The most successful Homecoming yet! 'We should have more times like it around here!'

These are some of the comments that people were using to describe last weekend's Homecoming activities. The festivities began Thursday night with a capacity crowd eating and listening to the sounds of the Orphans at the All College Dinner.

The rally and fireworks came off smoothly and on time at Great Hill. The fireworks display was described by many as the best they have ever seen. The inconveniences arose however, when a slight breeze blew smoke and live embers from the display towards the spectators seated in front of the Great Hill Residences.

This college has seldom seen more enthusiasm than was generated by the Senior Class '50's Hop'. The three hundred people attending took great pains in getting in the mood for the 'Hop'. Bell Bottoms and hot pants were definitely 'in'! Roll-up blue jeans, red lipstick, saddle shoes, tattoos, Bobby sox and leather jackets were the fashionable attire for the evening. Several members of the ISC football team appeared as a street gang. Music for the evening was provided by a group reminiscent of the '50's. The 'go-go' girls present provided additional effects by screaming for the rock n' roll idols of the 50's such as Elvis, PAND FABIAN.

Ernie Naghi, senior class treasurer, told The COMMENT that the evening may not have been a financial success but the enthusiasm it created was worth the money.

Friday night 'The Rascals' appeared in the Student Union Auditorium. The near capacity crowd greeted the 'Rascals' in a subdued manner, many not ready for the appearance of the 'new Rascals'. The 'Rascals' did many of the numbers that brought them to the top of the music world a few years ago, but the appearance of three female vocalists and a new style brought comments from the audience such as, 'Are you sure those are the Rascals?'

Saturday dawned on the Quadrangle without four organizations participating in the montage contest. This year Lambda Delta Phi sorority won first prize for its rendering of the Snoopy characters waiting for the arrival of the Great Pumpkin. The biggest disappointment of the weekend was perhaps the defeat of the Bridgewater Bears by undefeated Curry College of Milton, 13-6. The highlight of the football game was the halftime show, The World Champion Drum and Bugle Corps, The 27th Lancers of Revere, Mass. captivated the 1,000 fans present with a dazzling display of precision showmanship. Revolving around the Lancers British theme, their performance was marked several times by thunderous ovations, with their exit from the field being marked by a sustained standing ovation from both sides of the field.

The Rascals were expected to perform again on Saturday night but were unable to do so. The concert proceeded with no major incidents.

The kegs were tapped for the Beer Blast which began at 4:30pm and the weekends activities were culminated by the S.U. Program Committee's 'Gay Nineties Night.' The Ballroom was filled to capacity and were entranced by lively music of the Banjo Stompers. Each person attending was provided with a straw hat and all the peanuts and pretzels he could eat to set the mood for the drinking. The vital statistics for the evening: 500 people in attendance, 13 kegs of beer consumed as well as several fifths of whiskey, scotch, vodka and gin. 400 pounds of peanuts and 60 pounds of pretzels.

One of the comments about the evening was, 'If you had any four people up their playing banjos we would have had a good time with all that booze flowing!'

MURTON:
Critical of an Attica riot.

Tuesday, October 19th, Mr. Tom Murton spoke in the S. U. Ballroom. A qualified speaker on prison conditions and reform, Mr. Murton received his doctorate in criminology at Berkeley, has been in charge of two prisons and has co-authored a book with Hilde Hyams entitled, ACCOMPLICES TO THE CRIME. Mr. Murton is presently a professor at the University of Minnesota.

Murton spoke briefly about the history of the prison stating that the penitentiary concept originated in America 200 years ago. Urged by the Quakers as an improvement over capital or corporal punishment, the American prison system has passed through various stages stress ng persistence, rehabilitation, reform and finally medical treatment of crime as an illness.

Murton spoke of various California incidents of atrocity, shootings at Icicle and the regular weekly stabbings at San Quentin; he then noted that California is said to be the most progressive state of all state prison systems.

Murton pointed out that nowadays there are only two situations which allow for the shooting of a prison inmate; when the inmate is trying to escape, or his actions endangering the lives of other inmates. Examples of violence at prisons such as Ohio State, Tomio and Kean State were found hard to justify according to Murton.

The men in charge of prisons, Murton said, are often men who have no other qualification that they can successfully use violence to quiet prison uprisings. Murton used Kansas State prison as an example, saying that the head of the prison was put in charge after successfulully leading State Troopers in a move to stop a riot. Kansas State prisoners later reacted to self-mutilation as a means of protesting. These incidents temporarily shook the American public who "people get excited," Murton said, until the late movie comes on.

Murton found fault with the solution to the Attica riot. First, Murton said, there was no such a riot, had Oswald responded to the prisoners list of grievances the riot might never have occurred.

He went on to criticize the committee chosen to talk with the prisoners claiming it that the members were too many and had only two things in common, good intentions and a vast ignorance of penology.

Basically, Murton stressed a need for a new prison system. He claimed that the prison system today is based on two grave misconceptions; first is the idea that a person, having been imprisoned for some small crime, is not ready to go out into society. Many persons, therefore, committed to prison for minor offenses end up in the state penitentiary. Second, is the idea that inmates can be reformed by force of their will. Murton believes that inmates should be allowed more self-determination, a chance to have responsibility. He stressed the idea that the inmates want a quiet, effective community too.

Murton spoke for an hour and a half, remaining to answer all questions. He concluded by stressing the need for reform not only in the prisons, but in the whole power structure involved in crime and justice. True reformers aren't welcomed in the system, Murton said, "Governors aren't interested the laws reform, they just don't want trouble known at the prison."
FINANCIAL AID

Bridgewater October 5, 1971--Assistant colleges from thirty institutions throughout the country assembled here Sunday afternoon for the annual meeting of the National Student Loan Fund, Inc., held under the auspices of the National Student Loan Fund, Incorporated. The meeting was attended by more than a hundred students and representatives of the National Student Loan Fund, Incorporated, who gathered to discuss the problems of student financial aid.

The Association of Arab-American Students (AAAS) was named as the second largest group in the country, with the American Society of Arab Students (ASAS) coming in second. The third largest group is the National Association of Arab-American Students (NAAS), with over one hundred members.

The National Student Loan Fund, Inc., is a non-profit organization that provides financial aid to college students. The organization is funded by contributions from individual donors, foundations, and corporations.

Medical Attention Denied Injured

by John W. Hendra

Mayor Charles A. Evers of Mississippi, the first Negro to be elected governor of a state, arrived here Sunday afternoon for an interview with the New York Times. Mr. Evers is on a two-day visit to New York to discuss the problems of the black community with prominent leaders.

Mr. Evers spoke at the New York City College, where he gave a lecture on the subject of black history and race relations in the United States. The lecture was part of a series of lectures given by prominent Negro leaders in New York City.

Mr. Evers is a civil rights leader and has been active in the struggle for civil rights for many years. He has been involved in many important civil rights cases, including the case of James Meredith, the first Negro to attend the University of Mississippi.

Mr. Evers is currently serving as governor of Mississippi, a state with a large black population. He has been a strong advocate for civil rights and has worked to improve the lives of black people in Mississippi.

Mr. Evers is expected to stay in New York City for a few more days before returning to Mississippi.

Prison Reform

Efforts Continue

Washington (WASH.) - While the Federal Bureau of Prisons and the Department of Justice are working on a new plan to reform the prison system, the state of New York has decided to introduce a new plan of its own.

The New York plan would involve the creation of a new system of prisons. The new system would be based on the idea of rehabilitation, rather than punishment.

It Is Past Time For Women To Gain Control Of Their Own Bodies

Sandra Wheeler has been arrested and charged with manslaughter in connection with an abortion.

Women have been killed or seriously injured by abortions in Florida. Since 1973, the first national demonstration demanding women's rights to abortion and contraception has been held. The Women's National Abortion Action Coalition with Nancy Streans, is working in Washington, D.C. to develop and send to the National Park Service.

The proliferation of Sassy's work has increased the demand for abortion services. Women's National Abortion Action Coalition is a national organization that promotes and supports the right to choose.

By joining Sassy's efforts, we can help bring about the passage of a constitutional amendment.

Michener has brought us, in the midst of the mad world of literature. One of the greatest minds of our time is his name, and his name says it all. We must be thankful that he has given us such a rich and wonderful piece of work.)

Jim has tried so hard with such a lovely soul. Not just a mind, not just a body, but the whole person. The whole human being, spread out on the page, the page, the page."

In this story, there is a sense of profound sadness that the author is trying to convey. It is a story of a man who has lost everything, and yet he still manages to find a way to live.

The author has created a world that is both beautiful and cruel. He has shown us the beauty of life, and the beauty of love, but also the cruelty of the world. The story is a powerful reminder of the importance of making the most of the time we have.

The Battle of ADOWA (ADUA)

Supreme Mogal II was for the time to allow little to control Ethiopia. The Italians were eager each other to demand power from foreign powers to produce effects. The Treaty of Ucciali they were the seen country to make Ethiopia in such a way that the Ethiopians decided to make Ethiopia the inhabitants. Menelik asked the people of Ethiopia to support the natives of the country without the support of the enemy. Many were trained and supported with the help of the Ethiopian army which had previously brought back from Italy along with other arms brought from Europe.

Menelik moved his army north and met the Italian forces at Amba Alage and Makale.
The Italian forces decided to make an attack at Adowa, but they were not prepared. They expected the Ethiopian army to attack. (1) They thought the Ethiopian army was not well trained. (2) They thought the Italian army was much larger than the Ethiopian army. (3) They thought that the Ethiopian army would not be able to defeat the Italians. (4) They thought that the Ethiopians would not be able to defeat the Italians. (5) They thought that the Ethiopians would not be able to defeat the Italians. (6) They thought that the Ethiopians would not be able to defeat the Italians. (7) They thought that the Ethiopians would not be able to defeat the Italians.

The Italian forces were surprised by the Ethiopian army and defeated them at Adowa.

The Battle of ADOWA was one of the most important battles in the history of Ethiopia.
Adowa was the turning point in the history of Ethiopia and the beginning of the independence of the people of Ethiopia.
The battle signified peace for the people of Ethiopia. The Treaty of Ucciali, established the boundaries of Ethiopia and the people of Ethiopia recognized that Ethiopia was a sovereign state.

The great victory of Adowa put end to the Italian occupation of Ethiopia. The Ethiopian army, led by Menelik, defeated the Italian forces and ended the Italian occupation of Ethiopia.

The artist attempted to complete the battle in a peaceful manner, highlighting the victory of Ethiopia. The work reflects the beauty and strength of Ethiopia's artistic heritage and achieved a successful combination of realistic representation and artistic execution.

CAN YOU DIG IT?

Can you dig the way he looks at me

Can you dig the way he talks to me?
Can you dig the way he walks to me?

Can you dig the way he put me down?
Can you dig the way he put me down?

I'm tired of this
I'm going to get myself together and do something about it.

Can you dig it?

The Italian defeat at the Battle of Adowa was one of the greatest victories in the history of Ethiopia. Adowa became a long remembered symbol of the love of freedom of the people of Ethiopia. The Italians signed a peace treaty which finished the Treaty of Uccialli, established the boundary of Ethiopia and Eritrea, and recognized that Ethiopia was a sovereign state.

The great victory at Adowa put Ethiopia on the map. Now the rest of the world knew that there was an African country that could not be easily colonized. Representations from many countries came to fight against the great power for freedom with King Menelik.

The artist attempted to portray the battle in a painting. He painted the events and battles of the battle of Adowa in Ethiopia. It was a great honor to be able to paint a battle in Ethiopia. It was a great disaster for the Italian army for about 6,500 men were killed. The Italian army fled toward Eritrea, and, if Menelik had not called back troops for the night, they might have pursued the Italians and killed many more of them.

PHIL JUSSY, now firmly established as Marvin Gaye's number one rhythm section, has come to the fore with his group's latest LP, "Push Push," which is due to be released on May 15th. The LP is a double album, featuring a total of four cuts on each side, and is produced by Herbie Mann.

"Push Push," the title track, is a soulful, horn-driven number that showcases the group's ability to move between genres seamlessly. The LP also features two tracks by other artists, including a duet with Donny Hathaway on "If," and a cover of the classic Motown hit "Never Can Say Goodbye." The latter is a particularly strong cut, with the group's trademark horn section providing a driving rhythm that carries the song through a series of emotional peaks and valleys.

Jussi's production style is unmistakable, with a focus on tight, well-produced rhythms and a strong sense of groove. His use of horns is particularly notable, with the group's horn section providing a driving force throughout the album. The LP also features some of the group's strongest vocal performances, including a powerful lead vocal on "If" by Jussi himself.

Overall, "Push Push" is a strong release that should appeal to fans of soul, funk, and R&B. Jussi's production style is a key selling point, with his ability to seamlessly move between genres and create tight, well-produced rhythms that are both innovative and accessible. The LP is a must-listen for fans of the genre, and is sure to be a hit with both critics and fans alike.

Young Lawyers and Student Power

by M. Howard Geduld

(CPS) As the student power movement shifts the balance of power on many university campuses, it is the students themselves who are determined to wrest power from the administrative establishment. University students are finding new and creative ways to change policies and procedures that do not serve their needs. The proliferation of student-run newspapers, the rise of student unions, and the growth of student organizations represent a shift in the way students view their role on campus. By participating actively in the decision-making process, students are hoping to make their campus a better place to live and learn.

In this article, we will focus on two examples of student power movements: the struggle of Oregon State University students to gain control of their student fees budget, and the battle of the students of the University of Texas at Austin to defend their university against what they see as an attack on its academic freedom and student rights. By examining these cases, we can gain insight into the strategies used by students to assert their power and the challenges they face in doing so.

The students at Oregon State University have been fighting for years to wrest control of their student fees budget from the university administration. They argue that the money from this budget should be used to benefit students and improve the quality of their education, rather than being used for administrative purposes or other purposes that they view as less important. The students’ main tactics have been to lobby state representatives for changes in the law that would allow them to have more control over the budget, and to work with other student unions across the state to build a broader coalition of support.

On the other hand, the students at the University of Texas at Austin are fighting against what they see as an attack on their academic freedom and student rights. They argue that the university administration is trying to suppress their right to speak out and organize, and that the university is trying to limit their access to information and resources. The students’ main tactics have been to lobby state representatives for changes in the law that would protect their rights, and to work with other student unions across the state to build a broader coalition of support.

Both of these cases illustrate the importance of student power in shaping the future of higher education. By working together and using their collective voice, students can make a difference in the way their universities are run, and in the way their education is delivered. It is up to us to support these efforts and to encourage other students to join in the struggle for a better future for higher education.

Student Power

by M. Howard Goldall

(CPS) As the student power movement throughout the United States and the world gathers momentum, it is becoming increasingly clear that the traditional personal struggle to win power through the ballot box is not the only route to victory. As the message of the CPS, the student power movement is advocating a grassroots approach to political action, one that is based on the active participation of the community at large.

Recently, the CPS has been involved in a number of high-profile campaigns, including the successful challenge to the Board of Education's decision to close a number of public schools in the city of New York. The CPS has also been involved in a number of successful campaigns to win concessions for workers and students, including the recent strike by teachers in the city of Chicago.

The CPS believes that true political power can only be achieved through the active participation of the community at large. This is why we are currently organizing a number of new campaigns to address the issues that are most important to the community.

We invite you to join us in this exciting new movement. Together, we can make a difference.

College Colonels

their fifth straight win to start the season last Saturday as they played the Bridgewater State College Bear College Colonels 13-0.

By Jose Soto

Remember that the Bears put the pressure on and the kick was no good. King attempted another easy 11 yard field goal in the second quarter but once again the Bears defense got tough and the kick went off to the side.

But the Colonels bounced back when freshman George Gardiner, a linebacker, picked off a Vince Hickey pass and brought it into Bears territory. Alan Williams capped the drive running into the endzone on a 19 yard end sweep. King kicked the extra point and the Colonels left the goal: this one a ten yarder. Once again the kick was no good.

Throughout the second half the Bears tried to get into the endzone and late in the 4th period were beginning to drive when Willie McKay intercepted a pass and scampered into the endzone to score. The extra point kick was blocked by Jerry Schimmel.

Throughout the game the story was defense. Curry's exceptional defense kept the Bears out of scoring range. The Bears defense, although giving up two goals, kept Curry in the clutch, stopping them 3 times inside the 15 yard line.

The Bears host Nichols College next Saturday at Legion Field. Kickoff time will be at 1:30.
