bridgewater — dr. adrian rondileau made public tuesday, the results of the massachusetts advisory council on education's research report dealing with bridgewater state college and her eight sister state colleges. the report, which is known as the "study," was conducted for m.a.e. by the center for field research and school services at boston college.

the study, which the m.a.e. did not initiate, was commissioned by the i. s. a. c. (the state board of higher education) in 1971. the s.a.c. decided to commission the study because it was concerned about the quality of undergraduate education in the state college system.

the study was designed to evaluate the state college system and to make recommendations for improvement. it was conducted by a team of researchers from the center for field research and school services at boston college.

the study was received with mixed reactions. some criticized it for being too critical of the state college system, while others praised it for providing valuable insights into the strengths and weaknesses of the system.

when the results of the study were released, dr. rondileau, the acting academic dean at bridgewater state college, issued a statement in which he acknowledged the m.a.e.'s findings and expressed his commitment to making changes in the college's curriculum and teaching methods. he also thanked the m.a.e. for its work on the study.

the study's recommendations included increasing the number of courses offered in the arts and humanities, improving the quality of teaching, and making the state college system more flexible to meet the needs of students.

the study also recommended that the state college system should be reorganized into smaller units, each with its own governing board.

in addition, the study called for greater involvement of students in the governance of the state college system, and for more opportunities for students to participate in decision-making processes.

overall, the study was seen as a significant step forward in improving the quality of education in the state college system. its recommendations have been widely discussed and debated, and have served as a catalyst for change in the system.
A class election was held last Tuesday, February 15, for the Editorial Board of the 1973 Yearbook. Much appreciation is extended to all those juniors who participated. The results of this election were the following: Editor-In-Chief - Pamela Murphy; Assistant Editor-Ann Courtesy; Secretary - Sheila Francis; and Travis Dennis. This editorial board is now in the process of interviewing prospective photographers, and will post the final decision. Also, in order of course pictures for the yearbook as well as formal, much has been negated, and it is hoped that all juniors will be thinking of a good candid picture to send into the staff.

At the last meeting, students signed up for their various sections of interest which included the following: Student Life, Faculty and Administration, Organizations, Sports, Literature, Photography, Senior Section, and Art Section. It is hoped that many more juniors will think more seriously about signing up to be in the 1973 Yearbook Staff.

The Academic Standing Committee recommended by the Academic Dean of the Academic Standing Committee at least at the class of the first semester. Dean Harrington exercised his responsibility as Academic Dean and I, my responsibility as President, accepted this decision to be effective, January 1972. This recommendation was accepted by us because the committee had been concentrating most of their time last semester in reviewing the cases of those students who (1) fell below the minimum quality point required of a freshman, (2) had previously been on probation until final disposition was made, or (3) had been on probation during the fall semester.

The Academic Standing Committee recommended at the end of the first semester was made because this system permits the students in the marginal category of grades between 1.0 and 1.5 to remain until the end of the year. They have always in the past been separated automatically without the opportunity for an appeal. The committee has always been the mathematics, it is still possible for them to be in good standing at the end of the year. The Academic Standing Committee was appointed by me in September 1971. The members are: Professor Clifford, Chairman; Professor Fallon, Perry, George, Harris, Keny, Kelly, Schippers, J. Smith, Quindley and Miss Feige.

Forum:

OBSERVATIONS ON SGA

by RANDY COBB

I just returned from this week's SGA council meeting. Specifically, this meeting was held to advance or dispose of various accusers levied against President Weissman. These accusations were made at an informal meeting, Thursday, Feb. 10. In my opinion though, this meeting proved nothing.

My first point is that Mr. Weissman should have no voting powers and yet when it came time to find Mr. Weissman guilty or not guilty on the first accusation, Joel was allowed a vote. It was my understanding that in a trial (as the defense stated this was) the defendant was not part of the jury. By allowing Mr. Weissman to cast a vote he was in essence a part of his own jury. Rightfully after much discussion, Joel relinquished his voting power.

Even so, that vote still stands as record. By the same token, the prosecutor, Tom Gilmartin should not have been part of the jury and should have relinquished his voting power.

Secondly, the question came up twice, what does a two thirds majority constitute? At the beginning of procedures, while Mr. Weissman was able to vote, two thirds of the voting membership was fourteen and by a procedural ruling the voting membership was the same as the standing member.

However, when Mr. Weissman gave up his brief, the membership was reduced from twenty-nine to twenty and two thirds of nineteen. Yet the chair ruled that it was fourteen. Without all mathematical rules of division and taking averages has changed, I fail to see how this figure was arrived at. Of what significance is this thought? Two accusations, when voted upon, were defeated, thirteen in favor of the accusation (that is guilty vote), and six again. Therefore, the ruling of the chair, in essence, pronounced Mr. Weissman not guilty.

Thirdly, and most importantly, each of the charges alone, was justification for stripping Mr. Weissman of his presidential powers. If a council member finds Mr. Weissman guilty of one charge, rightfully he should be removed from that body. This had been the case Mr. Weissman had not been removed from the office.

In the analysis of the trial, the prosecution and defense (in most cases) were right. However, in Mr. Weissman's defense, I found contradictory information, specifically one, about the phone bill. Last week, Joel wrote a letter (10) Mr. Weissman attested to the fact that he made phone calls of a personal nature, which were charged to SGA but this bill be charged.$2.72.

To fact his brother, Mitchell Weissman, "continued" to have made the bill. In fact, just didn't hold water.

By looking at all of those facts in mind, I maintain that Mr. Weissman was indeed guilty of some of the charges. And, to restate, if his guilt is shown in but one case, rightfully he is not, in my opinion, fit to hold the office of SGA President.

By writing this, I do not want to be misconstrued as saying that only Joel is at fault. However, to correct the existing situation, the President must be, or the party, or the one has done the most damage, must be eliminated first. Analogously, I would much rather be a murderer (this is a reflection on Mr. Weissman) put in jail that has a purse snatcher. This is no reflection on any of the council members.

The fact still remains that SGA Council is in a state of confusion. How can this council be efficient and ultimately effective if eleven (tving) council members have mistrust and lack of confidence in their President, as exemplified by the voting record. Before the effective and efficiency can be returned to the Council, the reason for the mistrust must be removed. If I were in Mr. Weissman’s place, I would surely resign by the sheets.

The comment is instituting a council design to provide a vehicle for the various departments to forward any item or cooperate with the cooperation of the department.

The Elementary Education Department is handling this. On Thursday, Feb. 24 a field trip to Old Sturbridge Village. Contact Mr. Thornew.

Campus Information Aid

A WEEKLY INFORMATION COLUMN BY LILLIAN ARBET AND JOHN FRANKLIN.

The following are the questions we received and to which we have been able to reply.

1. I would like to know the procedures concerning overnight car parking on campus. If I wish to keep my car on campus overnight, do I need to purchase a special permit? I wish to have the registration number of the car and the permit numbers.

A. Dean Deep, chairman of Traffic Control says: Any student wishing to keep a car on campus on a Monday night must pay a $2.00 per term fee for a permit. The permit may be purchased in the Student Union office. The permit must be displayed at all times on the car. The car must be registered with the office of the President of Student Personnel.

2. Is there any information on current events that is available on campus?

A. A committee composed of members of the Physical Education staff provides a bulletin board in the Student Union for the exchange of information. The bulletin board is located in the Student Union office. The bulletin board is available to all students. The bulletin board is a useful resource for students to stay informed about current events.

3. I would like to know if there are any parking facilities for residents on campus.

A. Parking space has been allocated for residents on campus. Residents who wish to park their cars on campus must purchase a resident parking permit from the office of Student Personnel. The permit must be displayed at all times on the car. The car must be registered with the office of the President of Student Personnel.

4. Post Mardi Gras Celebration

EDITORIAL

Typhoid is defined by Webster as "the unjust use of power or authority". We point to several abuses of the S.G.A. Constitution. One example is the considers its financial procedures in the case of the Sociology Club and last Thursday's "trial". We cannot afford to overlook these abuses only because we believe that government can or should be judged by the same procedures one sees it in law or medicine. Such procedures that will assure that the student body has an input into the process.

We ask this in view, that happened to all of last year's campaign promises. S.G.A. President Joe Onslow is determined to hold the students accountable for the promises they made. We will be running an account of the promises made and the progress that has been made on them.

In the future, we will be asking our students to make promises that can be held accountable for. We believe that our students should be held accountable for their actions, and that this is the only way that we can make progress.

We encourage our students to make promises that can be held accountable for. We believe that this is the only way that we can make progress.

EVENING OF THE ARTS

Smash Success

On Thursday, February 17, the Maxwell Library, in conjunction with the Music Department, presented an outstanding "Evening of the Arts." The program was the work of a very talented group of Bridgewater State College artists.

A cover opening the evening featuring Ann Dache, soprano; and David Rinaldi, baritone; and Henry Santos, pianist.

Miss Darche, already a veteran performer, having sung with the New England Conservatory Chorus and Orchestra, Brockton Festival Chorus, Perkins School for the Blind Chorus, and the Arlington Philharmonic, was simply remarkable. Her performance was of several Italian arias by Pergolesi, Scarlatti, Paisiello and Mozart and three pieces composed by George Frederick Handel. Outstanding in her repertory was her skillful rendition of Zeffiretti's "Pastorella." Ann's talent was on vivid display throughout the performance, her excellent control, phrasing and beautiful shading. One was awed by the ever-changing breathing technique as it did not detract from her performance.

Ann Darche performed the pieces hand in hand with Mr. Rinaldi and Bob Caldwell alternately accompanying. This segment of the program was a revival of the true Handel tradition (i.e. only 50% of the notes performed were written by Handel). As Mr. Rinaldi observed, it is a case of "put in the most ornaments." It was hard to determine who was enjoying it more—the performers or the audience, judging by the enthusiasm exhibited over the course of the program.

Professor Rinaldi, also having a liberal background of professional experience as a soloist and choral director, in addition to accompanying Miss Darche, performed three harp solos composed by John Dowland. "Come again, sweet love" the highlight of the trio, was distinguished by the clarity of sound and pronunciation, and the skilful handling of phrasing and shading.

Well known accompanist and excellent musician, Robert Caldwell, has been making quite a name for himself. A BSM math major, Bob has contributed an unbelievable amount of time to accompanying for the Drama Club productions and the Choral Society. He has been indispensable to most of the music endeavors attempted at the college. His considerable talent was evidenced at Thursday night's program, when he performed a Prelude and Fugue in C Minor by Bach on the harpichord.

Mr. Henry Santos was up to his usual excellence as he delivered two sonatas composed by Domenico Scarlatti. The Sonata in D Minor was an eclectically colorful interweaving of notes, reminiscent of the vibrantly intense Flamenco dances. His second piece, the Sonata in C Major was more in the realm of southern European music, featuring a pattern of melody and counter-melody, ornamented by thrilling scales and trills.

Mr. Santos has been a finalist in two of the International Pianos Competitions. He was most evident in this piece and appeared to be enjoying every minute of the performance.

Saturday's show of the night, March 10th, continues through March 21st, with T. H. Lawrence and other celebrated artists in residence. Additional information can be found at 523-6900.

PROFILE: THE TYPICAL COLLEGE DROPOUT

by William A. Siever

You're a cigarette-smoking female student with no religious preference; you turn in term papers late; work a part-time job; and decided to enroll in your particular college because a placement service suggested it.

You are more likely to drop out than a non-smoking male student who promises to be Lutheran, receives most of his financial support from his parents or from scholarships, and has earned a varsity letter in a high school sport.

Rate Lower Than Generally Believed

Those are among the findings of a new study by Alexander W. Astin, director of the Office of Research for the American Council on Education.

Overall, national drop-out rates appear to be somewhat lower than has been suggested, Mr. Astin's report says.

By the most severe measures of persistence—completing a baccalaureate degree within four years—slightly more than half (53.4 percent) of all students entering four-year colleges and universities can be classified as drop-outs.

If one includes students still enrolled for work toward a degree at their first institution after four years, the drop-out rate is only 45.5 percent.

Even among these drop-outs, more than half reported that transcripts be sent to other institutions on the student's recommendation, it is "safe to assume," Mr. Astin said, "they would continue toward a degree.

Mr. Astin says the drop-out figures for four-year colleges are lower than has been reported in past studies and lower than is commonly believed.

Higher at 2-Year Colleges

Drop-out rates at two-year colleges are substantially higher than at four-year institutions. The report says that 64 percent of the entering students at two-year colleges studied did not receive a degree.

Although higher drop-out rates at two-year colleges are "primarily attributable to the lower level of motivation and less-powered academic preparation of students entering these colleges, the retention rates of the two-year colleges are still somewhat lower than would be expected," Mr. Astin said.

Besides the factors of the two-year college versus the four-year college, the principal predictors of persistence in college are the student's grades in high school and scores on an exam of academic ability, the report says.

Predictors of Persistence Found

Other important predictors of persistence (in decreasing order of importance) include being a non-smoker and a man, not being married, entering the academic year, having high grade point average, a lack of time of college entrance, showing a religious preference, and not having attended college education chiefly through aid from parents, scholarships, or personal saving.

Among the predictors of lack of persistence (in decreasing order of importance) are plans to marry while in college, holding a job during the year while in college, smoking cigarettes, being female, turning in a paper at home instead of in class, and failure to take exams.

In addition, a student who has earned a varsity letter in high school is more likely to persist, while a student without a varsity letter has a tendency not to persist.

College Selection A Factor

A student enrolled at a college suggested by a relative or friend is more likely to persist than a student at a college suggested by a placement service.

Mr. Astin says that students often persist in a college suggested by relatives as opposed to those that are "types of colleges typically recommended by the placement service because of what are those that are "relatively unselective," he says.

Black students have somewhat lower rates of persistence than non-blacks, although the difference is not statistically greater at the two-year college than at the four-year institutions, the report says.

However, differences between black and white students when matched to academic ability are much smaller than differences between men and women.

Men are twice as likely to drop out of college in patterns that women are slightly more likely to drop out of college in the same four-year years after entering college, however, in the period covered by the report, men were somewhat less often ultimately received a degree.

A student's attitude toward course work is based on data from students at 217 two-year colleges and universities over a four-year period beginning in 1966.

The Solid Waste Problem

Los Angeles (CPS) In a report to the Governor, the Solid Waste Authority recommended that the city's proposed recycling program be changed in a number of ways.

The five month long study also could not find a way to cut the cost of the program, which is expected to cost 58 percent of the city's annual budget.

The report, however, concluded that there is a need for a recycling program to protect the city's environment and reduce pollution.

As the report indicates, the city is already starting to see the benefits of its recycling efforts.

The report also cites a number of recommendations for improving the program, including:

1. Relocating the sorting center to a larger facility to accommodate the increased volume.
2. Increasing the number of volunteers to enhance the efficiency of the program.
3. Improving the education of the public to increase participation.
4. Implementing a stricter enforcement policy to reduce illegal dumping.

In conclusion, the report states that a well-designed recycling program can be both beneficial to the environment and cost-effective for the city. The recommendations outlined in the report are crucial in ensuring the success of the program and protecting the city's natural resources for future generations.

RELEVANCE OF RELEVANCE

True Confession: laugh at all that is "dumb" in my life and have a good laugh while watching Lucy on TV that I just can't cut the cord, run the hose while I brush my teeth, use Tide and A pair of toilet paper. Blindly follow the soap on them. Because they match the man in the ad.

I am enjoying being in my familiar environment, the living room, the interior and exterior of the house being non-returnable and I don't separate the garbage, which I burn in my bazaar.

I just can't help it. I'm failure at relevance.

So there are, however, some things about which I do feel guilty. I say to myself, "What's wrong with me?" I'm only human. But, I say, "You're not alone, my friend." I'm not alone, you see. I'm not alone. I'm not alone.

Good for the environment. Child abuse.

I don't know what I'm doing.

We just keep on keeping on. And it's probably not good for my psychological environment.

And what a meaningful? It's the hey-day of the academic radical chic were everywhere. Must have a profound Meaning, anywhere more than a pair of jeans and a steroid based on the line of decendence, where back to earth means back-to-back.

Ecology, sex, women's liberation, war and the rest of the list are all important issues. Too often, it seems that it's the issues there in my life that I feel so very difficult, but I also feel it very rewarding in a way that I treat each and every individual according to who they are and what their response is to me.

When we get down to the basics and say that everyone has a right to live and compete in the struggle for survival, that is the most competitive thing that ever has existed because of man's, women's, and animal's just needs. And, when the housemother suddenly told me that the nation should end all war and I would have to start over.

I would have to start over with three roommates.

I would like to be a whole human beings and judge other individuals that I'm not sure what we should be made based on an individual's, character, and how much he respects the other human being. I say I'm trying to live in my soul as a way that I feel is very difficult, but I find it very rewarding in a way that I am trying to say sorry. But, what's so relevant about relevance anyways?

A while ago, I visited the University of Wisconsin campus at Green Bay--a college totally devoted to the study of ecology. There one student said, "It's okay, but you feel guilty doing anything that's not-relevant."

I thought the remark was ridiculous. After a day there, I found myself checking the soap in the school lav so I didn't make we were using the Right Kind.

So what is relevant? Bigcity.

Good for the environment. Child abuse.

I don't know what I'm doing.

We just keep on keeping on. And it's probably not good for my psychological environment.

And what a meaningful? It's the hey-day of the academic radical chic were everywhere. Must have a profound Meaning, anywhere more than a pair of jeans and a steroid based on the line of decendence, where back to earth means back-to-back.

Mermen Splash to Ninth Straight Victory

Bridgewater, Mass.- The Bridgewater State College varsity swim team won its eighth and ninth straight dual meets this past weekend on their two-day trip to Maine. On Friday night the men claimed their first victory over against Husson College by a score of 67-44. On Saturday, the best Colby College in the most exciting meet of the season, ending the Mules by a score of 49-33.

In the Monday meet, the Bears were paced by Barry Parenteau, who set a varsity record of 2:23.53 in the 200 yard freestyle; Bruce Morrell who set a new varsity record in the 200 yard individual medley, 2:23.75; and Mel Crozy, who set a new varsity record of 2:22.09 in the 200 yard butterfly. The Bears also established Colby College pool records in events: the 200 yard medley relay, the 200 yard freestyle, the 200 yard butterfly, the 200 yard backstroke.

On Saturday, the Bears had to scramble to get enough points to win before the final relay, and gambled successfully. The Bears captured seven of thirteen first places. Divers Dan Bejouard and Ron Bartlett combined to score thirty points in the two diving events, which gave the Bears the margin they needed for victory.

The Bears will host local rival Southwestern Mass. University this Friday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. and will close out their dual meet season as Saturday when they travel to Boston to challenge the Huskies from Northeastern University.

The Bears will travel to Springfield College next weekend to compete in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming Championship and on Saturday, March 19, the Bridgewater State College will host the first National Association Intercollegiate Athletics (N.A.I.A.) BSC Women Lose Close Hoop Battle to Worcester ST.

Before a very enthusiastic crowd at Kelly Gym, the Bridgewater State College Women's Basketball team bowed to a very aggressive Worcester State squad by a 64-46 score. It was Bridgewater's second loss of the season and unfortunately it had to be to Worcester, who also ruined the Women's Field Hockey winning streak by defeating them at the State tournament.

Bridgewater got off to a shaky start the first period by only scoring 6 points compared WSC's 13. Both teams were strong on defense but BSC just wasn't hitting as they usually do.

The second quarter proved to be more of a contest as both teams gained 14 points. Ann McGowan proved to be a spark for the hometown as she sunk 2 and played solidly at defense.

Bridgewater seemed aimed for a victory in the third quarter as they stacked up 13 points and held Worcester to only 4, putting the Bears up 23 points in the game while other members added the other tallies. BSC led at the end of the quarter 33-31.

While BSC kept an even pace by scoring 11 points in the final quarter, WSC pulled ahead with 15 points. Bridgewater came very close to tying WSC, but time ran out on the home team and they were defeated 46-44.

BSC to Host First NAIA Game

Bridgewater will host their first National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (N.A.I.A.) basketball game when they play the University of New Hampshire, Middletown at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday night. The Bears will have a chance to prove their mettle against the nationally-ranked team from the Northeast.

The Bears are currently 11-3 overall and 1-1 in the N.A.I.A. Division I. They are coming off a 65-59 loss to the University of New Hampshire, Middletown last weekend, which was the first loss of the season for the Bears. Despite the loss, the Bears are still in contention for a spot in the NCAA Division II playoffs. They will need to win their remaining games to secure a spot, which they have a good chance of doing given their recent success.

The game will be a test of the Bears' ability to compete against a high-level opponent. They will need to play a solid game on both ends of the court and avoid turnovers to have a chance of winning. The Bears have played well in recent games and will need to continue that form to have a chance against the Wildcats. The game will be a good opportunity for the Bears to improve their chances of making the NCAA Division II playoffs. The Bears have a solid team and will have a good chance of winning if they can execute their game plan.

JOE WISE HOLDS FIVE HOOP RECORDS AT BSC

by Lee Smith

I always remembered watching hockey games from Chicago Stadium. Whether is the loud, raving Chicago crowd or the large, Olympic size rink hockey games always seemed to be more exciting coming from the Windy City. The Brats Black encounter was a good example.

The Western division leading Blackhawks riding a long unbeaten streak at home were ready for Boston, who after beating Minnesota the night before had just about time to shower before their whistle blew for the Sunday night game.

The Bruins played their usual hard nosed style eventually wore down the opposition and won the game 3-1.

The game well played by both sides, was the non-stop type of play that makes hockey the great spectator sport it is. Boston's power play, the league's best seems to give the Bruins the goals when they are needed most. The Bruins special teams protect their superiority over the rest of the N.H.L. Every short-handed situation turned into a continual threat.

Phil Esposito continues to threaten and frustrate his younger brother Tony as Phil (who celebrated his 30th birthday) scored twice and collected his 100 and 101st point. He is the current N.H.L. scoring leader.

The Bruins after two hard hitting periods lose control of the game and coasted as Ed Johnson played one of his best games. Bobby Orr continues to amaze me and there are no superlatives to describe him. Ted Green is the only weak link in the otherwise solid Bruins defense. N.H.L. referee Bill Friday continues to show his inconsistency, in this writer, as he is always making the wrong call at the wrong time.

Every writer for the Boston sports media has sometime in the last month, expressed sympathy to the Boston Celtics although the owners of the team will always eat well.

The Celtics after a disheartening road trip to the West Coast took advantage of some cooking as they defeated the Phoenix Suns on Tuesday afternoon. The Celtics held off to win the Eastern Division, and even if they blow it, no one can complain about the Celtics style this season. This is just another tribute to Red Auerbach who is a genius in the world of sports.
