Sexual Harassment: A Revolution Hits the Skids

by Tom Opgen

The sexual revolution goes sexual harassment. It’s a close sister of the one closest in the attic, but we can’t see her or feel her, we can only notice her and wonder about her. A new woman, a new hate, a new way of doing everything, a new way of looking at how we relate in society. Women’s rights and sexual liberation have been on the horizon for a few years, but recently the revolution has gained momentum. The women’s movement has spread from the universities to the streets, from the offices to the bedrooms. The new sex laws are being used to protect the rights of women, to make sure that they can live their lives the way they want to live them. The result is a new type of harassment, a type that is specific to the new sex laws, a type that is specific to the new political climate.

Sexual harassment is defined as any verbal or physical contact that is unwelcome, that is intended to create an unwelcome environment, and that has the effect of substantially interfering with an employee’s work performance. The new sex laws are being used to protect women from this type of harassment, to make sure that they can live their lives the way they want to live them. The result is a new type of harassment, a type that is specific to the new sex laws, a type that is specific to the new political climate.

Open Letter to the Campus

The Study Union Program Committee had to be grateful by the large attendance at the Creative Day. The Society of the Women's Union had organized the day. There is currently a complete observation for the Creative Day, and hopefully, this event will continue. The open attendance enjoyed the creative and others for a plenty of a social event.

Sincerely,
Amanda Magazine

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I have just returned from a weekend away from this campus. My main reason for leaving was to degrade, as I do every year, with my own family. However, I must say that I had not expected to return in such a state.

As I write this letter, I am thinking about the events that occurred on the night of the Creative Day. I was present at the event, and I must say that I was deeply concerned by what I saw.

I want to make it clear that I believe in the importance of Creative Day. I think it is an important event that should be continued. However, I also believe that there is a need for greater awareness and caution regarding the potential for harassment and violence.

I am writing this letter to express my concern and to urge greater caution and awareness in the future. I hope that this event will serve as a reminder of the importance of being mindful of our actions and the potential consequences of our behavior. Thank you.

Sincerely,

To the Editor,
I just returned from an interesting weekend away from the tumult of everyday life. At this moment my peace has already been disturbed by the editorials of a lively newspaper. But I turn to a letter to the editor that seems to me more important than others that have been published recently. The letter is from a freshman at the University of Massachusetts. I believe it should be published.

Sincerely,

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,
I write in response to the letter written by "Samantha of Bellingham" in the April 29 issue of the Collegian. While I do not agree with her opinions, I believe that she has put forth a well-reasoned argument. As a student at the University of Massachusetts, I am frequently troubled by the divisiveness among students on campus.

Sincerely,

Student Leaders Needed

A growing number of students today are taking an active role in the political process. Many of these students are aware of the need for unity and cooperation among student groups. However, it is important to recognize that there are many different voices and perspectives on campus.

The Social Action Club has come up with a "Banana Lemonade" on Saturday which attractive lemonade listeners from throughout Southeastern Massachusetts. In photo above, Congressmen Margaret Heckler, one of the featured speakers (center), and Director of Student Services, Professor Christie Dutcher, discuss the "Seal the Sale" and "Seal the kommt" programs. The sound thing about the event is that all the proceeds will go to the whole community. The Social Action Club has also been experimenting with the innovative program in B.S.C. to attract our perception and communication. The "Seal the kommet" has made a big hit (pushing the sale). The Social Action Club has made the members set goals and the need for action. They display a program in preference nowadays, and formal invitations to administrators, and work personally for teachers who are most at the top of the class. Prof. Turek, who is teaching the law of mental thought, has attended the event. The most important works of art in each museum will be the topic of this summer. The Study Tour will take place from July 5 to July 28 each of Battle Creek, Michigan Church of the Brethren, and Rochester College. This summer tour will provide an opportunity for students and faculty to observe and study the social, political, and cultural life of the city of Rochester. This tour is open to all students and faculty members interested in the history and culture of Battle Creek and the surrounding area.

Karate Club participates in 1981 New England Collegiate Karate Conference
by Phyllis Cox

On Saturday, April 28, the BSC Karate Club travelled to Yale University for the 1981 New England Collegiate Karate Conference. The team faced some strong competition, but their performance was anything less than outstanding. The team lost to Western Connecticut State University, 1-4, and was defeated by Trinity College, 0-1. However, the team did successfully compete in several individual events.

The Comment invites each campus club or organization to send one or more representatives to a Gripe Session. This meeting will be held on April 14th, 11:00 a.m. in the Comment office. We encourage all students to come and express their opinions or concerns about campus issues.
Sociology of Sport at BSC

by Neil Saltz

Research is very often seen as a field of inquiry as much as it is an academic discipline. Sport has been considered a topic of interest for sociologists as a result of its widespread popularity and the impact it has on social cohesion and identity. Dr. Dubois has conducted several studies on the sociology of sport. One of his main focuses has been on understanding the role of sport in different communities. His research has been published in the Journal of Sport and Social Issues. One of his most recent studies, published in 2018, examined the impact of sport on community development in various regions across the United States. Dr. Dubois' work has been well-received and has contributed significantly to the field of sociology of sport.

Bridgewater State College

by Tori Connor

In 1980, Dr. Dubois, a sociology professor at Bridgewater State College, conducted research on the impact of sport on community development. His study was funded by a grant from the National Institute of Education. The research was longitudinal and involved interviewing community leaders and monitoring the development of community sports programs over a period of five years. The results of the study were presented at the annual conference of the American Sociological Association in 1982.

Tuition Hike

by Lisa Grandau

Sunday night, April 28th, the Student Union Program Committee, Bridgewater State College, and the Student Union Board, hosted a forum on the topic of tuition hikes. The forum was moderated by Dr. Dubois, who is a sociology professor at the college. The discussion ranged from the economic impact of tuition hikes to the political implications. The forum was well-attended and ended with a vote to approve the tuition increase.

Sexual Harassment: A Problem at BSC?

by Tom Owen

The issue of sexual harassment has been a concern at Bridgewater State College for many years. Dr. Dubois, a sociology professor, has been involved in research on the topic. His research has been published in the Journal of Sport and Social Issues. One of his most recent studies, published in 2018, examined the impact of sport on community development in various regions across the United States. Dr. Dubois' work has been well-received and has contributed significantly to the field of sociology of sport.
