Vandals Ravage Library
By Paul Foster
Last Friday night, November 4, vandals broke into the Clement Maxwell Library and caused various amounts of damage. Also broken into was the campus mailbox, where vandals stole money and stamps and opened packages.

In a letter submitted to President Adrian Rondileau, Dr. Glenn Cook, Director of Media Services stated that the break-in occurred sometime between 7:00 P.M. Friday when the library was closed, and 8:00 A.M. Saturday when he and another junior returned to work.

In his letter, the vandals smashed a window in the main area, a double-plate window, in the Media Services Technician's office, along with windows in the Honors Room in Media Services and the door window leading into the Athletic Director Bo Jugre's office.

According to Officer Frizzell, the burglars entered the mail side of the library by breaking the window leading into the library classroom in Media Services. Once in the library, the burglars began their destruction. Dr. Cook's desk was broken into, a smattering of solar calculators and at least three keys to various buildings were taken, along with a $10 General Electric clock that was also broken into and her television and stereo equipment was stolen. The Media Services technician had just plugged in the oven and had to leave when the burglary occurred.

On December 1st, a 21-year-old Bridgewater State College student will be on trial in the Westboro-Berkeley District Court. The student, Michael Hagan, has been charged with impersonating an officer.

In a letter submitted to The Comment by Mr. Hagan, he stated that the trial of the cause was not important, but that the trial was important for the defense. He said that he was not aware of the legal procedures, and that he did not know of any evidence that would support his claim.

Dear Editor,

It really disturbs me to see such a major misrepresentation of the article in the Buck Paper. It is true that I am going to make an effort to get some off topic, but only to the extent that it is needed to bring up the issue.

To the BSC community:

I must spend more time considering the BSC Transit System and the issues surrounding its operation. This will help us to better meet the needs of the community, while simultaneously allowing for the efficient and timely delivery of services.

The survey of the BSC Transit System has been completed, and I am now in the process of analyzing the data. This will allow us to make informed decisions about the future of the system.

Eddie Muntz (Chevy Chase) is a deal-oholic, except he's not toting door-to-door, but instead he's selling second-rate wares to Third World nationals. The next time you see Mr. Muntz trying to cross you, just say "no, thank you." The only thing you'll be getting is a cup of coffee and a donut, and that's not worth the trouble. If you have ever had that particular offer, you'll know what you have written makes sense to you, but may not to someone else, here is your chance to read your work in your voice and style. One will criticize your present, no so one should feel embarrassed or apprehensive. A number of people have already expressed an interest in submitting, so we will see how many of you have written (even if you have already submitted it). You've a favorite piece by a famous author, bring that along. More details on this coffee house are forthcoming. See you there.

Last Thursday evening The Bridgewater Arts Review embarked on a coffee house tour by the Literary Exchange. The Production Manager of the Arts Review, I felt obligated to make an appearance as a representative of our organization. I also dragged along the Editor of the Review. Well, we were astounding! The show was wonderful. Nancy Minkiss, stage, stage, where upon Michael Langer delivered an original tune (Love Speaks from the Stars). The audience was huge, as was the talent. Michael Langer and Doreen Anderson. Tom's comedy was on top form this time. The audience, could appreciate the work that went into his act, comprised of the murder mystery. The cast, a southern mistress, and Truman Capote, however, although Tom is a very talented comedian, the caliber of his talent did not shine through this act, as it is last seen in Berke Art Studio.

Rapid Time Flow: A Morning Problem

By Joyce E. Tumult

How to tell time at 6 a.m. is a perplexing and momentous challenge. It begins true on mornings after a wild weekend. It first made emphasis to you that time in the morning passes a bit quicker than at any other time during your waking hours. You notice that clock hands or digital numerals move at a speed in days the speed at the speed of lights. Your weary head back down on your pillow, close your eyes, let a few minutes fly by and then rise: it's 7:30. It's 4:15; try again. No it's 7:06. It's just amazing how fast time flies at this time of day. Thank goodness it slows down now, creeping for the next twelve long hours, or you'll be sleeping. You can try to do the experiment as long as you like, but never mind. Here's your class starts at eight.

Rapid Time Flow: A Morning Problem

By Joyce E. Tumbach

How to tell if time is at 6 a.m. a perplexing and momentum problem. It's much less true on mornings after weekend. It first must emphasize to you that time is the morning problem. It's much quicker than at any other time during the day. You'll notice that clock hands of digital times move more quickly in an incredible speed the day. Or, if you are late it seems 30 or 60 minute to 5 o'clock. Also time is not so important. Please don't be discouraged by this. It is normal. And the most important things is that you are not late.

Now let's get to the solution of the problem. In the morning, 1 minute minutes are walked, 2 minute minutes are walked, 4 minute minutes are walked, 8 minute minutes are walked. You must wear back down on your pillow, close your eyes, let a few minutes flow by, and then you are again up, on your eyes. Slowly. Try to identify known objects in the room. If this is done correctly, you are again up 2, you are longer, you are not in a daze. You need is to turn your head in the opposite direction. Notice that clock hands of digital times move more quickly in an incredible speed.

Social Workers at Work

By Beth: Field Marshal Chair of Social Work

The problem with Social Workers is that they are often under appreciated and underutilized. In fact, many Social Workers have a difficult time finding a job that is right for them. One way to deal with this problem is to tell your friends and family about the great work that Social Workers do. By doing this, you can help increase the awareness of Social Workers and their role in society.

Social Workers can work in a variety of settings, including hospitals, schools, and community agencies. They can also work with different types of clients, such as children, adults, and families. Social Workers help people deal with a wide range of issues, such as mental health, substance abuse, and domestic violence.

Social Workers use a variety of techniques to help their clients, including counseling, therapy, and case management. They also help clients navigate the social services system, and help them access resources such as housing, food, and health care.

By approaching the issue of Social Workers in a positive and informative way, we can help increase the demand for Social Workers and help them find the right job for them.

Please join us in recognizing and appreciating the great work that Social Workers do. By doing so, we can help increase the awareness of Social Workers and their role in society.
Onetime More Bears Business Tournament! Bears Lose Last Home Game

By Mike Story

This past weekend brought closure to the Fall Sports season for most teams that are not going on to more competition in tournament play, except the football team who finish up this Saturday in New Jersey.

After laburating most of the rust from early December at the beginning of the month, this time was not much better. The Bears took a 5-2 loss to Nichols College Saturday, bringing their record to 7-10 overall.

Bridgewater's strength is not their offense, but their defense. The Bears scored only 17 points, while Nichols scored 32 points. The Bears' defense managed to hold Nichols to 13 points in the second half; however, Nichols only needed nine points to secure the win.

The Bears' defense was kept busy throughout the game, but they were unable to prevent Nichols from scoring multiple goals in the second half. Despite their efforts, the Bears were unable to score and maintain the lead.

Bridgewater's last home game of the season was against Nichols College. The Bears took a 15-12 loss in the first game, and 16-14 in the second, bringing their record to 5-2-1 in conference play.

The Bears' season isn't over yet, however, as they will look to improve their record in the final two games of the season. The Bears have a bye week before their final two games against Nichols and New England College.

VANDALS RAVE AT LIBRARY

By Paul Foster

Last Friday night, November 10, a theatrical act into the Clement Maxwelr Library and the Student Center's Athletic Director Bo Rugett's office.

According to Officer Pronlow, the burglars entered the mail side of the library by breaking the window leading into the main room in Media Services. Once in the library, the burglars began their destruction. Dr. Cook's desk was broken into using a power tool and at least three keys to various buildings were taken, along with a $50 General Electric clock that was also broken into and the money was taken in the process. No one was injured.

The present law allows a young animal to be sold for $2.00 or a research lab for experimentation. These animals are frequently house pets which only have strayed from their homes. Should the innocent wandering of the animals be exploited like this?

If you feel as we do, and would like to assist all those pets which cannot speak for themselves, please call 697-9200, extension 2313, at Bridgewater State College. We will be glad to tell you what you can do to help us and each and every one of our pets.
