a constitutional amendment that would ban gay marriage but legalize civil unions. The amendment must be approved—unchanged—by the 2005-2006 Legislature in order to pass, and would then go to the voters in 2006. The amendment contradicts the ruling of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, which ruled in November (and again in February) in favor of same-sex marriage.

The amendment defines marriage as “only the union of one man and one woman,” although it also provides for “civil unions for same-sex persons” that would receive “the same benefits, protections, rights, privileges and obligations that are afforded to persons married under the law of the commonwealth.”

Many officials are also upset with the wording of the amendment, which could confuse voters. “We are giving the people a false choice,” said state Rep. Vinny deMacedo (R). “We’re saying ‘No problem, you can vote to define marriage as between a man and a woman, but the only way you can do it is if you create civil unions that are entirely the same as marriage.’”

On the other hand, Joshua Friedes, advocacy director for the Freedom to Marry Coalition in Massachusetts, said that the amendment was unfair. “We’ve seen that even people who are uncomfortable with marriage for gays and lesbians think that same-sex couples should be allowed equal rights. Today’s language makes it utterly clear that equal rights are the last thing that they will receive under this amendment.”

As of May 17th, gay marriage will be legal in Massachusetts despite the passing of the amendment to ban it. As a result, Governor Mitt Romney made a plea for a delay in the Supreme Court’s decision to allow gay marriage; he would like the voters be given the opportunity to vote on the issue before same-sex marriages are allowed to occur. However, Attorney General Tom Reilly refused to take on the case, saying that Romney’s case lacks “legal merit.”

“Mighty” Max Weinberg visits BSC
By Joe Cutrufo

Max Weinberg, leader of The Max Weinberg 7 from Late Night with Conan O’Brien and long-time drummer of Bruce Springsteen’s E Street Band, gave a video clip-laced lecture campus. Held in Horace Mann Auditorium, his presentation lasted almost three hours. He showed clips from his early days with the E Street Band, as well as some comedic numbers from Late Night.

Max also talked about his struggle to make it in music. “It’s so hard,” he said, “and you get to a point when you ask yourself, ‘is this ever going to happen for me?’”

He got his break in 1974 when he tried out for a New Jersey band he found in the classified ads. “I’m glad I said yes,” Weinberg said about when he was asked to join the E Street Band. “In terms of career moves, it was a good one.”

Janet Reno and More
By Jennifer Green

In the morning of March 29th, Janet Reno, the former Attorney General of the United States, was chosen as a speaker for SGA’s spring lecture series. During her lecture, she spoke about growing up, her experience as the first female Attorney General, current issues and life lessons in general to the audience of around 800 students. When asked about the future of third party politics, Reno said that she thinks the decision will be the crossroad of third parties and that this decision will foretell the future of our country. She also noted that she thinks and hopes that she will see a female president of this country in her lifetime.

When asked what she missed most about her position, she said that she “missed the people, both in her career and political appointees.” She “was proud to work with them.” Since she left her position in 2001 when George W. Bush was sworn into office, she has been teaching at Cornell University’s Law School, her alma mater, and at the University of Miami’s Center for Ethics. In the future she hopes to start writing about her experiences and things she has learned throughout her life.

Michael Corr, President of SGA, introduced Janet Reno as “a woman who dared to make a difference.” Reno opened her lecture talking about Will Ferrell’s rendition of her on Saturday Night Live. “It is important that we laugh at ourselves and laugh together” Reno said. “Public service,” Reno explained, “is all about touching lives of others and giving them a chance.” Her speech was very inspirational, telling the audience “you can do anything you really want to if you really want to and if it’s the right thing to do.” She encouraged the audience to fight for what they believe in, and never give up fighting what they believe to be wrong if they care.

“Mighty Max,” as Springsteen called him, left music in 1989 when Bruce broke up the band. He decided to finish college in order to prepare for a career in law.

“All I had was an advanced degree in Bruce Springsteen music,” he said, “and the market for used drummers was slim.”

Although (after a weak performance on his LSATS) he found he was a much better drummer than he was a student, he got into Cordova School of Law in New York, but withdrew soon after. “I stand before you tonight a law school dropout,” said Weinberg.

After a gig with a small mail-order record label, he decided to get back into music. He filled in on drums with the 10,000 Maniacs on a promotion tour and even landed a job with a Broadway production of The Who’s “Tommy.”

Max never played on Broadway though. Shortly after securing the position he met Conan O’Brien on a corner in New York City. “The rest is TV history,” he said.
Coach Peter Mazzaferro wins number two hundred
By John White

Head Football Coach Peter Mazzaferro has been the backbone of the Bridgewater State College football program for the past 35 years. This past Saturday at Swenson Field, he accomplished a feat that has never been done in New England Division III football before; he won his 200th career game.

Mazzaferro began his coaching career at Waynesburg College in 1959. He spent four years there before moving to Curry College in 1963. Mazzaferro came to BSC as an assistant to former coach Ed Swenson in 1968, then took over the head coaching duties in 1968, and the rest is history.

Mazzaferro recalls 1989 and 1999 as the two most special years he’s had at BSC. In ’89, the Bears went 9-0 and won the NEFC championship over Lowell in front of 7,500 people at Swenson Field. In 1999, the team went 10-0 and was able to host an NCAA playoff game. They lost an exciting game 43-38 in front of 4,000 people at Swenson Field.

Many standout players have come to BSC to play under Coach Mazzaferro. He mentioned many, including Rip Charters, a quarterback and kicker from 1987-89. He is currently third in New England in scoring and his jersey is in the New England Hall of Fame. Danny Marr was the quarterback in that fabulous 1999 season. He had 27 touchdowns and ran for 15. Andy Macaione played for the coach from 1997-2000. In that time span he recorded 120 receptions for 2,647 yards and 37 touchdowns. He went on to play Arena Football. It is clear that Coach Mazzaferro never forgets a name. He said many of the players have gone on to become coaches, doctors, lawyers, and school administrators.

Coach Mazzaferro is proud of the football program at Bridgewater State.

“BSC offers team spirit and teamwork,” said Mazzaferro. “Everyone doesn’t touch the football, but it’s more of a unified team sport.”

He also recognizes the prominent alumni program.

“We have such a great football alumni group,” says Mazzaferro. “We have over a 100 (people) come back for the dinner and golf banquet.”

Mazzaferro looked up to his high school football coach as many others do. He played football in high school and college. His desire was always to become a coach, but had a passion for journalism as well. He was a sports writer for his college paper for four years, writing weekly football columns. He taught English for two years in New York before starting his legendary football coaching career.

It was a big change for Mazzaferro coming to BSC. At Waynesburg College, players were on scholarship, football was their job. Mazzaferro recalls his first year at BSC, “One of the players came up to me and said ‘Coach, I won’t be able to make it to one of the games this year, my sister is getting married.’ I couldn’t believe it.”

Mazzaferro has made the adjustment though, and has turned BSC into a great football college.

In 1999, Mazzaferro received the highest coaching honor in New England when he was named the New England Football Writer’s Coach of the Year for Division II-III. In 1996, he was awarded the George C. Carens Awards for outstanding contributions for college football in New England. In 1994, Mazzaferro was inducted as a member of the Bridgewater State College Athletic Hall of Fame.

Although BSC is mainly a commuter college, Mazzaferro believes sports teams unify the group.

“That’s what college football is all about,” said Mazzaferro. “It involves athletes, alumni, students, faculty and commuters.”

He believes it’s not so much personality that makes a good coach, but hard work, dedication and sacrifice, all traits that Coach Peter Mazzaferro has plenty of.
A brief history of the Boston and Yankees

By John Wile

The Red Sox and Yankees are from New York. It can be debated that these two teams are a part of the greatest sports rivalries. With all due respect to other great sports rivalries, Dodgers and Giants, Celtics and Lakers, or the football rivalry on the college level, Michigan and Ohio State, Duke and North Carolina, they really can’t compare. It’s a one, the other, the Red Sox or the Yankees. When the Yankees play Boston, it might as well be a holiday in the U.S. You won’t take the day off, take the weekend off. They are willing to drive 200 miles north or south to watch out one night at Fenway to witness a game first-hand. They plan their entire summer around the Sox-Yankees. The park is electric, with every out, every strike, chants can be heard, whether it’s “Yankeenelly” or “19-18.” The outcome of the series will determine whether a fan will have a great winter, or a miserable one. It will give one side ultimate bragging rights, which team is better, which city is superior. Let us just focus a moment.

The rivalry started in on May 7, 1903. Boston won the first game 6 to 2. In that year, Boston was named the Highlanders and New York the Highlanders. Since then, Boston and New York have played a total of 1,939 games. The Red Sox have won 879 games to the Yankees 1,060.

The Yankees are the team that the rest of the league looks up to. Twenty six world championships, compared to Boston’s meagre five, the last of course coming all the way back in...you know what – I won’t go there – we all know.

The next chapter in this historic rivalry will take place throughout this week in the American League Championship Series. The stakes could be no higher. The winner of this best-of-seven series will move on to play in the World Series, not to mention bragging rights for the winter. Memories will be made.

Why will memories surely be made? Because it is impossible for the Red Sox and Yankees to play a meaningless series. Let me take a look back at some of the many classics.

In 1978, the Sox were home in Fenway Park to play the Red Sox in a one-game playoff to determine who would move on and who would head home. The Red Sox had the lead 2 to 0. Seven outs were all that were needed to be captured. But one swing of the bat by Bucky “Bleepin” Dent changed all that. A three-run-homerun over the 37 foot, 2 inch, left-field wall known as “The Green Monster,” reminded Red Sox fans that the Yankees were the kings, and were not ready to be dethroned.

1999 was an up-and-down year for Red Sox against their foe. During the regular season, Pedro Martinez pitched an absolute gem at Yankee Stadium, giving up a mere one hit all game while striking out 17. Pedro was dominant, electrifying, and carried the team on his back all the way to the American League Championship Series against the men in pinstripes.

Unfortunately, Boston did not fare well against a straight-up better Yankee team. They lost the series 4 games to 1. The one highlight taken from it was Game 3, in which the Red Sox crushed Roger Clemens in a 13-1 rout over the Yankees.

As many of us students can remember, 2000 held a memorable game for the Red Sox. Who could forget what ESPN dubbed “an instant classic” when Boston defeated New York 2 to 0 at Yankee Stadium on May 28th. It was a classic pitching duel between the Red Sox’s former ace Roger Clemens, and present ace, Pedro Martinez. Both pitchers were fantastic, and it wasn’t until the top of the ninth inning, with two outs, that a scoreless tie was broken, thanks to Trot Nixon, who belted a Clemens’s fastball in the right field seats with a man on. The list could go on and on and on.

So here we go, Boston and New York, together again, the way it should be. Boston fans want it, New York fans want it. Yanks fans will be shouting “foget about it” to hopeful Red Sox fans. Boston fans will be crowded along Landsdowne Street in Boston, “wicked excited” that this year, 2003, may finally be the year the Red Sox surpass the Yankees, the year that the curse is broken, the year that finally, finally, Red Sox fans can celebrate a World Series championship.
"The writing of a yearbook is like the creation of a novel. It needs a plot, a climax, and an ending. The plot is the theme of the yearbook, the climax is made up of all the special events, and the ending is graduation. The yearbook is a composite talent - it takes layouts, copy, pictures, advertisements, sales as well as typing and checking and rechecking. To decide what is important enough to be remembered, to make the moments of sadness and joy timeless and relivable in later times, is the job of the yearbook staff.” Anonymous

Thank you to everybody who helped make this edition possible:

My advisors, Karen Callan, Marie Murphy, and Shelby Harris. Without all of your help, there probably would be countless mistakes in here! The three of you were always there giving me support through it all. Thanks for helping make and beat all possible goals I could of set!

My staff, Erin Dominov and Andrea Patton. Your hard work helped me to produce such a magnificent book.

My publisher, Norval Garnett and Jostens Publishing. Your constant support and guidance will never be forgotten.

My photographer, Caren Korin from Davor Photography. Without all your help with trying to promote this book and Senior Portraits, this book would not be out and so full right now.

To Rick Brooks from Jostens Publishing, for helping me create such an outstanding cover, I can’t believe how wonderful it looks!

The Comment and WBIM for their contributions to help remember the times of what was happening in 2003-2004.

The entire staff of the Student Involvement and Leadership Office including Cindy Kane, Pat Hogan, Laurie Duclos and Sally Hall. I’ll miss seeing you guys on a constant basis.

To all my friends that listened to me complain and helped me when I needed that extra boost, you all are truly amazing, and I’m so glad I met all of you! This is to help us remember all those good times! Thanks you guys!
A letter from the Editor

Always remember what brought you here today. Moving in freshman year with the 700 or so Freshman at the infamous “Hill,” I’m sure you all have your boring stories from that year. Wearing shower shoes wherever you went in the building, trying to get to class all the way on the other side of the campus in less than ten minutes, because when you were making your schedule, you had no idea where any of the buildings were. Remember all the late night talks with your friends, all the delivery orders you had. Remember that first college final you had, and how you felt afterwards. Remember about all the parking situations that has gone on through the last four years. There is so many other different situations that I’m sure run through your mind as your college career is coming to a close.

Now look ahead. You’ve taken your last final exam, no more parking problems (well at school anyways). You’re planning your life now, and plan well, and if things don’t work out to what you would like, you have every right to change your way, and go another direction. You have your friends and family there to support you in anything you want to do. Just look on how you’ve accomplished college! You’ve made progress in what you want to do with your life, just keep continuing on, and you’ll accomplish anything. No dream is too small to look for. If you have the courage to get this far, you surely have enough for the next step! You are now at the end of one of many journeys, and another gate is now opening to embark on. I hope the success you have today brings tomorrow’s achievements.

Congratulations to all Seniors!

Remember those first friends you shared your fears with, who soon became acquaintances, those neighbors and classmates, who ended up becoming your closest friends.
Remember those bonding nights, when you never felt closer to a certain person, and that closeness creates ties that never die.
Remember the craziness of the dorm, getting sudden bursts of energy, and looking for people to harass.
Remember pulling all nighters, and never thinking they were as bad as they sounded until you actually lived through one.
Remember bow over breaks you had the chance to step back and really see the friends you made and the memories shared, and you were satisfied.
Remember the times, never forget them, even the little ones can hold the greatest meaning.
Remember to never lose touch with those friends you have made here at college, because you have all changed and grown enormously together, and that is something very sacred to be shared.
Remember you are only here for a short while, the time flies before you realize it, so make it last, make it memorable, make it the best memories that you can carry with you for the rest of your days.
Remember this doesn’t last forever, so never let a day go by without living it to the fullest.
Remember to never let a day go by without a laugh.
Remember to love the ones you love, life isn’t forever.
Remember the laughs, let them echo in the back of your mind.
Remember to love your friends, whether they come, go, love them, or hurt you, never let anyone go.
And always remember, when you leave here after four years you are leaving with much more that you walked in here with.
