FANNY SHAPES UP

Because of the omission on campus of the term "disciplinary probation," the editors of the Bridgewater News have decided to investigate Dean Sha for if she would be willing to give the necessary explanation for the cancellation of S.C.A., Weekend Carnival. It has been reported that S.C.A. has made with The Left Bank not to go into the permanent record of the student unless it is suspended indefinitely from the College. If a student is not on disciplinary probation, the following procedure is followed when a student is considered for suspension. This procedure has been agreed upon by the use of the College Community Relations Board. Meeting of March 18, 1967. These minutes have been distributed to the entire college community. This information will be included in the next issues of the college catalog and the college handbook. The following is quoted from these minutes:

"Suspension is considered a very serious matter and it follows the following procedure:

(First) The original recommendation for suspension for disciplinary reasons must come from the President from the Deans of the Colleges.

(Secondly) the case is then reviewed by the President and the board forms an independent judgment on the basis of all the facts available.

Under normal circumstances, a student would not be recommended for suspension unless there was a previous instance or instances of misconduct which had made the student a target of disciplinary probation, or if he acted in a manner so as to threaten the security and safety of others.

If it is in the interest of the community to be as fair and consistent as possible in all cases, it would be on disciplinary probation and his actions would then be accepted as the first instance of misconduct. In all other cases he would be put on disciplinary probation and his parents warned. Certainly so once it would be a forbidden event without serious action. If the reasons for damnation were not laterly so offensive to the college for his student would be able to withdraw from the college and have an opportunity to enter another institution of learning with impunity. Here we would hope to achieve a very successful career.

ANTI-ANTI-ANTICS

The S.C.A. Council has created a committee to establish guidelines for student demonstrations. The chairmanship of John Paul D'Oliveira, S.C.A. Junior Delegate. The Committee consists of Robert Smith, S.C.A. Vice-President, Gerard Kelley, S.C.A. Assistant-Delegate, and Jim Fonseca, S.C.A. Secretary. At the first meeting of the committee, held on March 4, numerous members of the student body and faculty who, hopefully, would represent a cross section of the college, were present and participated actively in the consideration of the committee.

These attending seemed to agree that the general aim of any guidelines established should be to protect the freedom of speech of all individuals or groups involved, no matter what side of a demonstration they may be on. A considerable discussion concerning the precise nature of obstruction, particularly student body or group's freedom of speech should be followed. If this is done, the committee desires the commitment of the college to achieve such a goal.

The S.C.A. Council has now looking into the possibility of getting another group for April.

ELECTION DATES SET

March begins the election season at S.C.A. The following is a list of important election dates:

Nominations which are only cards of intent to run for office in the college and S.C.A. election should be filed on 3" x 5" index cards. Name, college address, telephone number, G.R.M., which will be checked, and the office for which one is running, must be indicated clearly. A candidate, once nominated must agree to be an official candidate; therefore, candidates should see an official candidate for nomination for official nomination.

You are encouraged to run for student government, class or school elections. The campus community is concerned but we have far greater to go than we've come. WE NEED YOU.

Thank You From Mr. Joyal

There's so much I'd like to say, but the pen at times is a poor medium of expression. I can't tell you how grateful I am to all those who care, who visit us, who help us through the long, dark nights and days. The staff here is generous, and we are so grateful to our hospital staff and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital staff and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital and all those who assist in any way. We are all grateful to our hospital and all those who assist in any way.

CAMPUS COMMITTEE
The opinions expressed in the CAMPUS COMMENT are not necessarily those of the college or the general student body.

To the Members of the Bridgewater College Community:

Many of the more curious members of the college community have expressed surprise at a certain, perhaps not entirely unexpected, disquiet over John Newman's most recent review of Mr. B.E. Taylor. It is important to believe that these comments do not pretend to be actual literary criticisms. I find it curious that at one time Roger and I share the same prejudices, in that we both are of the opinion that everything is perfect; yet, at another time have another Roger. Taylor's humorless and malicious attack on Mr. Taylor was attacked by Lotte, Taylor, and I am certain that my import is quite clear. The result was a disquiet over the choice of the new editor-in-chief. With the next issue, the editor-in-chief will be responsible for all literary coverage. He will make assignments, read copy, and, in all respects, be an editor-in-chief.

The executive editor will now become the PR man of the paper. He will be the official representative of the newspaper at all meetings and functions, and as such between faculty, administrators, and students, I will assume these duties.

An attempt is being made at organizing the rest of the staff. Hopefully, this will be done by next week. If all goes well, a new system will begin immediately.

Sincerely yours,
Donna Daley

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Roger Robb's comments on CRASHBOOK in his "Rambling On" column were not the sort of thing I believe to be important discussions of that nature. He claims that CRASHBOOK has been given only the most superficial consideration. I would not expect the New York Times or Saturday Review to show this type of interest in a college literary magazine, but I would expect the literary community to show a more critical view. Perhaps Mr. Robb's comments are intended to be as personal judgments about the work of the magazine as they are of the work of the students. What has been written by 'one of the crowd' is a defense of the magazine and some of the things that are written by the students. We have not seen that delightful comedy called "The Fugitive" in the theater, and I think that it is a good idea to be through with that magazine. It is going to be through with that magazine. It is not going to be through with that magazine.

I am certain that my import is quite clear. The result was a disquiet over the choice of the new editor-in-chief. With the next issue, the editor-in-chief will be responsible for all literary coverage. He will make assignments, read copy, and, in all respects, be an editor-in-chief.

Sincerely yours,
Mark Allen Lockard

VILLANOVA VOCALIZES

The Villanova Singers from Villanova University performed their grand sendoff to a near-capacity audience at BSC. As a whole, they displayed the same singularity of style and an admirable sound as they had displayed in their previous appearance. The Villanova Singers compared to their choral image, the Villanova Chorus, was a focus group composed of other folk groups, a fact evident in the intimate conclave of the lyrics to the song "I Melted at the End of Summer." As a folk group, the Villanova Singers performed with a near-capacity audience at BSC. As a chorus they enjoyed a pleasant turn with their concert. The Villanova Singers receive a pleasant even of applause for their outstanding turn with their concert.

Robert G. Arvold, family supervisor in the French Club, and the Administrators of the Finch Hall School of the College, were among the audience. The sound of the Villanova Singers was a near-capacity audience at BSC. As a chorus they enjoyed a pleasant turn with their concert.

THE PERSISTENCE OF RIOTS

Last summer many major cities of the United States were again shocked by rioting. The White House has shown concern and committees have been formed to investigate the causes of these rioting. President Johnson has also displayed his optimism about them. "We'll have a hot summer," he said, "but we shall get through it." In line with this, the Pentagon has offered several methods to prevent a recurrence of last summer's rioting.

First, the Pentagon has urged the training of special forces to aid the local law enforcement agencies. Other plans include a forum where all rioters will be able to air their views in the best way he can. The plan is completely non-violent. The problem of self-expression, to get to the bottom of it, is what ROBERTS and WINGS will be discussing in a future edition. ROOTS AND WINGS ORGANIZED

A new organization has been formed at Bridgewater, out of what the student of the arts needs. The members of this club are ROOTS AND WINGS and they are organized as a school for need for a year of artistry self-expression. The main focus of this club is ROOTS AND WINGS FINE ARTS ORGANIZATION, and a member of this club will be a school for self-expression. The motto of this club is "Let's Try It Out and Be a School for Need for a Year of Artistry Self-Expression."

For Bridgewater's basketball team, it's been a long dry season. However, BSC vented its frustrations managed to stay close to the Bears. Unfortunately, BSC was not able to hold on to its lead and left the court with a final score of 64-68. Despite the loss, Tom Morris was able to hold on to its lead and left the court with a final score of 64-68. Despite the loss, Tom Morris was the high scorer of the ball game with 27 points. Four other Bridgewater players hit double figures, with Petipas scoring 19, Fitchpatrick had 18, Fitzpatrick had 16, and Petipas had 12. The game was a close match, with both teams playing hard and aggressive play on the part of both schools.

Following the game a buffet dinner was served for the teams and coaches. The following week, Bridgewater played the Northern States University and won with a score of 80-71. On his last visit, because of his previous anti-war activity--he passed...
