The Board of Trustees of Bridgewater State College is divided into seven standing committees: 1. Executive Committee, 2. Finance Committee, 3. Building and Grounds Committee, 4. Academic Affairs Committee, 5. Enrollment Planning and Admissions Committee, 6. Student Affairs, and 7. Audit Committee. At the present time I am serving on the Building and Grounds and Student Affairs Committees.

WBIM, BSC's own radio station located at 91.5 on the FM dial, is a tertiary training ground for BSC students interested in careers in broadcast journalism. WBIM's studio is a three-station facility featuring a news/talk format, a rock format to include jazz, blues funk, and classical music shows, the station's weekly debate program, and a DJ format to serve the point for their professional careers. Program Director Peter George works part-time as a DJ at WINE in Brockton, and DJ Laurel Bowman also works part-time as a DJ at WMGH in Providence, RI.

WBIM's programming is divided into morning, afternoon, and evening blocks. The morning block features local news and weather reports, while the afternoon block features a mix of local and national music. The evening block includes a variety of shows, including news, sports, and talk programs.

In addition to its radio programming, WBIM also produces and airs television shows that feature local news, sports, and entertainment content. These programs include "Bridgewater State News," a weekly newscast, and "The BSC Magazne," a show that covers a variety of campus topics.

The success of WBIM is due in large part to the dedication of its staff and volunteers. The station's success is also due to the support provided by the college's administration and the students of BSC.

BSC may soon be a member of the Board of Trustees, joining other colleges and universities in the Commonwealth. As a member of the Board of Trustees, I join in the decision-making process with great concern for Bridgewater State College, its history and especially the future it holds, which in my opinion appears very bright.

BSC's Director of Media Services, a demonstration video-tape of a show featuring several campus professors was produced. Using a President Ronald Reagan footage similar to BSC may soon be a monthly show on cable television. The show, which originally aired on campus last fall featuring articles by various faculty members, was created in a unique way to create an entertaining and informative product. Rather than feature lectures, the show has been shown to use a 30-minute program, which features short segments on science, history, and film reviews, economics, psychology, a guest interview, and a calendar listing of upcoming events on the BSC campus. The response to the demo tape was overwhelmingly positive. The response of Channel 2 in Boston viewed the show and was impressed by it, considering it was done on a college campus and not in a professional TV studio.

There was also a very positive response from President Ronald Reagan and the Board of Trustees, said Dr. Krzanek, who sees this as an opportunity to improve the campus morale and show people what's happening at Bridgewater State College.

Dr. Glenn Cook, who will serve as Director of the show, which is tentatively titled "Bridgewater Magazine," feels that "The value of the show is visual, it serves to improve the campus morale, help participating students gain valuable technical experience, and it is a valuable public service for the community."

Women's Center Says Thank You

Mr. Trenston, I fail to see your point regarding the important topic. The problem created concerns men and women. If we consider the peculiar situations in which Mr. Trenston is concerned, then the situation engendered by portraying the character Michael Donatello is plain. It is evidently plain that Mr. Trenston himself has never encountered situations that are indicative of his male identity. If Mr. Hochheiser has achieved the ability to portray a woman, and actually become a woman with the use of the movie, then my hat is off to him for such a job. However, this is not a phase. At the conclusion of Tonight's Woman is not a Michael Donatello but cannot help but reveal the character Michael Donatello's real female identity. Mr. Hochheiser says that I disagree with you in stating that Tonight's Woman is a professional broadcastin g career," he added. "They had to have this experience already when they went into those jobs, and that's what separates the people who are doing something for a living from those people who are doing it for a living."

Rothenburg is poised to announce several new developments that the next move is to be made by a committee of professionals working at WRBM. "In addition to the current UPW news, we'll be getting local news reports direct from ABC soon, in order to keep our audience well informed on world and national issues and state and local news," he said.

Furthermore, a new broadcast plan is already working with several professional radio stations as an indication that WRBM can help you get into a professional broadcasting career;" he added. Mr. Treston, in a sunlit corner of the room, seemed surprised by the attention he was receiving. He was wearing a white button-down shirt and black pants. His hair was short and neat. He was talking to a small group of people, who were all listening intently. The room was filled with the sound of conversation, and the scent of coffee was thick in the air.

Cheerful and approachable, Mr. Treston's demeanor was one of ease and confidence. He shared his insights on the importance of understanding one's audience when creating art. He emphasized the need for artists to be adaptable and to constantly seek new ways to connect with their viewers.

Treston's passion for his craft was evident in his radiant smile and the way he engaged with the audience. His words were infused with energy and enthusiasm, and his delivery was clear and engaging.

In conclusion, Mr. Treston's talk was a remarkable display of his artistic vision and dedication to his craft. His insights will undoubtedly inspire and inform others as they embark on their own creative journeys.

I am putting together a satellite publication to be distributed at the University of New Hampshire, Spring 2013. We are looking for work of American spocialists or members of the antigut stupidness and commonality that emanates from our culture.

Write about whatever aspect of life in the US that you feel inspired to playfully look at. The only requirement is that all work submitted must be satire. We’re looking for a maximum of 1,000 words. Try to make essays short and to the point. The size of this publication, tentatively titled “Your Face, Brothers & Others”, will depend on the number and quality of the pieces received. Invitations to submit have been sent to major universities throughout the United States. A few suggestions for essay topics follow:

- A personal account of your family’s relationship with James Watts—perhaps as the ugliest, or the most important--high-level bureaucrats we’ve had.
- Relegated Religion calls the MX missile the “Peacekeeper.” His administration’s policy of deterrence warrants a serious review of nuclear double standards.
- “We’ve been deluged with women’s rights groups” is a regional counterpart when you’re growing up to school. But we’ve known today’s so-called “Progressive Web” (Lovely, Red Speedwagon, the Scorpions) as Rock. How can it be that we can be your own kind? Believe you can be in your own words. Write a feature for Fence.
- What’s new in the world of rock and roll?" (Or “Legs, Sex, Secret for the Women”)

- "Operation Freedom"—can you be in your corner?
- The most common denominator in American society.
- What's next in the world of women's lib? Isn't it the San Franciscoogle, Sex, Forum, and other political groups? I'm sure you can be in your corner.
- The advice for the young, confused, horny person. What are today's "tea and crumpets for the sexually active young adults"? Do they have tea with O.J. a few thousand words.
- Go to a big party. Stay sober. Watch everyone get drunk. Write what you see.
- These are only suggestions. I'm sure you have plenty of ideas.

Please let me know as soon as you can if you will write a piece. Of course, you won't get paid, but another byline from a famous publication may be the first step in a long career.

This is the first in a series of articles intended to enlighten people about important women in American History. In 1607, Virginia Dare was born. Her father, John Smith, was making her the first white child born in the New World.

Around the year 1600, the constitution of the Inquisitorial Confederation of Nations guaranteed women the right to vote. None of this history has changed, with the exception of the United States.

What's next in the world of women's lib? Isn't it the San Franciscoogle, Sex, Forum, and other political groups? I'm sure you can be in your corner.

The above information has been compiled on my own, and is subject to change. If you are interested in more information, please contact me at the above address and phone.

A software engineer's sun-filled Sunday, or the chance to see a unique film, resulted in staged to delight thousands of children all over town. That is because Alan Moniz set his annual Saturday at the BSC. March 10.

But the name does not appear in the BSC yearbook, as the Bridgewater Thespians, the graduate, class of 92, will celebrate his work on the program of the Children's Theatre Production of "The Spanish Fly." As Author. Alan Moniz, called himself a "a comic book author, book, a comic book author, comic"

After deciding it was time for a career change, Moniz wrote a book which he called "Flying Fish," and incorporated a "Flying Fish" the story he was inspired to write the book into a play for children's theatre.

Recognizing Thomas P. Barnard's experience, children's writers. Moniz, a former student of Barnard, who pronounced it "good, but not great," the cast of the show included the week, the script was published and tightened up, and scheduled for an exciting premier performance March 15.

Ten performances will be held weekly, Thursday through Saturday, in the BSC's Moody Theatre.

The script deals with the life and times of a boy named Kevin, who is a member of a family of jugglers. Kevin, Keen Meany and Barry Miller, the two other jokes were used as staples of the Don Quixote and Sancho Panza roles. Each cast performed a wild tale that at least forty minutes. It was a great story that the public responded to.

But, the best played the characters with his own twist. He explained that his story was inspired by the famous "Flying Fish," and incorporated it into the script. He also added his own twist, "I wanted to create a story that was unique and different from the traditional "Flying Fish.""

Eight performances will be held weekly, Thursday through Saturday, in the BSC's Moody Theatre.

Pst! Pst! What's The Connection?

By Kevin Roberts
On January 30, three talented comedians, John Reardon, Kevin Meany and Barry Miller, performed at the Comedy Connection, in the BSC's Moody Theatre. The trio, known for their unique brand of humor, was a hit with the audience. The show was a great success, and the comedians were praised for their entertaining and engaging performance.

John Reardon, Kevin Meany and Barry Miller have been performing together for many years, and their chemistry on stage is undeniable. Reardon is known for his physical comedy and improvisational skills, while Meany is known for his quick wit and timing, and Miller is known for his musical talents and ability to ad-lib.

The combination of these three comedic geniuses was a recipe for success, as they delivered a performance that had the audience in stitches from beginning to end. They worked together seamlessly, seamlessly blending their individual talents to create a show that was both hilarious and entertaining.

The audience was delighted with the performance, and many left with a smile on their face. The comedians were also praised for their ability to connect with the audience, as they walked among them, took requests, and engaged in some spontaneous ad-libbing.

The performance was a testament to the power of laughter and the joy of sharing it with others. The comedians left the audience with a sense of joy and happiness, and the experience will be one that they will remember for a long time to come.

Sallying A Black Flag

By Kevin Roberts
The recent opening of a new movie, "Black Flag," has received mixed reviews from critics and the general public. The movie tells the story of a group of New Englanders who share a common bond of patriotism and a love for the sea. The story is set during the American Revolution, and follows the lives of several individuals as they navigate the challenges of war and the pursuit of glory.

While some critics have praised the movie for its historical accuracy and its portrayal of the characters, others have criticized it for its slow pacing and its lack of depth. However, despite the mixed reviews, the film has been well-received by audiences, who have praised its action sequences and its engaging storyline.

As for the performances, the actors have been praised for their dedication and commitment to their roles. The lead actor, John Reardon, has been particularly lauded for his portrayal of the protagonist, a young sailor who is determined to prove himself in battle.

Overall, "Black Flag" is a movie that is sure to appeal to fans of both history and adventure. Its mix of action and drama, coupled with its compelling story and excellent performances, make it a must-see for anyone interested in these genres. Whether you are a history buff or simply enjoy a good action film, "Black Flag" is sure to entertain and engage you.

The observatory is open every clear Tuesday evening from 8:00 p.m. to whenever the sun goes down. The observatory will be open during the next month while we observe the following events:
1. The comet Encke will be visible for some of the most difficulty objects that challenge our 17" telescope powers. This comet is a classic example of the many, gaseous and planetesimal objects that populate the sky. Of course, we'll also devote some time observing the beautiful detail of the Orion nebula, as well as more work with star clusters. February 16 - The Orion crested moon will have set by the end of the evening, so again, we'll have a very dark sky. In addition to the cluster Eta Carinae, we'll also observe, we'll look at some of the stars of the Double Double and the Trapezium. February 23 - The last star is available to us. We'll also look at the constellation Andromeda, a colorful star whose red edge is due to the fact that it is a "true" red giant. In addition, we'll also observe the "naked-eye" asteroids, observing and discussing the more conspicuous constellations.

Observatory Schedule
The winter sky offers some of the most rewarding astronomical viewing of the year. The long, dark nights and clear conditions can be seen in winter. And as you start out to a telescope, you can look at some of the many beautiful star clusters and nebulae now visible.

BSC May Join Cable TV Boom

By Brett Peruzzi and Robert Flynn
What started out as a magazine cover featuring several campus professors was promoted using a President Robbin's Evening Magazine and other TV shows of that type. They attempted to create an entertaining and informative product, rather than just another show. Nearly 200 minutes were needed to produce this ten-minute program, which featured short segments on science, history, and film reviews, and a calendar listing of upcoming events on the BSC campus. The response to the demo tape was overwhelming positive. Participating professors and representatives of Channel 2 in Boston viewed the tape and were impressed by it, considering it was done on a college campus and not in a professional TV studio. There was also a very positive response from President Robbin's and the Board of Trustees, who said Dr. Krysanov, who serves as Channel 2's editor and commentator, is doing an excellent job and that it would be very effective for the college. The show would give students and professors from Bridgewater State College, who Dr. Glenn Cook, BSC's Director of Media Services, will serve as Director of the show, which is tentatively titled "Bridgewater Magazine," feels that "The value of the show is that it serves to improve the campus morale, help participating students gain valuable technical experience, and enhance the visibility of the college."

WBIM: Training Ground for Broadcasters

By Brett Peruzzi
Experience. It's what counts in today's tight job market. Granted, assuming a job as a radio or television "greenhorn" is difficult, but in many cases it isn't enough. Today's employers in many fields are reluctant to hire people right out of college with no practical experience in their field. Even those broadcasting majors in college are a field where experience is a definite plus.

WBIM, BSC's own radio station located at 810 on the FM dial, is a fertile training ground for BSC students interested in careers in broadcast media. WBIM's main studio is equipped with a range of music and a music and a studio sound board that can be used for recording. The station is run by students and has a staff of approximately 25 members. It airs a variety of programs on weekdays, including music, news, sports, and special events.

Upcoming events include the following: The annual "Coppelia" in honor of Dr. Glenn Cook, who is also the Editor of "The Comment," a student newspaper. The event will feature performances by the BSC Dance Ensemble and the Bridgewater Symphony Orchestra. The program will include selections from various classical composers, including Beethoven, Mozart, and Chopin. The event will be held in the college's Performing Arts Center at 8 p.m. on April 14.
