Student Union procedures and amount of time for applications have been the targets of many students actually, in March--I'm required by the Board of Governors, and then state your problem. The Committee which manages the Educational Services Fee must have an increase in January. Custom Foods has been saying $2.90 per hour and has not yet decided whether or not it will pay the $2.90 wage.

Codification 14

Keep it

As John Smith is entering his third year as the President of the Student Government Association (SGA) at Bridgewater State College, he continues to push for a more codified SGA constitution. Some students on campus have expressed concern that the constitution is too loose and not comprehensive enough. Smith hopes to create a more structured format for the SGA presidency and other officer positions.

The SGA president is John Smith, a junior Political Science major. Smith plans to hold a referendum soon to discuss and vote on the proposed changes to the constitution. He believes that the SGA needs a code to standardize the terms of office for all elected positions.

"I am proud to announce that I will be holding a referendum to codify the Student Government Association's constitution. The referendum will take place next Wednesday, March 7th, from 10 AM to 3 PM in the gymnasium. I encourage all members of the SGA to attend and participate in this important discussion," said Smith.

The referendum will cover several key issues, including the role of the treasurer of the SGA and the enforcement of the separation of powers among student representatives. It will also discuss the importance of time to vote for someone to fill the position of President when necessary.

"I believe that codification is crucial for the future of the SGA. It is important to ensure that all students are aware of their rights and responsibilities as elected officials," said Smith.

The proposed changes will include a clear definition of the roles and responsibilities of each elected office, as well as a process for removing officials who are not fulfilling their duties. The SGA constitution will also be updated to reflect these changes.

"I want to ensure that the SGA is a transparent and accountable organization. Codification will help us achieve this goal," said Smith.

Smith emphasizes the importance of student participation in this process.

"I encourage all members of the SGA to attend the referendum and provide their input. Your voice is important to the future of the SGA," said Smith.

Smith is confident that the SGA will be able to codify its constitution with the support of the student body. He believes that this will be a step forward for the SGA and its new president, John Smith.

The Perils of Pauline

By Robert A. Cotter

The gentlest of the great Pauline fanatics, Dr. Pauline Veno, has recently given us a new look at the life of the great American novelist. In her new book, "The Perils of Pauline," Dr. Veno has drawn from her own experiences as a student at Harvard University in the 1970s to create a vivid portrait of the life of the great American novelist. Dr. Veno has been a personal friend of Pauline for many years, and her insights into the life of the great American novelist are both fascinating and revealing. The period from 1967 to 1970 is collectively known as the era of the San Francisco sound, a period of diversity in music that is highlighted by the Rolling Stones having Left on the Isle of Wight, the Grateful Dead being the largest and most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and the ever-present Janis Joplin. Many would argue that the West Coast was the musical capital of the world during this time.

The Sonny Bono concert at the Forum in Los Angeles was a major showcase for bands during this late era and early seventies.

For the most part, 1968 was the beginning of the end for the San Francisco sound, a period that computers were known as "radical chic" and theVelvet Underground had released their album "The Velvet Underground and Nico." However, San Francisco's omnipresence was a major turning point in the music scene because there was a huge influx of fans from both California and the East Coast. San Francisco was the site of the first Monterey Pop Festival, where groups such as the Rolling Stones, the Who, the Grateful Dead, and the Band performed. This performance by the Who, The White Rabbit, "The Fluorscent Leech" and the other woody hour and "The Who Was Never There," was a huge smash hit.

In 1970, the Beatles went on their last tour of the United States, and Paul McCartney released his first solo album, "McCartney," which contained the hit "Uncle Albert/Admiral Halsey." McCartney was not the only Beatles member who released a solo album in 1970. John Lennon released his album "Imagine," and George Harrison released "All Things Must Pass."

In 1971, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1972, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1973, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1974, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1975, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1976, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1977, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1978, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

In 1979, the San Francisco sound was in full swing, and the Grateful Dead released their album "American Beauty," which contained the hit "Truckin'." The Grateful Dead was the most successful group to come out of the Bay Area, and their music was the epitome of the San Francisco sound.

Theatre Students Concerned

Fee Increase Proposed

PRO

Both fee increases proposed by the Budget Committee and the Planning and Development Committee are being considered by the Board of Trustees.

CON

The current fee of $8 per semester was established to cover costs incurred by the administration. The administration has requested an increase to $9.50 per semester, but they have yet to implement this.

Theatre students are working to rectify this situation by requesting money from the Student Government and the Administration. They have the right to make decisions about their educational experiences.

Con

Venzo Interviewed

The current fee for handouts, field trips, and resources is not enough to cover what is being requested by the departments. This is an unfair distribution of funds.

I would like to add a few points to the above discussion. First, five years ago we had a goal of having at least one full-time artist in residence at the school. Now, ten years later, the systems and structures that have been put in place to support this goal have been successful. However, the cost of establishing and maintaining these programs is significant. The administration has requested an increase to $9.50 per semester, but they have yet to implement this.

The University Police are investigating a hit and run accident that occurred on the campus. The victim was hit by a car that fled the scene.

Court Appeal

The case is scheduled to be heard in the Appeals Court. The defendant is appealing the conviction for driving under the influence.
Fee Increase Proposed

Pro

1. The fee was increased after three years ago and since then, including the increase that was made in the spring, the student body has been hit with fee increases. It is the Educational Services Team's Fund must now be funded by all departments and colleges. The last increase, in order to have a balanced budget, was a necessity and the student body was told it was a necessity.

BSC routed the puck to triumph once again last week, defeating Bentley College 10-5, while taking the final game in a three-game series.

In the second meeting of the Bentley College vs. Bridgewater State series, the Bears were victorious. The first game of the series saw the Bears defeat Bentley 7-2. In the third game, Bentley took the lead but Bridgewater stormed back with a 10-5 victory.

BSC had the better of the first period, leading the game at the end of the first frame, while the Bears held the lead in the third.

Bridgewater established the lead at the start of the second period, with Bentley not able to match the Bears' scoring in the period. The Bears had a 4-2 lead after the second period, and in the third period, the Bears held on for a 10-5 win.

Jody McFayden, fired a slapshot past a Kirchner, junior center form Candie Killion, sending a Persia pass between the poles, putting the winning point in the net.

This week Bridgewater (3-1-1) took on Bentley College (5-2), Colby College (1-11). Bentley had promised the Bears a whipping in their next game, but the Bears were determined to prove them wrong.

The Bears rallied for their third point, Jody McFayden, fired a slapshot past Kirchner, junior center for Candie Killion, sending a Persia pass between the poles, putting the winning point in the net.

Pucksters Beat Bentley

by Candace Killings

BSC routed the path to triumph once more in a 15-11 victory over Bentley College. With only one game remaining in the season for both teams, it was the second meeting of the Bentley College Bears and the Bears were the ones who ended the Bears’ season.

John MacDonald scored the tenth point of the game, the fourth time he has scored in this game. John MacKenzie, senior wingman from Quincy, Ma., took the lead for the Bears, tying the game at 3-3. MacDonald scored a total of 5 and leaving the Panthers with 2 goals behind. The Bears are 3-2-2 in the season. They were eliminated from the tournament in the last round.
