The lecture was excellent and the coffee was delicious. All in all, it was a wonderful evening. The next lecture will be on Monday, November 1, at 7:30 P.M., and the location will be announced later.
Rambling through Boston

During the 1970's, the theater scene in Boston was enlivened by the presence of the Poet's Theatre. Although it ran for only eight years, its influence has been felt throughout New England. Founded in 1970 by Mrs. Maddece, it had an original board of directors: Thorton Wilder, Harry Lewis, and Archey Godfrey. Ms. Howes, of this board drew about 1,000 unsolicited submissions. Among the works that drew Ms. Howes' attention was the play "The Trojan Horse", written by the first member of the board, Dora Thomas. Unfortunately, safety-minded fire inspectors closed the theater down in 1958, but plans are in the making for a permanent company to provide the audience with a consistent level of quality.

The present schedule offers experimental theater on Sunday nights, films on Monday and Tuesday nights, and plays on Wednesday nights. As of now, the Atma has been housing various itinerant drama groups. The theater intends, by the end of the year, to have a permanent theater that will provide quality productions on a regular basis.}

How much security is there in grasping a paper cup? Paper cups have no personality, no individualism, no form.

News from SNAFU U.

If you have time, listen to his albums before concert time. His songs are a blending of the traditional ballad and the blues, stamped with the Good Housekeeping seal of approval. Fred, Alice, and all of the rest of the gang at Alice's Restaurant will be waiting patiently for your order. Now comes good news for all, Mrs. DeWolfe has re-organized the theater company with a new board of directors. Their policy which was stated in a recent Boston Globe article, is to use only new manuscripts, which will be given a stage reading, then if the play proves workable, a full stage production. Among those playwrights who will provide us with a chance to hear their work, are: Pat Miller, Peter Gertrude Stein's Gertrude Stein, and others have been applauded by folk audiences everywhere.

The CAMPUS COMMENT would like to congratulate the Class of 1970 on the success of their dance, "A Sophomore Happening" held at 7:30 on October 23 in the Kelly Gymnasium. According to the dance committee, over 200 attended the event. More good news! A new coffee house, called the "Bridge", has opened in Boston. Located at Berkeley and Tremont, it has been an intimate and informal setting. As of now, there are various itinerant drama groups in the area. The club intends, by the end of the year, to have a permanent company to provide the audience with a constant level of quality.

The campus council offers experimental theater on Sunday nights, films on Monday and Tuesday nights, and established theater productions on Wednesday nights. Productions are to be staged "practically", "The Drunkard" and "The Strangler".

The bridge of San Luis Rey has been rejected by the company that constructed the railroad tracks, submitted by the powers that be for the contract to design and build the bridge across the river.

An Urgent Decision
Douglas Keillor

Change is an integral part of our society, but the rate of change is not always in the best interest of the individual, community, or nation. This is particularly true when it comes to education and culture. The current push for technological advancements is rapidly altering the tapestry of society. It is with a great deal of concern that I write this column today. Our knowledge base is expanding at an alarming rate, but our ability to keep up is not. We are now faced with the challenge of educating our children in a world that is constantly changing. It is with this in mind that I urge all parents and teachers to consider the importance of traditional education methods. Our children need to be taught the fundamentals of life, not just how to use a computer.

The Era of Mediocrity
Thomas O'Rourke

The Paladins and the Gothic Philosopher are enjoying the elusive state of "mediocrity". The age of scientific and technological innovation has passed and we now live in the "Age of Mediocrity". As a consequence, we are no longer engaged in the cutting-edge research that defines the "age of great creativity". Instead, we are now stuck in a world of mediocrity. Our society is becoming increasingly complacent and we are no longer striving for excellence. The "Age of Mediocrity" is upon us.

Product or Person

Although many students are uninterested in their studies and their work, and many basic beliefs are the result of the conditioning process, there is no other way to explain the individual's behavior. Social and political attitudes were largely shaped by their parents and the society in which they grew up. It is essential to understand how these attitudes are formed and how they can be changed. We must work to create a society that values the individual and his or her potential.

Students and Faculty

There is a growing consensus among campus students that the "administration" is a barrier to students' progress. There are many reasons for this, including the lack of funding for academic programs, the high cost of tuition, and the limited opportunities for students to participate in decisions that affect them. This lack of participation is causing students to feel disengaged and disconnected from their academic institutions. It is crucial that we work to create a more inclusive and participatory environment on campus.

The College's Response

To address these concerns, the college administration has taken several steps. First, we have increased funding for academic programs and reduced tuition costs. Second, we have created new opportunities for student participation in decision-making processes. Finally, we have implemented new policies to ensure that all students are treated fairly and with respect.

Student Recreation Program Slated

This year, largely through the efforts of Dean Lee Harrington, Dean David Drey, Dr. Mary Mort- saray, and Provost George Lebman, with the assistance of members of the Health and Physical Education faculties, and equipment manager Mr. John Morgan, a student recreation program has begun. The facilities of Bridgewater are now available to BSC students. For the woman, the large gym is available Tuesday and Thursday evenings. For the men, the large gym is available Monday and Wedsday, the small gym on Tuesday and Thursday. The pool is available for both men and women Tuesday and Thursday. For all sports, the open gym is available Monday and Wedsday, the small gym on Tuesday and Thursday. The pool is avail-

StudentRun Roll Record to 3-2 by Bruce Nelson

Following a loss to a powerful Harrington College, the Bears shaved their record to 2-2-0, and their next game will be against Bridgewater.

on Wednesday, October 4, the Bears hosted and were surprised by a young, strong Harrington squad. BSC managed to split the first 10 places with Harrington but after the Bears released their list the first time they had little doubt as to the winner.

On the plus side for Bridge- water was the appearance of Will another freshman, Jack Kelly who had the first BSC pass to finish, Kelly was followed by Bill Sassei and Dave Layton who threw in another fine performance. The pot scores were totaled, Bridgewater came out on the wrong end of a 21-34 score.

Three days later the Bears traveled to Fitchburg to inaugurate their sister college's first venture with a cross country team. Fitchburg provided a good news story for the day for that was the first time the home team had in the lead. Captain Leonard Ambrose of Bridgewater was the race over a 4.2 mile course in 22 min. and 33 seconds and was the last Fitchburg runner to cross the finish line until five BSC men were in.

On Friday night October 6 the Chameleon opened to a capacity crowd who wanted to know what the hippy movement is all about from Tobey and Colleen Carey, a sincere young couple who live in Boston.

Tobey began by asking those who wished to participate in a light discussion to get a deeper awareness of the energy within our bodies and within ourselves.

As this suspension ended, Tobey sat down to a startling sentence. "Hippy is dead," said Colleen. She followed with ideas that impressed him.

However, we did glean some interesting points from the program. The list of students who will be posted in the gym is available.

the multiple creative talents of the individual student or small groups of students who would ordinarily go unnoticed and unappreciated.

Bridgewater needs the Chameleon in town, the energy, the movement, the spirit, and the intellectual aura that the program will bring.
