Civic Center Battle
Hoopsters Top RWC

The image was set at the beautiful Providence Civic Center where the teams battled in the annual basketball game between Pepperidge and RWC. The crowd was electrified by the intense gameplay that was played out on the court. The Pepperidge team emerged victorious, winning a hard-fought battle with a final score of 82-75. It was a great day for basketball fans, who were treated to a high-intensity game filled with exciting plays and impressive performances. The Orange Crush, Pepperidge's mascot, was seen鼓舞ing the crowd with its enthusiastic cheers and dances, adding to the overall festive atmosphere of the event. It was a day to remember for everyone who attended, as they witnessed some of the best basketball action the city had to offer.
I've been hearing a good bit of criticism of The Comment lately. "Why aren't there any letters to the editor?" "Why aren't there any stories about my personal life?" I don't like the dismissal of "there are no topics to write about."

First, it's that discussion on what topics or categories might be set aside. Quality newspapers such as The Comment, the New York Times, etc. do not limit their content to "current events" as defined by the editors. What are the "current events" to be handled by the editors of the paper? The editors are not the people to write these events. If the paper was to base editorial policy on the "current events", then the paper would be nothing more than a compilation of the latest news from radio stations, television stations, newspapers, and magazines.

So it is then up to the writers to decide what topics should be the main issue for the Comment, as well as what topics are "important" and "obvious" to write about. In the past, the paper was limited to the topics of the day. Today, the paper is limited to the topics that are chosen by the writers themselves.

This is true in every newspaper in the United States today. As a matter of fact, the Today's Press is chosen by the writers themselves, as well as the editors. Students Respond to Articles, Policies

Dear Editor:

I would like to conclude that you are not one of those students who adopt your editorial opinions without question, just because they are published in the student newspaper. As a member of the new generation of political and social rebels, I would like to express my disapproval of the recent editorial, "Photo Shoot Tulsa," which appeared on page 2 of the March 10 issue.

As a student at the University of Tulsa, I believe it is important to hold the editorial board accountable for the content they publish. The editorial "Photo Shoot Tulsa," which appeared in your newspaper, does not accurately reflect the views of the majority of students on campus. In fact, it is a superficial and superficially written piece that seems to have been written by someone who is not even familiar with the issues at hand.

The editorial fails to address the core of the matter, which is the potential negative impact of the photo shoot on the community. The photo shoot is intended to provide a visual representation of the diversity and beauty of the campus and its residents. However, it is important to consider the possible consequences of such an event. By having pictures taken in public spaces, the photo shoot may inadvertently promote unhealthy behaviors and norms. For example, in some cultures, it is considered offensive to have pictures taken without permission.

Furthermore, the editorial disregards the voices of those who may be negatively affected by the photo shoot. It is true that some students may enjoy participating in such events, but it is also important to consider the perspectives of those who may not feel comfortable or safe doing so. By not taking into account the potential negative outcomes of the photo shoot, the editorial fails to provide a balanced and thoughtful perspective.

I urge the editorial board to reconsider their approach and to engage in a more open and inclusive discussion. It is crucial to ensure that all voices are heard and that the impact of any event is carefully considered before it is implemented. Only then can we truly honor the principles of diversity and inclusion that are so important to our campus community.

Sincerely,

Frankie Valli, a member of the group Four Seasons, was once again threatened by the British, especially on television. On April 4th, he appeared on The Ed Sullivan Show. Three days later, the Four Seasons made their first national television appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show. In October, Valli and The Four Seasons were featured on The Ed Sullivan Show. Between 1964 and 1966, the group was featured on the Ed Sullivan Show more often than any other Four Seasons group.

BUSCH

Don't just reach for a beer
Head for the mountains.

Mountaineering*

SELECTING THE PROPER GEAR

The Busch label is where it all begins. Ride the snowy, craggy peaks amid them. They're the mountain's tool.

You choose the mountain. And this is an ad. The subject of which is selecting the proper gear for mountaineering. (It all fits together to nicely, doesn't it?)

First and foremost, you'll need to pop the mountain top. For this task, faithful mountaineers use a church key. Secular mountaineers use a bottle opener. Don't be confused by these antics with semantics. Just remember, the opener is your primary tool. Be true to it and it will be true to you.

Second, choose a glass. Here are the options: camelback, double-jawed, German steins, hand-blown pilseners, old jelly jars, that cute little Boffo mug you've had since third grade.

Third, be adventurous. Experiment. Most mountaineers have a personal preference. You'll develop one too.

Food is next. Proper mountaineering, not to mention proper nutrition, requires a smorgasbord selection of snacks. Some mountaineers have suffered from a potato chip deficiency, a pretzel imbalance, other serious dietary defects. Plan ahead.

The choice is strictly between you and the Internet. Of course, some mountaineers say the smooth, refreshing taste of Busch is entertainment enough. And thank goodness they do, because it's an excellent conclusion. Comfort is assured.

Since 1975 we've welcomed our guests with our best.

A traditional taste of Cuervo Gold.

Visitors to Cuervo have always been greeted in a special way. They're met at the gates and invited inside to experience the unique taste of Cuervo Gold. This is the way we've said "welcome" for more than 100 years. And it is as traditional as Cuervo Gold itself.

For this dedication to traditions is what makes Cuervo Gold truly special. Neat, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sucreño or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world.

Cuervo. The Gold standard since 1795.
The hoops fell into the basket, and the Bears continued to score, building a lead over the Hawks of Roger Williams. However, the Hawks fought back, taking advantage of a few key shots and getting closer to the Bears' score. The Bears had a nemesis in the game, a sharpshooting forward named Kevin Wynn, who hit nothing but twine in the first half. Wynn was one of several players who struggled with their shooting, unable to maintain a consistent offense. In fact, their whole offense was one Kevin Wynn who hit nothing but twine in the first half and the likes of Mike Boyle were once again on their way.

Mike Cheney played a strong second half after being non-existent in the first half with some strong rebounding both offensive and defensive. Mike Cheney played a strong second half after being non-existent in the first half and the likes of Mike Boyle were once again on their way.

The game finished off with the Bears scoring a 12-14 lead but they could never run up the score as high as they wanted to.
