Speaker Discusses Kennedy

By Mike M. Kessler

Bridgewater, Mass. (February 24) - Mrs. Sheila Kennedy, wife of Joseph P. Kennedy, II, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, spoke at Bridgewater State College Monday as part of her stay in New Bedford over the weekend. Mrs. Kennedy spoke to a student audience in Wheelock Hall at 4:00 p.m. and was introduced by Dr. Robert Dillman, Chairman of the Department of English.

The 35-minute speech was well received by the students who were enraptured by Mrs. Kennedy's words of encouragement and hope. She spoke about the need for greater unity and understanding among people of all races and religions, and emphasized the importance of education and the role of women in society.

Mrs. Kennedy also discussed the current political climate and the importance of democratic participation. She encouraged the students to remain active and engaged in the political process, and to voice their opinions and concerns.

The event was sponsored by the Student Union and the Department of English, and was free and open to the public. Copies of Mrs. Kennedy's speech will be available for purchase at the Office of Student Development.

The last question concerned the Olympics in Moscow, Mrs. Kennedy said. When asked about the possibility that the Soviets would use the Games as part of a propaganda device, Mrs. Kennedy replied: "I think it's a temporary dip, and we'll be on the way up again. The President is currently trying to even the playing field in the Middle East, under the Senators proposed plan of action in the European theater." The President's plans include an extension of the E.R.A. movement, and most importantly for the National Health Insurance plan which the Senate was in favor of, and the White House is now pushing on.

"Next year, when he really led this resolution, she said, "I hope to have the American people recognize as an example the Senator was a leader." She emphasized that "the President's leadership was an extension of the E.R.A. movement, and most importantly for the National Health Insurance plan which the Senate was in favor of, and the White House is now pushing on.

"I hope to have the American people recognize as an example the Senator was a leader," she said. "He stands out in front of the world and it's un clearness whether he is using the foreign problems as an excuse while he sits in the 'Rose Garden.'" She emphasized that "we are entering a time of change, and the American people must take care of foreign matters, but also remember domestic issues."
I was very touched and impressed by something not directly connected to the Campus Community, but not only by some of the students and their parents, but also by some of the faculty members themselves, and the way they handled a situation that could have been very difficult and embarrassing for all concerned.

One of the students, a junior, was involved in an incident that could have had serious consequences for him. The incident involved some sort of disciplinary action, and the student was advised to talk to the faculty member who had reported the incident. The faculty member, who is usually very reserved and detached, became very emotional and began to cry when the student explained his side of the story.

The faculty member then turned to the student and said, "I'm sorry, I know how difficult this must be for you. I just can't help but feel that we've let you down in some way." The student was touched by this, and he realized that the faculty member was feeling the same way he was, but in a different way.

I think that this incident shows how much can be accomplished through empathy and understanding, and how important it is to be able to communicate with each other in a personal and supportive way.

I'm very grateful to the faculty member for being so open and honest, and for showing me that even in difficult situations, there is always a way to find a solution.

Sincerely,

Dr. John Smith

Need to Communicate

Dear Editor,

In response to Mr. Kenneth Lorgendahl's article in the Feb. 1, 1980 issue of The Comment, I would like to address the topic of English instruction in our institution. I believe that the current system of English instruction is not effective and needs improvement. Students are not adequately prepared to handle the academic demands of college courses, which often require advanced English skills.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the article about the planning and placement office. I believe that the office is doing an excellent job in organizing events and providing information to students. However, I would like to suggest that the office could be more transparent in its decision-making processes.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern about the lack of diversity in the staff meetings. I believe that the staff meetings should be more inclusive and represent all students, not just a select few.

Candidate Profile: Carter

Lea Parker

For the past few weeks, President Carter has been seeking a way to get the primary system and the Democratic party on track. The usual excitements of primaries and conventions have been stymied by the weather and the political parties. The Democratic primaries have been notably delayed.

Carter is a candidate for the Democratic nomination. He has been the only candidate to win the Iowa caucuses, and he is now campaigning in New Hampshire. Carter is expected to do well in the New Hampshire primary, which will be held on Tuesday, March 11. Carter is also expected to do well in the Democratic primaries in other states, including California and New York.

Carter is a moderate Democrat and has been described as a "centrist". He is a proponent of social welfare programs and has been critical of the Republican approach to foreign policy. Carter is expected to be a strong candidate in the general election, and his campaign is focused on improving the economy and reducing unemployment.

Candidate Profile: Bush

Lea Parker

George Bush is a candidate for the Republican nomination. He has been campaigning in New Hampshire, and he is expected to do well in the primary on Tuesday, March 11. Bush is a moderate Republican and has been critical of the Carter administration's policies. He is expected to do well in the general election, and his campaign is focused on reducing taxes and improving the economy.

George Bush is a former governor of Texas and has been a member of Congress. He is married to Barbara Bush and has four children. Bush is expected to be a strong candidate in the general election, and his campaign is focused on reducing taxes and improving the economy.
Scholarship Opportunities:

Carter Program:

Lori Parker

The Carter Program, also known as The Carter Institute, is an undergraduate internship program for students interested in public service and public administration. The program is named after former President Jimmy Carter and is designed to provide students with hands-on experience in the field of public service. Interns are placed in various positions in government agencies, non-profit organizations, and the private sector.

Eligibility:

- Current undergraduate or graduate students
- Interested in public service careers
- U.S. citizenship or permanent residency
- Good academic standing

The program offers a stipend for the ten-week program, which is paid on bi-weekly basis. The stipend for the ten-week program is $1,500, paid on a bi-weekly basis.

Information and Applications:

Information and applications for the Carter Program are expected to be available from the position in the City. Students in the program are encouraged to interview and a placement will be made based on the criteria outlined in the application. Up to 100 students are selected for the Carter Program, which is offered in New York City. All interns work a 35-hour week.

I attended the Wednesday evening performance of Comedy Tonight at the U.C.B. Auditorium on February 28. The show was directed by Donald Baillargeon, Randy Doyle, Julie Glauben and Tony Mastorilli and was performed by a group of young performers who entertain the audience with a variety of skits, songs, and musical numbers. The opening scene features a man (played by Donald Baillargeon) who introduces the show and the performers who are standing behind him. The audience is then treated to a variety of skits and songs that are performed by the cast. The show is a mix of humor, wit, and musical numbers that keep the audience engaged.

The Unmarried Man

by Joe McDonald

"Staying Home vs. Working" is a song by the band The Unmarried Man, released in 1998 as a single from their album "Hangin' Woman Creek." The song is a commentary on the decision of whether to stay at home or go out to work, and it touches on the challenges and rewards of each choice. The song's lyrics explore the tension between personal fulfillment and financial stability, and it questions the societal expectations that often dictate one's choice between staying home or working.

Hangin' Woman Creek

"Hangin' Woman Creek" is an album by The Unmarried Man, released in 1998. The album features a mix of rock and roll, blues, and acoustic numbers, and it showcases the band's ability to blend different musical styles into a cohesive whole. The album includes songs like "Staying Home vs. Working," "Hangin' Woman Creek," and "Hangin' With the Boys," which are all well-received by fans and critics alike.

COMEDY TONITE

By Diana Tipton

I attended the Wednesday evening performance of "Nothing to Offer," produced by Don Maguire Productions. The cast was very much. I liked the way you made the audience laugh. However, in some parts of the performance, the pace was too slow for me.

The opening number was a great start. It was very funny and the audience was on the edge of their seats. The main character, a吹sW, over-the-hill chorus girl named Bunny Weinberger, was played by Hershel, her two Boston Brahim friends, and Randy whose life has not been captured on The Jolson Story, Andrea. Al Jolson, had the gall to McCardle hollered her way through the first seventeen years of Judy ballad's originator, Fanny Brice. Hayward', who went from disguise as Janis Joplin story' and Lombard or Harlow proof enough? The Rose, a thinly me 1il-e a sweet that you put off eating, because you know that once you've started, you can't stop.

It's a great play, and I highly recommend it to anyone who appreciates good music and laughter.

A View From The Wall

"The Unmarried Man" should be one of the best songs on the album. It includes "Mind Over Matter," "Love in the Dark," and "Self Esteem." Billy Joel's voice is strong and he carries the song well. The production is very good, with tight arrangements and solid backing vocals.

"The Criminal" is a powerful song that deals with themes of corruption and the criminal justice system. The lyrics are thought-provoking and the melody is memorable. It's one of my favorite tracks on the album.

Overall, this album is a masterpiece and a must-listen for any fan of Billy Joel or classic rock music.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

by Richard Pickett

There are some great stories about the character of Billy Joel. One story involves his relationship with his wife and kids. When they were young, they used to play hide and seek around the house. One day, Joel hid behind the refrigerator and his kids couldn't find him. So, he thought he was doing a great job at hide and seek. Then his wife walked in and got very angry. She told him that they were playing a game called "keep away," not hide and seek.

Another story is about a time when Joel was performing at Madison Square Garden. He notice that one of the seats was empty. He thought it was strange, so he went over to the seat and found out that his friend had forgotten his ticket. He gave it back to his friend, who was thrilled.

In summary, "The Unmarried Man" is a great album that showcases the talents of Billy Joel. It's a must-listen for fans of classic rock music.

THE UNMARRIED MAN

by Jackie Beck

Billy Joel vs. Kramer for big bucks in the courtroom! It's a battle of wits and wits as the two faces of Billy Joel clash in this riveting courtroom drama.

But what's the case all about? It seems that Kramer is seeking a huge payday for his role in a movie that Billy Joel starred in. Kramer wants a share of the profits, but Billy Joel is not-so-happy about it. The two men are locked in a heated battle of words, with Joel insisting that Kramer's share is entirely too much and that he was underpaid for his work.

As the case progresses, it becomes clear that Kramer has a point. Joel was indeed underpaid, and it's only fair that he gets a share of the profits. But Joel is not about to give up easily. He's determined to fight for what he believes is his, and he's not afraid to use the legal system to do it.

In the end, it's a battle of wills and wits. Will Kramer get his share of the profits, or will Joel hold onto his money? Only time will tell.
