Once again, this time the year when thebreathesar t cold, the leaves fall from the trees, we have our first snow, and give thanks for the many blessings of all college students. This Thanksgiving, I was especially thankful for the opportunity to write this editorial, which was written by a student who has shared their reflections on the experience of being a student at Bridgewater State College.

The registration process is a complicated one. After locating a Course List, the fruit of your efforts, when you leave the Ballroom, and look back at those of the past as valuable memories. The excitement of actually getting the courses you want, and you can actually breathe is the one just after you get that last card. What seniors have it easy, as they register first, but woe to the unfortunate Freshman who has to register in Group IV! We have only to hope for our own experiences here at BSC.

The kickoff celebration of B.E.S.T. (Building Energy Saving Trail) was held on Monday, 25th of November, at the State College, and is one of 30 workshops to be presented in Massachusetts. The event was attended by many state officials, including the Governor and the Energy Commissioner. The future of energy conservation is promising, and the MSO is committed to making a difference.

Colleges/Study Student Services
Increasingly sophisticated research and data collection systems are already being used in many schools to provide accurate and timely information to students and faculty. Research information and methods are now available to students at many colleges, including the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and the University of Massachusetts. A weekly newsletter called "Project Pulse" provides a simple example of how data is collected and used in the educational environment. The newsletter is sent out to all students at the college, and can include articles written by students, faculty, or staff. It's authored by David M. Fidder, Bill Musser, and other members of the School of Education, who are experts in educational research.

The BSC Slavic Studies Club, consisting of German and Russian language students recently completed a trip to New York City in which they were able to participate in cultural activities unavailable in this area. Led by Professor Christina Reardon, the club enjoyed New York excursions, including a visit to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which houses one of the world’s largest collections of art from the Eastern European countries. There is also an extensive collection of Russian and German art, from the 16th to the 20th century.

The group visited the Guggenheim Museum, which houses modern and contemporary art, and the Whitney Museum, which features American art from the 20th century. They also visited the Rockefeller Center, home of the NBC studios, and the Empire State Building, offering stunning views of the city.

The group also had the opportunity to attend a dance festival where they were treated to traditional and contemporary dances from various Eastern European countries. They also visited a German restaurant, where they were treated to traditional German cuisine, including schnitzel and dark, Munich beer served by a genial singing waiter. Portions of the group took the time after dinner to explore the Greenwich Village neighborhood, with its many shops and restaurants.

The trip was a great success, and the students were thrilled to have been able to experience the rich cultural heritage of New York City.
The Glass Menagerie Soon to Mesmerize BSC

The Ensemble Theatre at Bridgewater State College is currently working on an adaptation of Tennessee Williams’ classic, The Glass Menagerie, which will be presented in the Student Union Auditorium on November 7, 8, and 9.

The Glass Menagerie tells the story of the Williams family: Amanda, the mother; Tom, the son; and Laura, the daughter. The family lives in St. Louis during the Great Depression, struggling to maintain the facade of a genteel Southern family while facing the realities of their modest means. The play is set in their ramshackle apartment and explores themes of memory, illusion, and the beauty that can be found in the oddest of places.

The show features Laura Curran as Laura, John Houseman’s Acting Company, and Kerri-Ann Rock’s choreography moved eight actors adroitly around the set. The production has been praised for its realistic depiction of the era and its sensitive portrayal of the characters.

Women’s Soccer Club Ends Their Season 11-1

by LFoster Danehy

It certainly appeared as though the Women’s Soccer Club members were riding that winged horse as they gracefully flew by Whitman’s Women’s Club, last Sunday afternoon 6-0. Donna Mazzamurro skillfully stole still another hat trick (her fourth of the season it is told), The other three goals were generously donated by Geri “Mouse” Concaugh, Heidi Eriksen and Diane “Arka” Accomando (a fantastic header off of a corner kick). The players executed fine passes, and once again brought out a superb defensive team.

The Whitman team asked that Ms. Mazzamurro be limited to her less able foot only but this did not seem to turn the tables. The last few years however, have witnessed the emergence of some talented players who have contributed to a successful team. The Whitman team was unable to score any goals.

The club would like to extend thanks to all who supported their season as spectators, officials, and "medical personnel". Special thanks to Coach Kathy Kluza for her patience and perseverance and to Scott McCarty for all his help. We couldn’t have done it without you.

Lastly, a late congrats to all the Whitman fans. Scott Behrens and Tom Milleters led the charge.

The Whitman soccer team lost their final game of the season to the Women’s Soccer Club, ending their season with a 11-1 record. The Women’s Soccer Club members were congratulated on their improvement throughout the season. The team played well, scoring numerous times, and the season has been a success. The team is looking forward to next season and planning to continue.

Although the Cowboys are only in their third season in the Atlantic Division, at least they are the winningest team in the league. The Cowboys have a 11-1 record and have won two straight games. Their next game is against the New York Giants on Monday night. It is a game the Cowboys are looking forward to.

The Cowboys have been playing well under the leadership of head coach Jimmy Johnson. They have scored 10 touchdowns and have allowed only 43 points in their last 3 games. Quarterback Troy Aikman has been playing exceptionally well, completing 67% of his passes for 1,245 yards and 13 touchdowns. Wide receiver Michael Irvin has also been a key player, catching 67 passes for 965 yards and 11 touchdowns.

However, the Cowboys have had some injuries to key players. Defensive end Charles Haley has missed the last two games with a shoulder injury, and running back Emmitt Smith has missed the last game with a hamstring injury. Despite these injuries, the Cowboys remain a formidable team and are expected to continue their winning streak.

DONNA MAZZAMURRO

A standout from Whitman, Donna Mazzamurro has been a key player for the Women’s Soccer Club. She has scored numerous goals and has contributed to the team’s success. Her quickness and agility prove to be irresistible to any soccer team.
