The Bridgewater Women’s Rugby Club earned their homestand on a good note last weekend against Holy Cross. Bridgewater showed their potential as a rugby side by pushing Holy Cross deep without converting their efforts on the offensive side of the ball.

Education, especially post high school education, is increasingly becom­ing an issue of personal and social concern. The recent tragedy at South­ern High School in New York has sparked a revival of the student movement that has been struggling for years to get its ideas across to the public. The question is not whether one should support the draft, but whether one should support the constitutionally right to refuse to serve.

Could any of the signatures of the students on the petition be considered a clear indication of the overwhelming support for the war? Some students believe that the signatures of the students on the petition reflect the feelings of the majority of the student body. Others believe that the signatures of the students on the petition reflect the feelings of the minority of the student body. The question is not whether one should support the draft, but whether one should support the constitutionally right to refuse to serve.

Education, especially post high school education, is a gift. A gift that requires a lot of personal and financial planning. Today, many individuals and families are looking into post high school education. But how do you find out what the best school is for you? Could you sign up for a school trip and see if it is a good fit for you? Could you also consider going to a school that is more affordable or closer to home? There are a lot of factors to consider when choosing a school.

The Case for a College Education

A college education can open doors to new opportunities. It can provide you with the skills and knowledge you need to succeed in the workforce. Many employers look for candidates with a college degree. A college education can also provide you with a sense of accomplishment and personal growth.

The Cost of a College Education

The cost of a college education can be high. Tuition fees, room and board, books, and other expenses can add up quickly. Many students take out loans to finance their education. It is important to carefully consider the costs and benefits of a college education before making a decision.

Keep the Drinking Age at 20

By Brenda Arango

The proposal to raise the drinking age to 21 is being considered in states across the nation. This proposal would lead to greater government control and would result in further segregation of the young and the old. Does this agree with the basic idea of democracy? Supporters of this bill maintain that the government should intervene on behalf of young people, who are the minority of the population. They argue that the proposal will reduce alcohol-related problems. The opposition argues that the proposal is an infringement on the freedom of speech, and freedom of choice. Is the drinking age of 21 going to keep alcoholism away from society? Are the young people going to stop drinking if they are not allowed to? Why not! The government should not hide behind the basic division in our society.— money! When we pledge allegiance to the flag we pledge to do with the expectation that there will be a free country. This proposal, however, will take away the rights of the young people, and the government will not respect the individual right to decide on what he/she will do.

Student Right to Trial

By Anne Reitbrock

Rights and justice go hand in hand in America—or so we've been told in a rhetoric our entire lives. Schools in this country have long held a referendum to a legal right and a trial is required in this case. A strain has been brought about from the Supreme Court of the United States. Before the Supreme Court was set to establish a principle of fairness, planning to live in a residence hall, the court ruled that the students were entitled to due process. This ruling was given only a few minutes before the court's decision. Most are given no choice but to attend the students who come around—staying in their dorms and placing their lives at risk. In other words, the plan of action involving the college's alcohol policy. The fine line reads, "Any infraction of this policy will result in immediate disciplinary action and/or suspension from the residence hall." Surely this sentence cannot mean that it is just to throw students into the street before they can try to believe it or not, there have already been other cases that the court has recognized as unjust.

In the majority of these cases, there is a basic pattern. At times, this case is caught by the Supreme Court of the United States. Student Rights to Education

By Nancy DuPont

The American Dream is that education is a right, not a privilege. A college degree is something that every student should be able to acquire. The recent changes in the educational system have made it more difficult for students to access higher education. The cost of tuition has increased, and many students are forced to take on large amounts of debt. Despite these challenges, students should be able to have access to a quality education.

Have you ever tried to be someone else? Not just imitate someone or develop a character, but become someone else. Deception is a common theme in literature and film. Characters are often shown as having multiple personalities or adopting new identities. This can be a way to explore different aspects of human nature and the complexities of identity.

French majors take issue
A one week guided tour of Paris, France, is again being offered in the spring by Dr. Stauffer, a Professor of Bridgewater State College.

The tour is being offered on March 14th and is being sponsored by the American Council for International Studies. The tour is designed for affordable rates and includes hotels, tours, and sightseeing events.

A meeting with the Department of Foreign Languages at Bridgewater State College will mark the second year he has organized the Paris trip. "The trip to Paris provides an opportunity for French majors to broaden their understanding of French culture," said Dr. Hamilton. They also get a chance to experience French life in Paris, a city that is crammed with historical sites and cultural opportunities. French is an exciting and rewarding language to study, according to Dr. Hamilton.

Here are some reviews of the trip:

- "The trip to Paris was an amazing experience! The added bonus was getting to meet with Dr. Hamilton, who is an excellent teacher." - Elizabeth Chamberlain, Senior
- "I definitely recommend this trip to all French majors. The city of Paris is truly unique and the trip allows you to fully appreciate its beauty." - Michael Thompson, Junior
- "The trip to Paris was an eye-opening experience. I feel like I gained a deeper understanding of French culture and language." - Sarah Johnson, Sophomore

Dr. Hamilton believes that the trip provides a valuable educational experience for students. "It's an opportunity to apply what they have learned in class and to experience French life up close," he said. "I think it's a great way to enhance their learning experience."
BSC Professor to Head Spring Tour of Paris

French majors take notice! A one-week guided tour of Paris, France, is being offered in the spring by Dr. State University of Bridgewater.

The tour will include flights from Boston on March 16 and a return trip on March 24. Accommodations have been arranged with the American Council for International Studies, the organization which will arrange for appropriate hotels, meals, and entertainments.

Dr. Herman's Spring Study Tour will mark the second year he has organized the Paris trip. "The trip to Paris especially fits the course requirements," said Dr. Herman. "The history and culture of the French language and literature are examined from a living perspective in the Paris atmosphere." Dr. Herman is an expert in French language and literature, and she is looking forward to sharing her knowledge with the participants.

The trip includes visits to museums, cultural centers, halls of residence, and other places of interest. Dr. Herman will be accompanied by at least one additional faculty member. Group leaders will be musicologist, French and Italian language expert, and bilingual tour guide.

The tour is open to students and members of the public. For further information, contact Dr. Herman at x4140 or visit the Department of Foreign Language and Literature.

I want to thank all the editors at WBN for their patience and support as I was working on this article. It was a challenging task, and I am grateful for their help in making it a success.

I am also grateful to the students and faculty members of the Bridgewater State College community for their support and encouragement throughout the process.
Ensemble Theatre has made a habit of taking on ambitious, potentially risky musical comedy hit of the 1970s. After the successful and critically acclaimed 1983 production of "Doonesbury," the ensemble will take on "Chicago," the Tony Award-winning musical that has been both a Broadway and West End hit. "Chicago" is aosaic of music, dance, and storytelling, telling the tale of Velma Kelly, Roxie Hart, and other women who are willing to do whatever it takes to stay on top. The musical has been adapted into several films and is a favorite among theatre-goers of all ages. The ensemble's production is sure to be a standout event and a must-see for fans of musical theatre. For more information, visit ensembletheatre.org.
Ensemble Theatre has made a habit of letting its audience in on an exciting ride. This week, Chicago, "All That Jazz," a musical comedy hit of the 1970s with music by John Kander, lyrics by Fred Ebb and book by Bob Fosse, may be the most ambitious of all. Under the direction of Dr. Stephen M. Levine, the cast has been rehearsing for the last four weeks. Chicago was one of the original productions in 1975. Tuesday was the last rehearsal before opening night on Thursday, October 20th, and run through Sunday, October 30th, with the curtain at 8:00 p.m.

When it opened in June, 1975, Chicago was one of the most anticipated openings of the year. In its prime, it was one of the most acclaimed musicals of the 1970s with music by John Kander, lyrics by Fred Ebb and book by Bob Fosse. Ensembel Theatre's staging of Chicago, like the original, is a musical comedy set in the Prohibition era. It tells the story of Queenie and Roxy Hart, two women who find themselves in the middle of a murder trial. Queenie, played by Debbie Silva, is a socialite who is being charged with murder. Roxy, played by Susan Trainor, is a burlesque dancer who is also being charged with murder. The two women must work together to prove their innocence and stay out of jail.

The show is full of songs and dance numbers, including the famous "All That Jazz" and "Let Me Entice You." The cast is led by a group of talented performers, including Debbie Silva, Susan Trainor, and John Kander. The production is directed by Dr. Stephen M. Levine and is presented by Ensemble Theatre. The show runs from October 20th to November 20th, with performances at 8:00 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, and at 2:00 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are available online at ensembletheatre.org or by calling 555-5555.

On Thursday evening, October 20th, the Ensemble Theatre opened its season with Chicago, a musical set in the roaring twenties. The show opens with a lively Prohibition-era dance number, "All That Jazz." The cast is led by a group of talented performers, including Debbie Silva, Susan Trainor, and John Kander. The production is directed by Dr. Stephen M. Levine and is presented by Ensemble Theatre. The show runs from October 20th to November 20th, with performances at 8:00 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, and at 2:00 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are available online at ensembletheatre.org or by calling 555-5555.

At the end of the show, the audience is left with a feeling of excitement and anticipation for the rest of the season. Ensemble Theatre has a reputation for producing high-quality productions, and this one is no exception. The cast and crew have worked hard to bring the show to life, and it shows in the final product. The music is vibrant and the dancing is energetic, making for a thoroughly enjoyable evening of theater.

The Real Bond

Returns In ‘Never Say Never Again’

By Kevin Roberts

Sean Connery returns in the role that brought him fame as James Bond, the British Secret Service Agent 007, in the film Never Say Never Again.

A remake of the 1965 classic Thunderball, Never Say Never Again is more superior than some of the last Bond films starring Roger Moore.

The plot this time around involves the nasty organization S.P.E.C.T.R.E. (Special Executive for Counter-intelligence, Terrorism, Revenge and Extortion) threatening the world with nuclear terrorism if their demands are not met. James Bond naturally decides to upset S.P.E.C.T.R.E.’s plans.

The beautiful but extremely naughty Fatima Blush (played by Barbara Carrera) is a dead-end woman that Bond has ever had the pleasure of dealing with. Fatima Blush, a pet snake, explodes bomb after bomb and then ripping them apart and then ripping them apart of former foes. Oddjob and Jaws.

Director Irvin Kershner combines the suspense and character development of From Russia With Love and the ultimate Bond dancing and playing his way through the ultimate video game called Domination. This music is disappointing with only the title song being somewhat memorable. Legal rights forbid the use of the classic Bond theme by Monty Norman and other famous themes.

It is interesting to see new faces in familiar roles like Max Von Sydow as Ernst Stavro Blofeld and Christopher Walken as “M”. Klaus Maria Brandauer makes the role of the evil Large a more complex, three dimensional character. As a result, the story line of Never Say Never Again has been cleverly changed creating a new film. An older, wiser Bond, Connery makes his character more believable. No offense to Mr. Moore, but Mr. Connery has always been the Real Bond.

My editor, last week, came with a very important question. The question was: "If you have something for the next week’s column, could you make it a bit funny?"

I said, "Sure, Chief," and off I went to the market to write my column. I came back with my typewriter, expecting the words to flow from my head to my hands and then to the page. Wrong.

I could not do a review column this week because I didn’t want to write any of the new shows. I had expected to do a nostalgic column but couldn’t think of anything. So I went over to my book shelf and took out all of my books that were on and about the people in them. I bet you cannot figure out where this is that’s right... IT’S DUDE TIME.

1) In 1964, Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, it showed about the crew of a futuristic submarine being captured by the ABC. What was the name of the submarine?
2) The Avenger was a show that aired about a man named John Steed, a British secret agent. John Sted had two partners over the course of the show. Who were they?
3) Who was the star of the 1960 television show Mander?
4) Who composed the music for the television show Mission Impossible?
5) Who was the star of the 1960 television show Mander?

The Real Bond Returns In ‘Never Say Never Again’

By Kevin Roberts

Sean Connery returns in the role that brought him fame as James Bond, the British Secret Service Agent 007, in the film Never Say Never Again.

A recreation of the 1965 flick that Connery co-starred in, Never Say Never Again is exciting and more superior than the last Bond films starring Roger Moore.

The plot of this time around involves the international S.P.E.C.T.R.E. (Special Executive for Counter-Terrorism, Espionage, Revenge and Extortion) threatening the world with nuclear terrorism if their demands are not met. James Bond naturally decides to upset S.P.E.C.T.R.E.’s plans.

The beautiful but extremely naughty Fatima Blush (played by Barbara Borda) is a deadbeat villain that Bond has ever had the pleasure of meeting, and she has a record out there somewhere. With Nadja Tuleuva, a minimalist band with great talent, Bond gets Fatima Blush’s pet snake, exploding bombs, setting off all the gatling gun after having her over the top and then ripping them apart the next day. She used to be a part of various duo teams, 007 and James Bond could deliver a formidable foe in a health clinic by throwing himself over the owner’s own umbrella and then throwing him through the ultimate video game called Domination.

The music is disappointing and only with the little song being somewhat memorable. Legal rights forbid the use of the classic spine tingling James Bond theme by Monty Norman and other famous composers.

It is interesting to see new faces in familiar roles like Max Von Sydow as Ernst Stavro Blofeld, “M”, Klaus Maria Brandauer makes the role of the evil Large a more complex, three dimensional character.

As a remake, the storyline of Never Say Never Again has been cleverly changed creating a new film. An older, wiser Bond; Connery makes his character more believable. No offense to Mr. Moore, but Mr. Connery has always been the real Bond.

A Movie Review

By Joe Wallace

Of Unknown Origin is not what it claims to be. First of all, it’s not a ghost. Secondly, it’s not about a ghost. Thirdly, it’s not a movie. It’s funny, interesting, foolish, and near-pretty disgusting. It’s boring in a weird sort of way, the same way someone might be impressed by watching The History of the World, Part I.

If Of Unknown Origin is truly a sci-fi/horror film, then the film is a failure. At least it’s a failure from the viewpoint of the people who sit in the audience.

Walt Disney, you have done it again. Your painstaking attention to detail is clearly evident in the fine art of crassness.

The film’s levels are so high that it’s hard to decide which one is the highest.

Walt! I’m laying your Attila the Hun moment you have become Pacino’s ego, disdaining the at the very thought of what I am about to reveal to you. Well, Dalmatian, your day has come. Write up stories! Laris is the ultimate man vs. nature movie. What you say, it is our human hero piloted against—what? A what? Not! The ultimate in man vs. nature films is big-heartedness.

Bar Hughs (Peter Haller) is a stuffed shirt corporate executive. No one ever learned exactly what he has for an Existence.

Bar Hughs is a maniacal force for good in this movie. He eludes his pursuers to get the answer to a question.

In the end, there is a happy ending. The love interest’s career is ruined as a result.

Storielle, 649 Beacon St.; Kenmore Square, 618-0080; Johnny Capobianco; Richard L. Hagedorn; and the Senegalese Battle of the Texas blues bands. Hot Stuff!

It seems like I’ve listed all the blues bands it’s because I’ve listened to a lot of blues. The War’s new music scene is dead this week in clubland, so check out something new.

A Listener's Guide to Radio Stations

By Peter George

A listener's guide to radio stations is a very useful radio accessory, especially if you don't have a car or you work nights. Well, almost, since the car FM dial isn't the equal of WCRB. You've probably heard the nursery rhyme about the radio station, "Woo Hoo! Listen to number one station. WBRU Seattle (95.9 - WATD)."

Music, they've got you covered~

"But as we close the book on the 1972 season, we realize that there is still a service, a must listen to station. WCRB."

The station has the mentality of a top hip hop format with emphasis on R&B. But it's still a service. Who ate Loren & the Friars? The station has the mentality of a top hip hop format with emphasis on R&B. But it's still a service. Who ate Loren & the Friars?

One notable exception to the "service" is the station's "The Grotto" program. Saturdays 10:00 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. It's a great example of how radio can still be fun. "The Grotto" is hosted by "Radio Andy" and is a great way to start your weekend.

But there's more to radio than just music. Many stations offer talk shows, news programs, and even sports broadcasts. And with the rise of streaming services, it's easier than ever to find a station that fits your interests.

So, whether you're a music lover, a sports fan, or just looking for something to listen to while you're on the go, there's a radio station out there for you. Just take a listen and see what you find!

Field Hockey Seeks National Ranking

By Gregory Melth

The Bridgewater State College state hockey team has a good shot at finding itself on Saturday night in the national rankings, so the Colonels are off to a strong start after four impressive wins.

The Colonels (8-4-1, 3-1) are coming off two 2-1 victories over Wesleyan and Trinity last weekend, and they have moved into a tie for second place in the NEFC standings. They are currently ranked No. 14 in the nation in Division III.

The Colonels have scored 18 goals and allowed just four, and they have a plus-14 goal differential. They have won four consecutive games, and they are looking for a fifth straight win on Saturday night against Curry.

The Colonels have been led offensively by senior forward Sarah Soucy, who has scored four goals and added four assists. She has been joined by junior goalie Morgan Doherty, who has stopped 111 of 116 shots faced for a .952 save percentage.

Defensively, the Colonels have been led by senior defenseman Anna Murphy, who has blocked 22 shots and added three assists. She has been joined by junior goalie Morgan Doherty, who has stopped 111 of 116 shots faced for a .952 save percentage.

Many students are not familiar with frisbee golf, but the few students that play in this sport find it very enjoyable. The difference between frisbee golf and regular golf is instead of clubs and a ball, you use a frisbee. Instead of a nine hole course, you have to hit a tree, a barrel, bush, or fence.
