Heads Roll At WBIM

The student radio station on campus, WBIM, has suffered from personality conflicts which have resulted in the resignation of Darlene Bethany, the Music Director, and the dismissal of the Program Director, James Magna.

Chris Harwood is presently acting Program Director until the position can be filled permenantly. Dr. Richard Vare, the station’s general manager and director of the Student Union, stated that this business will be presented at the next station meeting.

Vare stated that “I’m not sure what immediate changes will take place at WBIM. Future possible changes in program format will be locked into.”

“Those positions were filled. Those positions were filled. Those positions were filled,” stated the Assistant Program Director, Steve Miles as Production Chief.

Julie Lead from Public Relations Director and the vacant position of Office Manager. All these positions were paid positions, as all the managerial positions at WBIM, former officer manager, the station’s general manager and director of the station’s director here is not a job but a service.

WBIM is presently operating without a music format, which is generally recognized as an essential element in any radio station’s operation.

Darlene Bethany, the one coordinator to resign, refused to comment. Magna also refused to comment.

Magna’s statement is that “I don’t want to get into personalities, but did continue to say, ‘We (WBIM) want to get into personalities, but I don’t want to get into personalities.’”

When asked if removing Magna from his position would be effective step, disc-jockey Scott Levison stated, “I don’t know yet. Being program director here is not a job but a service.”

When asked if Magna’s put a plan on his own future, the idea that work forward. Joe Gouveia, Chief of Police, answered, “I don’t know, but I do know that Mr. Magna will be a role in the future.”

Hill Quiet Floor: An idea that works

By Beth Ward

On September 29, 1983, at approximately 11:30 a.m., Mr. Michael Maury escaped from the South Eastern Correctional Center, a medium security prison located in Bridgewater.

The search for Mr. Michael Maury went on. The idea that work forward. Joe Gouveia, Chief of Police, answered, “I don’t know, but I do know that Mr. Magna will be a role in the future.”

On September 29, 1983, at approximately 11:30 a.m., Mr. Michael Maury escaped from the South Eastern Correctional Center, a medium security prison located in Bridgewater.

The search for Mr. Michael Maury was still ongoing. Maury was working on a farm detail until March of this year. At the time of his escape, Maury was working on a form detail which is part of the prison complex. He reportedly drove a tractor out of the grounds and eluded any further search.

When police heard that Maury was at the Bridgewater Police Department confirmed this. Student reports state that Maury was in the lower tier of the prison complex. His uniform from the Correctional Center was found in the same location.

Michael Maury is at liberty, still at large. Police believe he is somewhere in the area of Bridgewater, his hometown.

“Mc” Escapee

On Campus

By Beth Ward

At the beginning of the 1983 school year, the fifth floor at Durgin Hall was designated as a quiet floor.

During the course of the year, students living on this floor must respect the quiet rules. Any violations will result in immediate and possible dismissal.

Assistant Director Doug Smith, commented that “It is more an academic than a quiet floor. Everyone respects the rules because the idea is great.”

“I really believe that it will become a trend for the future.”

Volunteer John Fleming also expressed his desire to see this floor opened up to the public. Fleming added, “I really believe that it will become a trend for the future.”
Dear Editor,

My article is in reference to Ernestine Parton's article in The Comment on Sept 22, 1983 and Donald Dobson's letter to the editor in last week's Comment. I feel personally insulted by both of them. They seem to be the only ones who have the integrity to stand up for themselves and their opinions, even when others have the gall to second guess them.

Student Government Association locomotion board allocated $3,000 for newsworthy and opinion. These are not things that I consider newsworthy, only op-ed articles. They are written by students, not by the editor-in-chief. These opinions do not represent the opinions of the American Cancer Society for Women.

I request that Margaret Flaherty, Paul Brassil, Margaret Flaherty, Roberta Bena, and Roberta Bena do not write any more articles for The Comment. I have read all of them and feel that they are not appropriate. I do not want to read them and I do not want to write any more articles for The Comment.

Sincerely,
Carrie Kutie
Letters To The Editor

I Feel Personally Insulted...

Dear Editor,

My article is in reference to Almonte Patterson’s article in The Comment on Sept. 22, 1983 and Donaldson’s letter to the editor in last week’s Comment cannot possibly be rationally justified by both of them. They seem to have taken the time to think about any of the issues at stake in their letters to the editor. They seem to be equal to only the integrity of a few bell peppers. The fact that they have been successful in turning out a letter to the editor is in itself inexcusable and the letter should never be considered important enough to be printed.

We are a group of concerned students doing the best job we can to represent human beings. The quest for perfection is unattainable, achievement perfection, then we will face the need for learning. Our student government: we are in the process of their own views on it: in my opinion they are apologetic for the people who make meeting every Tuesday night at 6:00 in the debate lounge in the Union. Exercise your opinions and find out for yourself.

Sincerely,
Carrie Kutik

The Comment invites members of the BSC community to use this space for a forum for their ideas, comments, and personal views. Letters should be typed to David M tutcher. Good job for getting music. All submissions must be made by noon on Monday.
The Cheerleaders Speak Out

by Dennis M. Wallace

I entered the realm of the King Pincho's Renaissance Faire early on a Saturday morning, with ten of my high-school-aged acting students and my friend Carol. We had given up our Saturday morning, weeping children, and instead chose to head to the Faire. After paying all the fees, gathering up the students and signing all my receipts, I must admit, I was a little less than enthusiastic.

"Well, there we are," I said to Carol. "Let's make the most of it." I described the day as "exciting," a word that fits the dusty fair grounds with the spirit of the medieval pop. They were wide open to experiencing a new kind of entertainment. As I walked around the grounds for the first time, I was told to watch out for my students. I sat as I watched the minstrels at the airport while strumming fruit stalls and street performers. Suddenly, I realized that the person had a loud voice. They were expressing their views on the event. They were definite." We were losing them out there - you know the type. "If they're great! Gimme a kick - block that kick! Defending, he's incorporated and whoever wins the percentage makes the squad. Kick - block that kick! Defending, he's incorporated and whoever wins the percentage makes the squad." The cheerleaders were cheering the following game. Ms. Munro states that the cheerleader's policy is when there is an injured cheerleader, the cheerleaders will be cheering. The girls did have trouble with the football game, but the cheerleaders were happy and they were trying to out of respect, kneel down to cheer the following game.

I entered the realm of the King Richard's Renaissance Faire early one Saturday morning, with ten of my high school-aged acting students and my friend Carol. We had given up our Saturday morning to steep ourselves on a field trip to the Faire. After paying all the fees, gathering up the students and signing all my receipts, I must admit, I was a bit intimidated.

"Well, there we are," I said to Carol. "Let's make the most of it." I decided to join the dusty fair grounds with the spirit of my teenage charges. They were wide open to experiencing a new kind of entertainment. As I walked around the grounds for the first time, I was a bit overwhelmed. I felt as if I was entering the moosie at the airport while strolling past sunny fruit stands and iced tea vendors. I realized that the only way to get through all the possibilities was to be considerate of my charges at all times.

I finally met the brothers Rogue Oafan Fool, Oaf, in his wonderfully childlike way, strung up by the con- chantine captives that draw the crowds. The quality was pretty much as advertised. Evident. The quality was pretty much as advertised. Evident.

I thought, a bit reluctantly at first, that everyone's best friend had been a brother of mine, or a brother from another mother. Then I added, "Almost as much as the marines." I tried to buy a bit of time while I came to find out that we would have to defend our group from all the spontaneous garbage that would come out of their mouths. The characters dwelling in the kingdom were wearing a stunning array of masks and costumes and many colors. The spirit of the people and the fair was very infectious. I could see the lure of the good mood show and all the delightful opportunism that accompanies it. As I sat there watching these young men and women, I thought it would be fun to go on a field trip. The Faire offers different personalities: from the King Richard and the Royal Faire spires, to the evil Lord Blackwell and his Phantom Pirate, the gypsies, the stockade, and the talking trees, right on down to the River Street. All of the kingdom subjects regarded modern manners so negligently. We were included in every ensuing goings-on. In fact, when one of my charges tried to buy a weapon for the benefit of his friends, he found himself at the end of the line. A bit of quick thinking and fast talking saved him from that situation, but he could not escape the premonition of the protrusion on the back of his shin.

Reflecting night at the Union Auditorium.

Audience at the A Night At The Fiesta was disappointingly small.

Audience in on the singing and clapping. No, the dancers parted off and joined together in a magnificently choreographed extravaganza.

The audience was expected to stay tuned to an outgoing moody orchestral show.

More than anything the lighting was pleasing. Audience was expected to stay tuned to an outgoing moody orchestral show.

The lighting and lighting was moody and suspenseful.

The audience was expected to stay tuned to an outgoing moody orchestral show.

Audience was expecting to watch and see what happens.

Stay Tuned!

Welcome to the first installment of Stay Tuned. As you can probably guess from the name, we'll be picking up on current events and articles dealing with the TV, radio, and any other forms of entertainment. But, this will not be your typical review column. There will be essays on television along with a look back at some purer forms of entertainment which have gone on to become classics. Enough of this, now for our first episode.

Laura Holt creates an imaginary line as the head of a "hair"-detective agency to affect more clients. You see, Laura's previous agency, set up in her name, went out of business. Enter a charming con man who has come to steal an expensive jewel! Laura's agency is protecting the jewel for a neighbor; he has been marked for the head of the FBI. Laura summarized the situation as the beginning of an uneasy alliance. Welcome to the first episode of Remington Steele.

ABC aired the first episode of Remington Steele last Friday night at 10 p.m. Now you are probably asking yourself why it is showing a show that started last Friday. Because this is almost an entire new show. When Remington Steele was renewed for this fall, NBC made some notable changes and now a new beginning. Welcome to the first episode of Remington Steele.

The Student Union Program Committee has been hard at work to bring its fall season of entertainment activities at the Student Union Auditorium. The committee has scheduled an extensive array of events to appeal to a wide range of tastes. The concerts, which were held on the majority of the weekends in September, were well attended, and the committee hopes to continue their success in the upcoming month. The committee plans to offer a variety of musical and theatrical performances throughout the month.

The committee is especially excited about two events that will take place later this month. The first is a benefit concert for the local homeless shelter, which will feature a number of local musicians and bands. The second event is a production of "The Nutcracker" by the local ballet company. The committee is confident that these events will be a success and look forward to more fun-filled activities in the future.

Seniors: What Will You Be Doing This Time Next Year?

By Bruce Tamlyn

Most seniors have thought about where they will be for the next few years. It makes it easier to plan and think about what you want to do. The most important thing is to get started. Don’t procrastinate! Here are some steps you can take now that will help ensure your plans become a reality.

Another way of approaching this question is, will you be able to select what you want to do? Will you be able to do the initial planning? These are steps that help you control the outcomes of the positions you want.

It’s not too late to start thinking about where you want to be in the future. It’s not too early to begin thinking about making use of your resume. You will want to have it available to send by early as Feb. Let's say Dec. deadline is too tight to enter the first batch resumes. Numerous workshops in resume writing are offered by the Center on Thursday.

Another step is, do you want to go to a graduate school? If you are, you need to keep working on your resume. It’s a valuable asset come April and May. The CFP office has scheduled the following Job Search Techniques workshops to help promote the assurance plans for employment.

Step 1: Job Board: Seniors should be able to see a JDF, which is a place to land that you will meet contacts, addresses, companies, school systems, influential friends, news, and any other resources that will help you to remember what you have planned for your resume when it comes time to apply. Getting your resume ready to send is not difficult. Here’s where to approach it:

Step 2: Resume: A cover letter is to a resume as peanut butter is to jelly. Batman is to Robin, and Turkey is to Thanksgiving - they are simple, straightforward, require some time, and they are free.

To find out more about how to do it, please come to our interview through your college placement officer. For additional information on the NSA Security Agency, visit NSA at the Career Development Center.

Social Work Dept. To Hold Accreditation Party

The Social Work Department and the administration of Bridgewater State College will hold an Accreditation Party on Monday, October 24, 1983 from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Maxwell Library on campus. All college faculty and administrators are invited, as well as BSC social work majors along with field supervisors. Any students who are interested in majoring in social work are also invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The party is being held to celebrate the accreditation of the Social Work program by the Commission on Accreditation, the national accrediting body of both Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) and Master of Social Work (MSW) programs. The CWSW accrediting team will visit the college to assess the program. Those attending include: field supervisors, field supervisors, and administrators. Prior to their visit the faculty will have an extensive Self-Study of the program.

The accreditation of the program has already been positive for two people from the program: the past May, Can Men Constable and Paul Comeau have been accepted as graduate students in the social work program at Boston University. They have been given a year's advanced standing in a two-year program of study. Because they graduated from the accredited BSW program, they will be allowed their MSW study in one year rather than the usual two years.

THE REWARDS AT BSC

BSC offers a unique educational experience for students majoring in the social work field. The Degree is offered in a full-time or part-time basis. The curriculum includes social science, sociology, psychology, and history courses. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in social work, family counseling, and mental health.

Even though the program is small, there are many opportunities available in the local area for social work positions. Many students have been able to find internships in social welfare agencies, hospitals, and community agencies. Some students have also found employment in the private sector through their own networking and connections.

The Accreditation Party will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Maxwell Library on campus. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

always go together. A good cover letter brings a resume to life and helps it to be placed in the contact file. Not the compact file. Cover letters are discussed, and examples shared in the resume workshop spoken about above.

Step 4: Credential Files - Your Career Center file will not set your career in motion, but it may add some color to your resume. It is the place where you can keep track of your skills, experience, and education. It is also the place where you can keep track of your goals.

Step 5: Interviewing Skills - You must have the proper skills to entrevis with others. This includes the ability to read, write, speak, and listen. It also includes the ability to think, reason, and solve problems.

Step 6: Self-Evaluation - You must have the ability to evaluate yourself. This includes the ability to think, reason, and solve problems.

60 Students Turn Out For MASSPIRG

By Bonnie Bowen

Sixty students attended the Student Coordinator for Social Work Dept. to Hold Accreditation Party on Monday, October 24, 1983 from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Maxwell Library on campus. All college faculty and administrators are invited, as well as BSC social work majors along with field supervisors. Any students who are interested in majoring in social work are also invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The party is being held to celebrate the accreditation of the Social Work program by the Commission on Accreditation, the national accrediting body of both Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) and Master of Social Work (MSW) programs. The CWSW accrediting team will visit the college to assess the program. Those attending include: field supervisors, field supervisors, and administrators. Prior to their visit the faculty will have an extensive Self-Study of the program.

The accreditation of the program has already been positive for two people from the program: the past May, Can Men Constable and Paul Comeau have been accepted as graduate students in the social work program at Boston University. They have been given a year's advanced standing in a two-year program of study. Because they graduated from the accredited BSW program, they will be allowed their MSW study in one year rather than the usual two years.

THE REWARDS AT BSC

BSC offers a unique educational experience for students majoring in the social work field. The Degree is offered in a full-time or part-time basis. The curriculum includes social science, sociology, psychology, and history courses. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in social work, family counseling, and mental health.

Even though the program is small, there are many opportunities available in the local area for social work positions. Many students have been able to find internships in social welfare agencies, hospitals, and community agencies. Some students have also found employment in the private sector through their own networking and connections.

The Accreditation Party will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Maxwell Library on campus. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

Chi Alpha Cares

Chi Alpha, Do these words sound familiar? They seem to be a common theme among college students. Some think we are a fraternity, others associate us with an illegal group. We are on, however, a group of students. Each student cares for the other. We are a family. There is a lot of support and fellowship here, and each student learns to care for the others. This is what we are all about.

Chi Alpha is a charismatic Christian fellowship whose Greek name (from christou Apostoloi) means "Christ's students." It offers support and fellowship, and students consider each other "brothers" and "sisters." Our members come from a wide variety of religious backgrounds, and we all grow together, learning from each other in our pursuit of the Christian lifestyle. One way we do this is through our small groups, in which a few people meet to share on an individual basis. This semester we will be fitted with activities such as Bible studies, a coffee house, a retreat to Cape Cod, and nights of special events, as well as our regular meeting nights.

As you can see, we are working hard to be a part of the campus as well as meet our objectives. It was time to get a nourishing meal and relax a bit. My roommate and I decided to take a walk around the campus, getting to know some of the other students who are here.

At the end of the day, we met for dinner at the Student Union. We had a great time and enjoyed each other's company. It was a perfect end to a great day.

On Being A College Freshman

By Janet Crafty

It was a hot and humid day, one short month ago today. As I moved into my dorm, I looked carefully around, wondering how many of these students were freshman such as myself. Although I spotted a few familiar faces, it was apparent to me from the warm, friendly smiles exchanged by people, I was welcomed to make many new friends.

The Freshman Orientation week at Bridgewater State College was a way to my new dormitory on the second floor, was greeted by my female roommate and her parents. My room- mate was one of the most fascinating people I have ever met, and I recognized that day. We bonded over the topic of freshman week and planned our first meeting of the year on Psychology Club. Schippers discussed the establishment of the first Psychology Club in our college. I hope that each college freshman is able to find a group of people who share their interests and help them gain the most out of their college experience.

Chi Alpha Cares

Chi Alpha, Do these words mean anything to you? They certainly mean nothing to me. I'm sure they mean nothing to many of you. Some people are not a fraternity, and that's the way we do it. That's why we can never completely overcome the stereotype of Chi Alpha.

Chi Alpha is a charismatically Christian fellowship with a Greek name (from Christos = Christ). It is an organization that seeks to connect students to Christ and each other through brothers and sisters.

Our members come from a wide variety of religious backgrounds and we all grow together, learning from each other in our pursuit of the Christian life. One way we do this is through the small groups, in which a few people meet to share on an ongoing basis. This semester will be filled with activities, service opportunities, movies, a retreat to Cape Cod, and nights out at the movies.

This year, we'll keep our eye out for special events as you pass our bulletin board next to the bookstore. Most of all, we invite you to join us! We meet Thursdays at 11:00 am (the normal time, usually) in the Psychology Department.

The Chi Alpha Disciplinary Committee reserves the right to revoke membership in Chi Alpha, at their discretion, for behaviors or actions that violate the Chi Alpha Constitution or Bylaws.

The North American Indian Women's Association was formed by sixty-three Native American women from 43 tribes and 23 states. Paty Minn, Daughter of Haskell, was the first and only Asian woman elected to Congress.

The Women's Bureau held an anniversary conference attended by more than 1,000 women. Heads Roll At WBIM

By Joe Goovels

The student radio station on campus, WBIM, has suffered from personality conflicts which have resulted in the resignation of Darlene Barthley, the Music Director, and the dismissal of the Program Director James Manger. Chris Harwood is presently handling the Program Director position. He is expected to be the assistant program director, as he is working on a new position to be announced.

Barthley stated that her resignation was brought about by the fact that she could not work with the station director. Manger was fired for the same reason. The new Program Director, who is expected to be announced next week, will have a lot of work to do to get the station in order.

Manger also added that he was not happy with the station's future, and that he was planning to leave the station soon.

Hill Quiet Floor: An Idea That Works

By Beth Ward

On September 29, 1983, at approximately 11:30 a.m., Michael Maury was also fired from the South Eastern Correctional Center, a minimum security prison located in Bridgewater. Maury was serving a 10-year sentence for breaking and entering. He began serving his sentence in 1981, and was not given a chance to leave the Correctional Center until March 1983.

At the time of the escape, Maury was working on a new film that was part of the prison complex. He reportedly drove a tractor out of the grounds and was able to escape.

The Bridgewater Police Department confirmed that B.B.C. student reports that Maury was in the lower hilly section of the mountain. His uniform from the Correctional Center was found in the same location.

Michael Maury is at large, and police believe he is somewhere in the area of Boston, his hometown.

I really believe that it will become a trend for the future.

"I really believe that it will become a trend for the future."

John Fleming also added a resiliency on freshmen floor, adding a similar reaction, commenting, "I'm a freshman and don't know what I'm doing, I just want to live anywhere and I hope that next year I'll be able to live here again."
